Beliefs in Action

Economic Philosophy and Social Change

Eduardo Giannetti da Fonseca

This book is concerned with the role of economic philosophy ("ideas") in the processes of belief-formation and social change. Its aim is to further our understanding of the behavior of the individual economic agent by bringing to light and examining the function of non-rational dispositions and motivations ("passions") in the determination of the agent's beliefs and goals.

Eminent Economists

Their Life Philosophies

Michael Szenberg, Editor

"This book provides a rare opportunity to sit down with an Arrow, a Samuelson, or a Tinbergen and learn that there is more to economics (and economists) than the world of theorems and econometric models. Michael Szenberg is to be congratulated for making us privy to the life philosophies of twenty-two of the world's most eminent economists. This is recommended reading for economists of all ages; it should be required reading for those at early stages of their careers."

Stabilizing Dynamics

Constructing Economic Knowledge

E. Roy Weintraub

Major changes in the ways economists presented their arguments to one another occurred between the late 1930s and the early 1950s; over that period the discipline became mathematized. The author argues that those changes were not merely cosmetic: the mathematical forms of the arguments significantly altered the substance of the arguments.

Preparation of manuscript. A separate title page should be prepared carrying the article title, auxiliary short title (not over 50 characters), author's full name (in the form preferred for publication), and author's affiliation (including full mailing address and phone number). Because blind reviewing will be employed, authors are asked to identify themselves only on the title page.

The entire manuscript (including notes and references) should be typed double-spaced on 8½ by 11 inch or A4 paper, with wide margins for copy editing. Manuscript pages should be numbered consecutively.

Figures. If the manuscript is accepted for publication, the author must provide figures that are ready for photographic reproduction; they cannot be redrawn by the publisher, unless the author pays for the cost of such work. Charts, graphs, or other artwork must be drawn by a professional artist or computer generated on a laser printer, in black ink on white paper, and should remain legible after a 50% reduction. All labels and details on figures should be clearly printed (or done in transfer type of a sans-serif face such as Helvetica).

References and notes. Bibliographic citations in the text must include the author's last name and the date of publication and may include page references: (Bryant, 1980, pp. 335–44). When an author's name is part of the text, the following form should be used: "Bryant (1980, pp. 335–44) maintained that" When a work by two or more authors is referred to, all names should be given in the first citation: (Kravis, Heston, and Summers, 1978), with subsequent citations of the form (Kravis et al., 1978). When separate works are referred to within the same parentheses, they should be listed in alphabetical order. Those by the same author should be separated by commas and those by different authors by semicolons: (Fuss and McFadden, 1978; Georgescu-Roegen, 1971, 1976).

Complete bibliographic information for each citation should be included in the list of references. References should be typed in alphabetic order using the style of the following examples:

Arrow, Kenneth J. 1974. The Limits of Organization. New York: Norton.

Bryant, John. 1980. "A Model of Reserves, Bank Runs, and Deposit Insurance." Journal of Banking and Finance 4:355–64.

Titles of journals may not be abbreviated.

When more than an in-text citation is called for, footnotes may be used. These should be numbered consecutively throughout the text and typed at the bottom of the page in which they are cited. Source citations within footnotes follow the same style as citations in text.

Copyediting and proofreading. The publishers reserve the right to copyedit and proofread all articles accepted for publication, but authors will be consulted in the case of any substantial changes. Page proofs of each article will be sent to the lead author for correction of typographical errors only.

General. The lead author will receive 25 offprints of his or her article free of charge; additional numbers may be purchased if ordered at proof stage. Submission of an article implies that it has not been published elsewhere. Authors are responsible for obtaining written permission to publish material for which they do not own the copyright. Contributors will be asked to assign their copyrights, on certain conditions, to Cambridge University Press.
