

The catalogue is almost as fascinating as the books.

Almost. The catalogue contains complete descriptions of all titles in the Johnson Reprint "Landmarks in Anthropology" Series. (We have just added 34 new titles for this year.) It is profusely illustrated with materials from the books themselves. Reading it is something of an exploratory tour through a broad landscape of cultures and anthropological contexts.

But then, there are the books themselves. They can indeed be fairly described as landmarks.

Subjects include primitive phenomena from around the world—from the South Seas to Africa to northern Asia and North and South America. They include first hand exploration, mythologies, theoretical analyses.

The list has particular depth in what might be called classics of the golden age of "encounter study"—roughly between 1860 and 1910, when the West seriously undertook to observe and relate to remote cultures, existing then in an unaltered state for the last time in history.

We commend them all to you. Please use this page as a coupon. The catalogue is interesting; very possibly, you will find titles of precise value to you in your own endeavors.

To Johnson Reprint Corporation: Please send the catalogue, "Landmarks in Anthropology." (Mail to Johnson Reprint Corporation, 111 Fifth Ave., New York, N.Y. 10003)

Comparative Studies in Society and History is a forum for presentation and discussion of new research into problems of change and stability that recur in human societies through time or in the contemporary world. It sets up a working alliance between specialists in all branches of the social sciences and humanities. Debate and review articles bring the general reader in touch with current findings and issues.

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

Contributions may be descriptive, analytical or theoretical. Any article not in itself comparative may be accepted if it lends itself to comment that will place it in comparative perspective. Correspondence with the editors prior to the submission of articles will help to enable them to obtain such comment or a companion study. Emphasis in comparative studies may be either on similarities or, if these are significant enough and call for some recasting of generalisations, on differences. All contributions and editorial correspondence should be sent to the Editors, Comparative Studies in Society and History, Department of History, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48104.

Two copies of each contribution, preferably accompanied by a stamped, addressed envelope, should be submitted. Both text and footnotes should be clearly typed with double spacing and wide margins; footnotes should appear on separate pages at the end of the article. Illustrations may be included by arrangement with the editors.

Contributors will receive 50 offprints bound in the journal covers. Any additional offprints must be ordered on receipt of the first proof.
