The Artisans of Banaras

Popular Culture and Identity, 1880–1986

Nita Kumar

Nita Kumar offers an evocative and sensitive portrayal of rarely explored aspects of Hindu culture through her analysis of the way leisure time is used by Hindu and Muslim artisans of Banaras—the weavers, metalworkers, and woodworkers. Music, festivals, the place of physical culture, and the importance of going “to the outer side” all are examined as Kumar looks at changes that have occurred in leisure-time activities over the last century. The discussion raises questions of the cultural and conceptual aspects of working-class life, the role of fun and play in Indian thought, the importance of public activities in terms of personal identity, and the meaning of an Indian city to its residents.

Crisis and Compensation

Public Policy and Political Stability in Japan,
1949–1986

Kent E. Calder

This thorough analysis of nonindustrial domestic policies in Japan locates answers to questions about policy dynamics set in motion by early Occupation reforms, in the political requisites of Japan’s subsequent economic growth strategy, and in distinctive structural features of Japanese bureaucratic and party-political organization.

“Calder’s book is the most important analysis to date of the politics of Japanese public policymaking. It should become a standard text for courses in Japanese politics and could be used in courses in comparative politics and comparative public policy. Whether one agrees or disagrees with Calder’s arguments, any serious student of Japanese politics will have to take note of them. The appeal of the book is both in its argumentation and in the breadth of its coverage of Japanese public policy.”

Comparative Studies in Society and History is a forum for presentation and discussion of new research into problems of change and stability that recur in human societies through time or in the contemporary world. It sets up a working alliance between specialists in all branches of the social sciences and humanities. Debate and review articles bring the general reader in touch with current findings and issues.

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

Contributions may be descriptive, analytical, or theoretical. Any article not in itself comparative may be accepted if it lends itself to comment that will place it in comparative perspective. Correspondence with the editors prior to the submission of articles will help to enable them to obtain such comment or a companion study. Emphasis in comparative studies may be either on similarities or, if these are significant enough and call for some recasting of generalizations, on differences. All contributions and editorial correspondence should be sent to the Editors, Comparative Studies in Society and History, 102 Rackham Building, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48109-1070.

Two copies of each contribution, preferably accompanied by a stamped, addressed envelope, should be submitted. Both text and footnotes should be clearly typed with double spacing and wide margins; footnotes should appear on separate pages at the end of the article. Illustrations may be included by arrangement with the editors.
