ARMS AKIMBO: BLACK WOMEN CHOREOGRAPHING SOCIAL CHANGE

Black women have been at the forefront of era-shifting social change. Black women have been the targets of manufactured labels meant to control and destroy them both psychically and politically. In the midst of these landscapes, black women have challenged dominant intellectual history and ideology, sometimes by speaking loudly from the mouth of the dragon and sometimes by putting their bodies on the line. The orchestration of social change is a choreography that often relies on negotiations in terms of race, class and gender. But what happens when we depend on black women to move movements? What do we demand from the strong, black, female body? What “power” is tapped, deployed, erased, ignored and/or exhausted? How are conversations navigated, pushed, short-handed and/or silenced? What happens to vulnerability, tenderness and mental health? What sustains? What depletes? And what role does dance/choreography play in effecting change at these junctures?

Dance has always been more than choreography. Movement has always moved minds as well as bodies. Black women in dance traverse myriad aesthetics, skills, emotions, politics, epistemologies and identities to produce vast and complex performance histories.

This special issue seeks to take up some of the most important conversations about the work of black women in and through dance. It also aims to push theoretical debates in critical race studies, critical gender studies and critical dance studies. Recognizing different international definitions of “black,” broadened contemporary understandings about gender identity, a wide range of dance aesthetics on and off stage, and debates around the efficacy of social change movements, this special issue seeks to interrogate the international history of and continued look to “blackness” and “femaleness” in processes of change through the performing arts: social justice, equity, inclusion, etc.

Possible areas of focus include: the choreography of particular artists (early career to established), broad trends in aesthetics influenced by and influencing societal debates, historical contexts and contemporary debates, affect theory (e.g. black female joy, rage, desire, respect, power, intimacy), sexualities and gender, queer theory, efficacy and social change, afro-futurism, afro-pessimism, afropunk, transnational black feminism and womanism, black girlhood, philosophy, theory and intellectual history, nation-making, solidarity/community-building, the radical—radical politics, radical pleasure, the carceral, the protest, activism as choreography.

Final deadline for submissions: December 30, 2019

The editor encourages contributions from scholars, artists and artist/scholars. Approximate length of scholarly articles: 6000 words (not including references). Less formal engagements (e.g. interviews, “an artist writes”), are possible in shorter formats.
