

from Cambridge

The Educational Writings of John Locke

Edited by JAMES L. AXTELL

This is the first fully annotated critical edition of Locke's educational writings. The text is the fifth edition of 1705, the last one Locke supervised, and the collation shows all variant readings.

In the introduction Mr Axtell describes Locke's own educational background and teaching experience. He discusses the relationship of the Education with Locke's philosophical writings and sets the text in its intellectual and historical context. $12.50

Education and Society in Tudor England

JOAN SIMON

'For the first time a comprehensive text has been written about an age in English history, a text in which the author has very carefully examined and connected every facet of the social forces that have influenced education, as well as those forces that education has set in motion.'—History of Education Quarterly

'Superb... the best book yet on Tudor education.'—Choice
(American Library Association) $11.50

Cambridge Texts and Studies in Education

The following have been published; other books in this series are in preparation.

Fénelon on Education

H. C. BARNARD

A translation of the most important writings of Archbishop Fénelon illustrating his educational theories and practice. Introduction and notes. $6.00

Friedrich Froebel

IRENE M. LILLEY

A selection from Froebel's writings, specially translated, arranged to show the development of his educational doctrines. Introduction; bibliography. $4.75

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS

32 East 57th Street, New York, N.Y. 10022

Cambridge Texts and Studies in Education

