ILLINOIS

Another Civil War Labor, Capital, and the State in the Anthracite Regions of Pennsylvania, 1840-68

Grace Palladino

Examines draft resistance during the Civil War era in Schuylkill, Luzerne, and Carbon counties. The use of federal troops to enforce the draft and concurrently suppress labor unrest in these counties marked a significant turning point in federal involvement in local disputes. "Palladino's fine new monograph will force historians to revise their assumptions about Northern unrest during the Civil War. More broadly, it draws attention to the important connections among national politics, military policy, and working class formation in the era before 1877. Another Civil War is must reading not just for labor historians but for anyone interested in the complex meaning and legacy of the Second American Revolution." — Sean Wilentz, author of Chants Democratic: New York City and the Rise of the American Working Class, 1788-1850. LABOUR/LE TRAVAIL

JOURNAL OF CANADIAN LABOUR STUDIES

REVUE D'ETUDES
OUVRIERES CANADIENNES

Labour/Le Travail is the official publication of the Committee on Canadian Labour History. Since it began publishing in 1976, it has carried many important articles in the field of working-class history, industrial sociology, labour economics, and labour relations. Although primarily interested in a historical perspective on Canadian workers, the journal is interdisciplinary in scope. In addition to articles, the journal features documents, conference reports, an annual bibliography of materials in Canadian labour studies, review essays, and reviews. While the main focus of the journal's articles is Canadian, the review essays and reviews consider international work of interest to Canadian labour studies. Many of Labour's articles are illustrated.

Publiée par de Comité l'histoire du travail du Canada, la revue Labour/Le Travail a fait paraître depuis 1976 plusieurs articles marquants dans le domaine de l'histoire de la classe ouvrière, de la sociologie industrielle, de l'économie du travail et des relations industrielles. Bien qu'elle se propose d'abord d'étudier les travailleurs et les travailleuses du Canada dans une perspective historique, la revue est aussi ouverte aux spécialistes d'autres disciplines. En plus des articles, la revue publie des documents, des rapports de conférences, une bibliographie annuelle, des notes critiques et des comptes rendus de volumes. Si la plupart des articles touchent le Canada, les notes critiques et les comptes rendus portent sur des travaux d'envergure internationale pouvant intéresser les chercheurs canadiens. Des illustrations accompagnent plusieurs articles de Labour/Le Travail.

BUILDING BRIDGES

The Emerging Grassroots Coalition of Labor and Community

"Fragmented," "isolated"—such terms are often used to describe U.S. social movements today. But over the past few years, once-insular movements have been reaching out to cooperate at the grassroots level. Building Bridges portrays dozens of the literally hundreds of grassroots coalitions of labor and community groups that have developed over the past few years. It reveals a new, unheralded alignment which promises to transform American society as radically—and far more constructively—than Reagan's New Right coalition did in the 1980s.

ILLINOIS

Work and Community in the Jungle

Chicago's Packinghouse
Workers, 1894-1922

James R. Barrett

Winner of the 1988 Illinois State
Historical Society Award of Superior
Achievement

"Barrett has written a first-rate study of Chicago packinghouse workers. . . . By insisting upon linking community life to the basic power relationship that exists between workers and their employers, he provides a model for community-based working-class history." — Dexter Arnold, Union Labor News. A volume in the series The Working Class in American History. Cloth, $29.95; paper, $11.95

Life, Work, and Rebellion in the Coal Fields

The Southern West Virginia
Miners, 1880-1922

David A. Corbin

Winner of the 1982 W. D. Weatherford
Award

"The coal miners of southern West Virginia have found a historian worthy of their militant traditions. Corbin has sifted an amazing quantity and variety of sources to recover West Virginia miners' self-expressed views of their experiences." — Peter Gottlieb, International Labor and Working-Class History. A volume in the series The Working Class in American History. Paper, $12.95

Solidarity and Fragmentation

Working People and Class
Consciousness in Detroit,
1875-1900

Richard Jules Oestreicher

"Oestreicher's well-written and extensively researched book is an outstanding study of the Knights of Labor as well as one of the very best of the growing number of community studies of working-class life that are gradually transforming our understanding of class and community in industrializing America." — Roy Rosenzweig, American Historical Review. A volume in the series The Working Class in American History. Cloth, $29.95; paper, $12.95

Workers, Society, and the Soviet State

Labor and Life in Moscow,
1918-1929

William J. Chase

"The first detailed account of the working class of Moscow in the '20s — both at work and at home. Chase advances interesting ideas on changing attitudes and behavior of the workers, both in relation to other social groups and to the authorities. His book will provoke thought and further analysis while remaining a solid contribution to an under-researched topic in its own right." — Mary McAuley, author of Politics and the Soviet Union. A volume in the series The Working Class in European History. Cloth, $34.95; paper, $14.95
