THE Labor History READER

Edited by Daniel J. Leab

Foreword by Richard B. Morris

Preface by Sidney Fine

Introduction by David Brody and Herbert G. Gutman

The Labor History Reader celebrates the first quarter century of the premier journal in its field and provides the richest available source of contemporary thought on American labor history.

During the journal's first twenty-five years, Labor History published more than 400 articles by many of labor history's most distinguished scholars. The Reader brings together the best of their articles on unions, labor leaders, working class life, ethnic and minority groups, and labor movement theories, politics, and law. The result is not only a revealing look at the history of American labor but also a better understanding of our changing attitudes toward that history.

"Labor History has been a pioneer in its field and . . . the authors in this volume make up a directory of the top scholars in the field. The book should attract a lot of notice and be widely used in college courses." — John A. Garraty, author of The Transformation of American Society.

The Authors: David Brody, Melvyn Dubofsky, Michael Ebner, Sidney Fine, Joshua B. Freeman, Nancy Gabin, Howard M. Gitelman, Herbert G. Gutman, James Henretta, the late James Holt, Alice Kessler-Harris, Daniel J. Leab, David Montgomery, Richard B. Morris, Gary B. Nash, Daniel Nelson, Dale Newman, Edward Pessen, Frank Stricker, Paul B. Worthman, and Alfred Young.

Cloth, $27.50. Paper, $12.95.

A volume in the series the Working Class in American History, edited by David Brody, Herbert G. Gutman, and David Montgomery.
