

JOURNAL OF CONSTITUTIONAL AND PARLIAMENTARY STUDIES
Contents of Vol. III No. 3, July–September, 1969

Articles*

- The President of India — K. Santhanam
Law of Obscenity and Freedom of Expression — A. N. Grover
Independence of Judiciary — D. N. Mithal
Legislative Procedures in the Parliaments of India and Ceylon: A Comparison — K. Seevanayagam
The Office of the President of the Indian Union —
A Probe into the Intentions of the Founding Fathers — K. C. Markandan

On A Uniform Civil Code for India*

- Uniform Civil Code — R. C. S. Sarkar
Need for Uniform Civil Code for India — C. C. Desai
Muslim Personal Law and a Uniform Civil Code
for India — M. Z. Siddiqui
Muslim Polygamy and Divorce in India — P. Kodanda Rao
Need for a Dialogue between Sociologists
Jurists — Bhagwant Rao Dubey

Notes*

- The Dynamics of Lok Sabha's Structural Characteristics — Krishan Nanda

and Book Reviews. Recent Literature on Constitutional and Parliamentary affairs. Readers' forum.

Annual Subscription	Rs. 15 or $5.50 or 46s.
Single Copy	Rs. 4 or $1.50 or 12s. 6d.

The next issue will be a Special Number
on
UNION-STATE RELATIONS

The Institute of Constitutional and Parliamentary Studies 19, Vithalbai Patel
House, Rafi Marg, New Delhi-1

OXFORD UNIVERSITY COLONIAL RECORDS PROJECT

Publication of Selected Papers

The Oxford University Colonial Records Project, which has been engaged in collecting original materials relating to the political and administrative history of former British possessions in Africa, Asia and elsewhere, plans to inaugurate a series of edited publications. Scholars who would be interested in submitting for publication edited texts from manuscripts in the Colonial Records collection and other collections in Oxford are invited to forward their enquiries to the Project's Director at the Institute of Commonwealth Studies, 21, St. Giles, Oxford.

28 International Congress of Orientalists Canberra, 6 to 12 January, 1971

The 28 International Congress of Orientalists will be held at the Australian National University, Canberra, A.C.T., from 6th to 12th January, 1971. All scholars of the languages, history, literature and culture of Asia are welcome.

Enquiries should be addressed to:

The Secretary-General,
28 International Congress of Orientalists,
Australian National University Post Office,
via Canberra City, A.C.T. 2601. AUSTRALIA.

CONTRIBUTORS TO THIS ISSUE

JOSEF SILVERSTEIN is Professor of Political Science at Rutgers University. He is author of several articles on Burma and is now completing a more detailed study of student politics in Malaysia.

MARTIN RUDNER is Research Fellow in Asian Studies and Political Science at the Institute of Asian and African Studies, The Hebrew University of Jerusalem. This article is derived from a larger study, "The Inter-relationship between Economic Development and the Function of the Political System in Malaya, 1945-1963".

C.M. TURNBULL (RAYNER) is lecturing in History at the University of Singapore and has published articles on Malaysian/Singapore history in the Malaysian Branch Royal Asiatic Society Journal, the Journal of the South Seas Society, J. Bastin & R. Roolvink (Eds.) Malayan and Indonesian Studies and R. Winks (Ed.) The British Empire-Commonwealth: Historical Reassessments. She is completing a study of the Straits Settlements, 1826-67.

GRANT K. GOODMAN is Professor of History and East Asian Studies of the East Asian Studies Program at the University of Kansas, Lawrence. His recent books include Four Aspects of Philippine-Japanese Relations, 1930-1940 (1967) and Davao: A Case Study in Japanese-Philippine Relations (1967).

MOSHE LISSAK is Senior Lecturer in Sociology at The Hebrew University of Jerusalem. In 1961-62 he was fellow of the Committee for the Comparative Study of New Nations, the University of Chicago. In 1967-68, he was a research associate at the Center for International Affairs, Harvard University.

PHILIP G. ALTBACH is Associate Professor of Educational Policy Studies and Indian Studies at the University of Wisconsin. He is author of Student Politics in Bombay (1968) and has also edited Turmoil in Transition: Higher Education and Student Politics in India (1969) and (with S.M. Lipset), Students in Revolt (1969).

J. PANGLAYKIM is Professor of Business and Industrial Management, Nanyang University, and I. Palmer is Fellow at the Center for Southeast Asian Studies, University of Hull.

JEROME R. BASS was, until recently, lecturer in History at the University of Singapore. He is currently enrolled for a Ph.D. degree with the Political Science Department of the University of California, Berkeley.