Call for Article Proposals

BJPsych Advances, RCPsych's peer-reviewed CPD journal for consultant psychiatrists, invites clinical experts to submit proposals for articles on current ideas, techniques and developments in psychiatry. Articles typically discuss comprehensive, practical approaches to clinical problems and explain the full range of therapeutic options, with useful features like MCQs, summary boxes, and associated commentaries.

Since 2013, hoarding disorder has been recognised as a standalone diagnosis in the DSM, affecting an estimated 2–6% of the general population. In this issue, authors Pertusa, Lopez Gaston & Choudry (pp. 26–36) outline the arguments for and against this separate classification. They consider the differentiation of hoarding disorder from normative collecting and discuss aetiology, assessment, course and treatment.
