
Notes on contributors

David Callahan is an Associate Professor at the University of Aveiro in Portugal. He is the author of Rainforest narratives: The work of Janette Turner Hospital (2009) and editor of the Journal of the European Association for Studies on Australia.

Jessica Carniel is a Lecturer in Humanities at the University of Southern Queensland. Her research interests include issues of immigration and multiculturalism from a cultural studies perspective.

Regina Ganter is currently investigating German-speaking missionaries in Australia as an ARC Future Fellow. She is a Professor of History at Griffith University.

Jennifer Harrison is a Research Adviser with the School of History, Philosophy, Religion and Classics at the University of Queensland. She has been writing on the immigration and convict history of the Moreton Bay district for many years, publishing in local, interstate and overseas publications.

Richard Gehrman is a Senior Lecturer in International Studies at the University of Southern Queensland. He has previously published on white African identity, and on the intersection of migrant identity and inter-country adoption. His current research focuses on war and society within the framework of Australian experiences in recent conflicts in Afghanistan and Iraq.

Dianne Jones lectures in journalism at the University of Southern Queensland. Her research on the role of local news media in democracy and gender representation in the online sports media has been published in Australia and overseas, and cited in international textbooks on sport and the media, two federal government inquiries and government-funded reports on women's sport and the media in Australia and the United Kingdom.

Sophie Loy-Wilson is a Post-Doctoral Research Fellow in the Laureate Centre for International History at the University of Sydney, and has previously worked as a Lecturer and faculty member at Deakin University. Her research focuses on networks of contact and interaction between Australia and China. Sophie's focus on commercial encounters allows her to explore the relationship between economics and the cultural domain of interwar colonialisms through personal relationships and everyday interactions.

Jill Lawrence is Associate Professor and Associate Dean (Students) in the Faculty of Business, Education, Law and Arts at the University of Southern Queensland. She is a co-author of Producing pedagogy: Developing, contextualising and evaluating an institutional approach to learning and teaching (2013). Jill's research interests are in the areas of learning and teaching in higher education, cross-disciplinary education and cross-cultural communication.

Robert Mason is a Senior Lecturer in History at the University of Southern Queensland. His research focuses on culturally and linguistically diverse communities in regional Australia. He is particularly interested in historical legacy and memory in contemporary communities, and in Australia's Spanish- and Portuguese-speaking communities.

Anne Monsour has a PhD in history from the University of Queensland, and is currently an Honorary Research Fellow in the School of History, Philosophy, Religion and Classics. For almost two decades, she has been researching, speaking and writing about the history of Lebanese settlement in Australia. Born in Biggenden, Queensland where her father was a general storekeeper, Anne is the daughter of Lebanese immigrants from Rass Baalbec.

Francesco Ricatti is Cassamarca Senior Lecturer in History and Italian Studies at the University of the Sunshine Coast. His research focuses on migration history, football history and political history, with a specific interest in issues relating to embodied identities and emotions. He is the author of Embodying migrants: Italians in postwar Australia (2011). With Maurizio Marinelli, he has recently edited a special issue of Cultural Studies Review on 'Emotional geographies of the uncanny: Reinterpreting Italian transnational spaces'.

John Faros Wilson holds degrees in Law and Arts from the University of Melbourne and a Masters in Laws from Duke University. He is currently an MA candidate in History at the University of New England, with a research focus on frontier studies. Like Con Castan, he too is a Greek of Brisbane, and counts his youthful experiences in West End as a formative influence on his character and his abiding passion for all things Hellenic.

Curing 'the bends'

“ Hill and Greenwood decompressed themselves, without any serious symptoms, after short exposures at excess pressures of as much as five and even six atmospheres.”

From 'The Prevention of Compressed Air Illness',
Journal of Hygiene, 1908

This breakthrough article included early research into decompression and the first ever dive tables.

It's just one of the treasures in the Cambridge Journals Digital Archive

SUBMISSION INSTRUCTIONS

Queensland Review publishes articles of approximately 5000–6000 words. Please email submissions to Queensland Review to the Lead Editor, Professor Kay Ferres, at: k.ferres@griffith.edu.au

1. At least two separate files must be submitted. If there are figures, three or more separate files must be submitted.
 - i A Title Page document. The name of this file must be constructed as follows: [first 20 characters of the title]_[ddmmyear]_QR_Title.doc
 - ii An Article document. The name of this file must be constructed as follows: [first 20 characters of the title]_[ddmmyear]_QR_Article.doc
 - iii Any Figure documents should be supplied with the name of the file constructed as follows: [first 20 characters of the title]_[ddmmyear]_QR_Figure# (with # being the number of the figure)
2. The Title Page and Article documents should be saved as Microsoft Word documents, in Times New Roman 12 pt font, double-spaced with margins of at least 25 mm on both sides and in A4 page size.
3. The Title Page document should contain the full title of the article as well as the full names and affiliations of all authors followed by full postal and email addresses for the corresponding author. A word count and suggested running head of no more than 50 characters including spaces should also be provided.
4. The Article document should include the complete article without any identifiable author details but including the title and an abstract not exceeding 200 words that provides a brief overview of the aims, method and major findings, without any citations. The abstract will not be published, but may be used for publicity purposes.
5. Tables should be created in Word and included at the end of the article after the references, with their approximate positions in the text indicated by the words, 'Insert Table X here'. Horizontal and vertical lines should be used sparingly.
6. Figures, graphs, illustrations and photographs (but not tables) should be prepared to the correct size and each one supplied as individual files, separate to the article. To ensure optimal quality, please follow the guidelines provided in the full instructions available at journals.cambridge.org/qre

A list of figure captions should follow the tables in the article document. Captions must include sources and permissions for copyright material. It is the responsibility of the corresponding author to obtain written permission to reproduce any photographs or other copyright material.

REVIEW

All manuscripts are sent for blind peer-review to members of the editorial board and guest reviewers. The review process generally requires three months. The receipt of submitted manuscripts will be acknowledged by the editor, from whom a decision and reviewers' comments will be received when the peer-review has been completed. Papers submitted to the journal must not previously have been published, and must not be submitted for publication to any other journal while under consideration for Queensland Review.

STYLE AND REFERENCING

For details of the Queensland Review style, please see the style and referencing guide available at journals.cambridge.org/qre

1. Authors should follow Australian spelling and punctuation conventions throughout their articles (except in quotations from other sources, where the spelling convention of the original should be retained). Use the Oxford English Dictionary.
2. Use single inverted commas, except for quotations within quotations (which have double inverted commas). Punctuation should follow closing inverted commas except for grammatically complete sentences beginning with a capital.
3. Since Queensland Review is a multi-disciplinary journal, we accept referencing using either the short-title (endnote) system or the author-date (Harvard) system, depending on the disciplinary base on the author. Each individual paper must conform to one or other of these systems.
4. Use endnotes, not footnotes.
5. Include a bibliography only if the author-date (Harvard) system of referencing is used.
6. Generally notes should be kept brief. Source references should be given with as little additional matter as possible.
7. Quotations should be kept to a minimum and lengthy quotations should be avoided. As a general rule, quotations of more than about 60 words should be set off from the main text (indented with extra space above and below). Those of fewer than 60 words should run on in the text inside inverted commas.
