Conference at Berkeley on Changing Institutions in Africa

A CONFERENCE was held at Berkeley on 17-19 June on Changing Institutions in Africa: Theory and Application. The conference was sponsored by the Institute of International Studies, University of California, Berkeley, and was convened by Ethel Albert and David Brokensha of the Committee for African Studies. Participants, who came from many disciplines, presented the following papers:

- Thayer Scudder (California Institute of Technology). Social Anthropology and Rural Development: The Need for New Types of Research and Rapid Survey Techniques.
- David Brokensha (UC, Berkeley). Applied Anthropology in Anglophone Africa, 1953-64.
- Aidan Southall (Syracuse). Urbanization in East Africa: A Case Study.
- Edgar Winans (UC, Riverside). Ecology and African Ethnology.
- Ethel M. Albert (UC, Berkeley). Traditional Values and Culture Change.
- Leslie J. Rubin (Howard). Ghana 1957-64: A Study in Constitutional Change.
- Philip J. Foster (Chicago). Problems of Primary and Secondary Education in Africa.
- Lincoln R. Page (US Geological Survey). Economic Development and the Earth Sciences.
- John M. Letiche (UC, Berkeley). The New Role of Banking and International Trade in African Economic Development.
- Dorothea Leighton (Cornell). Definite Mild Psychiatric Disorder: An Index of Social Stress Points.
- Robert P. Armstrong (Northwestern). Publishing in Nigeria: A Cultural View.

This was the second interdisciplinary conference organized by the Committee for African Studies at Berkeley. The first conference, held in June 1964, was on the theme of 'Ecology and Economic Development in Africa'; the participants came from both the natural and the social sciences. It is hoped that the papers of both conferences will shortly be published.

The West African Linguistic Society

THE West African Linguistic Society came into being at the Fifth Congress of West African Languages, held in the University of Ghana between 5 and 10 April 1965. At the founding meeting on 9 April a Constitution for the Society was formally agreed and a Council elected.

The Aims of the Society, as stated in Article 2 of the Constitution, are as follows:

- (i) to offer membership to and ensure permanent contact among all who are engaged in the scholarly study of the languages of West Africa, their literatures, and any other linguistic aspects of the area;
- (ii) to initiate, encourage, and support scholarly research in this field, both for scientific purposes and to assist African nations with the linguistic aspects of their educational and social development;
- (iii) to organize such regular meetings, conferences, or congresses as may be thought desirable from time to time, and at least once a year if possible;

- (iv) to publish and assist the publication of the results of scholarly research in this field;
- (v) to offer grants for research in this field, whenever practicable and desirable;
- (vi) to establish association or affiliation with any other recognized scholarly association or international body as may seem desirable, and in particular with the International Council for Philosophy and the Humanistic Sciences, thereby entering into official relationship with UNESCO.

The Society expects to take over and develop most of the activities begun by the West African Languages Survey, including the organization of the annual Congress of West African Languages.

Professor Joseph H. Greenberg, the Chairman of the West African Languages Survey, is to be Chairman of the Council of the Society. Dr. Ayo Bamgboṣe, of the University of Ibadan, is the Society's Secretary-Treasurer. The other members of the Council are: Professor Robert G. Armstrong, Institute of African Studies, Ibadan; Professor Maurice Houis, Centre National de la Recherche Scientifique, and formerly of IFAN, Dakar; Dr. M. Bot ba Njock, Université Fédérale du Cameroun, Yaoundé; Mr. Gilbert Ansre, Institute of African Studies, Ghana, and at present at SOAS, London; Professor Eldred Jones, University College of Sierra Leone; Dr. Bakary Coulibaly, École Normale de Ouagadougou, Haute-Volta; Professor Serge Sauvageot, Université de Dakar.

International Congress of Bantu Linguists

M. ANDRÉ JACQUOT, who is in charge of language research at ORSTOM, would welcome exploratory discussions with those likely to be interested in an International Congress of Bantu Linguists, to be held at Brazzaville in July 1967, organized by the Centre d'Enseignement Supérieur. By 1967 the latter institution will have been set up as an autonomous university. The question of language classification, which may lead to a re-evaluation of the nature of relationships between Bantu and other language families, is likely to be raised at the congress, and topics of interest to other specialists, such as comparative philology, socio-linguistics, Bantu literature, etc., could also be included. The programme for the meetings will depend largely on indications furnished by intending participants, who should communicate at their earliest convenience with M. Jacquot at ORSTOM, B.P. 181, Brazzaville, Congo.

Symposium on African Art: Columbia University, New York

ON 15 May 1965 a symposium on 'The Aristocratic Traditions in African Art' was convened under the sponsorship of the Department of Art History and the Institute of African Studies, Columbia University, New York. Some fifty art historians, anthropologists, and museum curators met to hear and discuss six papers on aspects of the courtly or aristocratic styles in Africa, under the chairmanship of Professor Paul S. Wingert. Speakers included Daniel Biebuyck of the University of California, Los Angeles, formerly of Lovanium University, on the functions of art among the highest (or Kindi) grade members of the Bwami society of the Lega (Warega) of eastern Congo, and Roy Sieber of Indiana University on the meaning and history of funerary terracottas among the Kwahu of Ghana. Robert F. Thompson of Yale contrasted certain aristocratic elements in Yoruba art with others believed to be deliberately anti-aesthetic. Two groups of aristocratic art forms found in Iboland, the one indigenous, the other borrowed from Benin, were interpreted by Herbert M. Cole of Columbia University.
