
list of contributors

Jeremy J. Cunningham is an Associate Professor in the Department of Anthropology at the University of Lethbridge. His research focuses on issues of ethnographic analogy, archaeological interpretation, and the emergence of inequality. He has conducted ethnographic research in Mali, West Africa, and is currently directing an archaeological field programme on Casas Grandes sites in northern Mexico. Most recently, he has published an edited volume (with Robert M. Rosenswig) titled Modes of production and archaeology (2017).

Alexandra Ion is an anthropologist and osteoarchaeologist interested in the ethics and history of body research and display. Her research focuses on the ways in which anthropologically and archaeologically derived categories have defined mortuary remains in academic scholarship, and the interdisciplinary study of European Neolithic human remains. Her current project explores the construction of the prehistoric body, by studying the post-mortem fate of human remains discovered in Neolithic settlements in the Balkan area, towards the reinterpretation of such deposits from a taphonomic perspective.

Ben Jervis is Lecturer in Medieval Archaeology at the School of History, Archaeology and Religion, Cardiff University, UK. His work focuses on the study of medieval material culture (particularly pottery) and urbanism, as well as the application of archaeological theory to key questions within medieval archaeology. He is currently the co-investigator on the Leverhulme Trust-funded ‘Living Standards and Material Culture in Medieval English Rural Households, 1300–1600’ project, and is examining the impact of the Norman Conquest on dietary health.

Rachel King is Lecturer in Cultural Heritage Studies at the Institute of Archaeology, University College London. Her work focuses on themes of disorder, anxiety and development over the last three hundred years in southern Africa, especially Lesotho. She is an honorary research fellow at the Rock Art Research Institute (RARI), University of the Witwatersrand, South Africa, and has held a Smuts Research Fellowship in African studies at Cambridge University and a Claude Leon Post-doctoral Fellowship also at RARI.

Kevin M. McGeough is a Professor of Archaeology in the Department of Geography at the University of Lethbridge and holds a Board of Governors Research Chair in Archaeological Theory and Reception. He is the editor of the Annual of the American Schools of Oriental Research and was previously the editor of ASOR’s Archaeological Report Series. He has recently published a three-volume series, titled The Ancient Near East in the nineteenth century (2015), which examines the reception of the ancient Near East in different media produced in Victorian times.

Póra Pétursdóttir is a Researcher at the Department of Archaeology, History, Religion and Theology at UiT The Arctic University of Norway. Her research interests lie within the archaeology of the contemporary past, critical heritage studies and archaeological theory, and she is the author of articles and book chapters on these issues. Together with Bjørnar Olsen, she is the editor of Ruin memories. Materialities, aesthetics and the archaeology of the recent past (2014). Together with Olsen she leads the 'Unruly Heritage: An Archaeology of the Anthropocene' project financed by the Norwegian Research Council, where her research is focused on 'drift matter' and drift beaches in contemporary and historical contexts.

Archaeology

Books and Journals from Cambridge University Press

Cambridge publishes books and journals that cover research throughout world archaeology and across all periods.

Our list includes key handbooks and manuals in method, theory and scientific techniques; case studies of sites, surveys and excavations; comparative and interpretative works; scholarship on cultural resource management, and large scale, reliable reference works.

For further details visit:

cambridge.org/core-archaeology

Cambridge
Core

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Guidelines for contributors

Archaeological dialogues is a broad, peer-reviewed journal for debating archaeology. Articles should be accessible to an audience which may be unfamiliar with the specific period and region discussed. Transparent writing is encouraged above abstruse reasoning. Jargon should be avoided and succinct writing is appreciated. We value good illustrations. These can include photographs, line-drawings and maps.

Procedure

The Archaeological dialogues publishing process includes the following steps: submission, evaluation, decision (acceptance, modification or rejection), copy-editing, proof-reading, publication, and distribution. In order to guarantee efficient and quality publication contributors are requested to adhere closely to the following guidelines:

- All manuscripts should be written in English. Manuscripts that seriously fail to conform to the guidelines will be returned to authors for revision before they will be considered.
- When submitting a contribution to Archaeological dialogues, it will be acknowledged on receipt. One of the editors will be the contact person for a paper throughout the entire process. If scope, quality and language are appropriate it will be sent to two anonymous referees for expert opinion. Usually within two or three months, the editors will inform you of their final decision. In the case of rejection, an editorial justification will be provided, including the original referees' reports. In the case of acceptance – which may be conditional on revisions – one of the editors will guide you through the rest of the publishing process. Before an article goes into print, authors will receive a copy of the proofs to check. The entire procedure between submission and appearance should take less than a year.

Types of contributions

Archaeological dialogues publishes two main types of article: 'discussion articles' and 'articles.' The former are accompanied by published comments and a reply. Discussion articles are usually longer, up to 8–9000 words, whereas articles are typically around 4–7000 words. Discussion papers usually take longer to appear in print because of the time required for comments and reply. In addition, the journal publishes 'provocations' and 'reactions'. These are short pieces normally less than 2000 words which take a novel or provocative stance on a particular topic, likely to initiate a lively dialogue, or which respond to an article previously published in Archaeological dialogues. Provocations and Reactions can be more essay-like in style. They are not subject to full peer review but are reviewed by the editorial board. Review essays and interviews are usually solicited by the editorial board, but scholars with suggestions in this direction are encouraged to contact us.

Submission of contributions

Please send manuscripts via email to <dialogues@cambridge.org>.

Authors are solely responsible not only for the contents of their manuscripts, but also for securing any legal rights or permissions to publish submitted material, including copyright-protected materials. The appropriate acknowledgements should be given in captions, endnotes, or elsewhere. Manuscripts should not be submitted to (nor should they have been published in) any other journal or publication.

See <http://uk.cambridge.org/journals/ard> for an extended version of the guidelines for contributors.

This journal issue has been printed on FSC-certified paper and cover board. FSC is an independent, non-governmental, not-for-profit organization established to promote the responsible management of the world's forests. Please see www.fsc.org for information.

Archaeological Dialogues is indexed in the Thomson Reuters Arts and Humanities Citation Index.

Printed in the UK by Bell & Bain.

Archaeological dialogues

articles

- 105 In praise of outlaws Rachel King
- 135 Assemblage urbanism. Becoming urban in late medieval Southampton Ben Jervis
- 161 The perils of ethnographic analogy. Parallel logics in ethnoarchaeology and Victorian Bible customs books
Jeremy J. Cunningham and Kevin M. McGeough

reactions

- 191 A taphonomy of a dark Anthropocene. A response to Þóra Pétursdóttir's OOO-inspired 'Archaeology and Anthropocene'
Alexandra Ion
- 205 Lyrics for a duskier Enlightenment. In response to Alexandra Ion
Þóra Pétursdóttir

addendum

- 215 Beyond Antiquarianism: A Review of Current Theoretical Issues in German-speaking Prehistoric Archaeology - ADDENDUM
Kerstin P. Hofmann and Philipp W. Stockhammer
- 217 List of contributors

Cambridge Core

For further information about this journal please go to the journal website at:
cambridge.org/ard

MIX Paper from responsible sources
FSC® C007785

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS