

INTERNATIONAL LAW IN HISTORICAL PERSPECTIVE

by J.H.W. Verzijl, Emeritus Professor of International Law, University of Utrecht

Professor Verzijl's International Law in Historical Perspective reflects a career of over 50 years of publishing in the most diverse field of international law. If it is self-evident that the whole of the subjects dealt with will be treated in an up-to-date manner, special stress should be laid on a characteristic peculiarity consisting in the profound historical perspective which Professor Verzijl's extensive knowledge of political and legal history permits him to lend to his views. This particular feature of the work should ensure it a place of its own among the great manuals of international law.

This work received the annual award of the American Society of International Law at the Society's 1970 meeting.

"These volumes are a kind of testament of one of the most distinguished legal scholars of his time. They are marked by great legal acumen, a deep sense and knowledge of history and an intellectual humility, which together lead the reader to an unusual understanding of how law is interwoven with international relations." (International Affairs).

In 1971, the Institute for International Law and International Relations in Zagreb organized a round table conference in Yugoslavia on international law with staff members of the T.M.C. Asser Institute for International Law at The Hague, The Netherlands. The experience derived from this successful meeting inspired both Institutes to engage upon the joint venture of a biennial colloquium on the law of international trade as a means of facilitating exchanges of legal information and discussions between legal scholars and institutions in Eastern and Western Europe. This was made feasible by a subvention from the Yugoslav and Dutch Government under the Cultural Treaty concluded between both states in 1971. The first session of the colloquium was held in Yugoslavia, in May 1974. A collection of the papers has also appeared in print along with a summary of the discussions (Essays on the Law of International Trade, T.M.C. Asser Institute, The Hague, 1976).

THE NETHERLANDS CIVIL CODE, BOOK 6.
THE LAW OF OBLIGATIONS

Draft text and commentary.
Edited by the Netherlands Ministry of Justice

1977, 662 pp., cloth, Dfl. 120.00/$48.00 ISBN 90 286 0396 4

In the Netherlands new Civil Code, Book 6 deals with one of the most fundamental parts of modern law, the general part of the law of obligations. In the draft, which was submitted to the Lower House in 1964, one will find for instance a modern restatement of the law of contract and the law of tort. The translation of the draft and the commentary thereto was ordered by the Minister of Justice, primarily in order to make these accessible to foreign comparative lawyers. It may particularly be of interest to them because the drafters have made a thorough study of comparative law.

The draft has been translated by Mrs. E.J. Drion-van Rooyen and Mr. R.J. van Dijk, and the commentary by Mrs. Drion, both under the supervision of Professor F.H. Lawson, D.C.L., F.B.A., professor of comparative law at the University of Lancaster.
