

The original contributions to this Royal Institute of Philosophy collection are centrally concerned with Ethics, but from a very wide variety of perspectives. The essays, written by authors of great distinction, range from the analytic and theoretical to the applied, touching such topical and hotly debated issues as what constitutes morality in political life, the relation between education and ethical standards, and whether morality can indeed be defined. The volume will provide stimulating reading for scholar and students alike.

CONTRIBUTORS

Renford Bambrough
Catherine Chalier
Stephen R. L. Clark
Peter Gardner
James Griffin
Jean Grimshaw
R. M. Hare
S. L. Hurley
Onora O'Neill
Anthony Quinton
Marcus G. Singer
John Skorupski
Stewart R. Sutherland
Bernard Williams

Cover design by Ken Farnhill

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

ISBN 0-521-45764-5

9 780521 457644