

JOHN ŽIŽKA and the Hussite Revolution By FREDERICK HEYMANN

This is at once a moving account of the Hussite Revolution from its very beginnings and a biography of one of its most brilliant military leaders who was largely responsible for the success of this first heresy in history which the Church of Rome could not defeat. The author ably demonstrates how experiments forced by crisis made the Hussite revolution the first in that chain of great upheavals which destroyed the caste structure of the Middle Ages and freed the individual from the universal authority of the Roman Church.

From persecution to "co-operation" The Church in Soviet Russia

By MATTHEW SPINKA

Editor of Church History, 1932-1948

This is a timely and accurately informative book. The recent exchange of visits between the Russian Church authorities and American Protestant leaders has made evident the need for understanding the relationship between Church and State in contemporary Russia.

Dr. Spinka fills that need, cutting through the fog of misconceptions engendered by propoganda and revealing one of history's strangest alliances.

REINHOLD NIEBUHR says:

"A complete chronological account of the fate of the Russian Church from the Bolshevik Revolution to this day . . . invaluable to students everywhere." $3.25

D. 325). The writers include St. Ignatius of Antioch, St. Justin, Tertullian, St. Irenaeus, St. Clement of Alexandria, Origen, St. Cyprian, and St. Athanasius. $4.00

Saint Peter

By THE VERY REVEREND JOHN LOWE

Dean of Christ Church, Oxford

The character and position of the real St. Peter have tended to be submerged by the centuries of controversy between champions of Papal claims and their opponents. This book by an outstanding Christian scholar gives a fresh account of St. Peter's career. Based on the earliest evidence and on literary, liturgical, and archaeological material, it re-examines such questions as Peter's position among the Apostles and the meaning of the recent excavations under St. Peter's Church in Rome. $2.50
