ONE OF THE SCARCEST
AND MOST VALUABLE EDITIONS OF

THE WORKS OF WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE

Edited by
JAMES O. HALLIWELL

London • 1853-1865
16 volume set

Library Bound . . . $1200.00

Private collectors have sought this great edition for over a century and very few sets, subsequently, have found their way into institutional libraries. Our reprint now makes accessible to students of Shakespeare what is indeed a compendious collection of notes and interpretation as well as the plays.

" . . . in 1853 [Halliwell] issued the first volume of his magnificently printed folio edition of Shakespeare, with notes, drawings, and complete critical apparatus . . . The edition was limited to 150 copies. F. W. Fairholt prepared the wood-engravings . . . The edition is probably the richest storehouse extant of Shakespearian criticism."

SIDNEY LEE, Dictionary of National Biography

"The most extensive repository of literary, historical, and archaeological information regarding Shakespeare and his writings to be found in any single work, and typographically, the most sumptuous edition."

A Handlist of Rhetorical Terms A Guide for Students of English Literature Richard A. Lanham

The terms include all the tropes and figures found in the rhetorical works of Cicero, Quintilian, and Aristotle; in the Elizabethan manuals of Peacham and others; and in such modern works as Sister Miriam Joseph's Shakespeare and the Arts of Language. One part of the book is designed for the reader who encounters an unfamiliar term and needs a definition of it, and the other for the reader who observes a particular verbal pattern in a text and seeks the proper name for it. Richard A. Lanham is Assistant Professor of English, University of California, Los Angeles. LC: 68-31636 192 pp $6.50

The Haunted Screen (L'Écran Démoniaque)

Lotte Eisner

This analysis of German Expressionist cinema is already established as a classic in French and German. The author studies the use of chiaroscuro so beloved to German film-makers, their special treatment of space and light, their bold employment of the "unchained" camera. She traces many supposed innovations to their roots in the theatrical tradition of Reinhardt. She also links the work of directors, writers, and cameramen (Lang, Murnau, Wegener, Wiene, Pabst, Mayer, Wagner, Freund, and many others) to larger developments in the turbulent Germany of the twenties. The book is an outstanding contribution to film history and a work of cultural history as well. LC: 68-8719 300 pp $6.00

Apples of Immortality Folktales of Armenia

Leon Surmelian

A gathering of Armenian tales selected and translated by the author from several scholarly collections. All the tales were originally taken down from the lips of unlettered peasants in the highlands of Armenia, notably in the villages around Mount Ararat. Mr. Surmelian is the translator of Daredevils of Sassoun: The Armenian National Epic. LC: 68-12420 320 pp $7.95

George Eliot's Early Novels

The Limits of Realism

U. C. Knoepfelmacher

Here for the first time each of George Eliot's early works is studied in relation to her total development, as Eliot herself explicitly desired. New attention is given to such minor works as Scenes of Clerical Life and "The Lifted Veil," and the discussion of the literary antecedents and surroundings of such major novels as Adam Bede and The Mill on the Floss brings to light many unremarked affiliations with the world of Milton and the Romantic poets and with contemporaries like Arnold and Carlyle. U. C. Knoepfelmacher, the author of Religious Humanism and the Victorian Novel, is Associate Professor of English, University of California, Berkeley. LC: 68-23005 320 pp $6.00

Facets of the Enlightenment

Studies in English Literature and Its Contexts

Bertrand Harris Bronson

The breadth of the author's interest is reflected in essay titles such as these: "When Was Neoclassicism?" "On Choosing Fit Subjects for Verse; or Who Now Reads Prior?" "Some Aspects of Music and Literature in the Eighteenth Century." "Personification Reconsidered." "A Sense of the Past: The Percy Correspondence." "Printing as an Index of Taste in Eighteenth-Century England." Mr. Bronson is Professor of English, University of California, Berkeley. LC: 68-56074 368 pp $8.50

Opium and the Romantic Imagination

Alethea Hayter

Miss Hayter examines the works of several users of opium, discussing them in the contexts of nineteenth-century opinion concerning the drug and of Romantic ideas about the creative imagination, dreams, and imagery, in order to isolate the idiosyncrasies of opium-influenced writing. Her findings should be of interest to a wide audience. Miss Hayter is the author of Mrs. Browning: A Poet's Work and Its Setting and of A Sultry Month: Scenes of London Literary Life in 1846. LC: 68-29700 350 pp $7.50

Expans'd Hieroglyphicks

A Study of Sir John Denham's Coopers Hill, with a Critical Edition of the Poem

Brendan O Hehir

This book contains a critical interpretation of Coopers Hill, a definitive edition of its several texts, and a detailed analysis of its initial conception and subsequent revisions. But the unique feature of the book is Mr. O Hehir's collation and analysis of the poem's four main phases of development, which he examines in relation to Denham's life and the historical circumstances of their composition, including contemporary events. LC: 68-27163 304 pp $7.50

Harmony from Discords

A Life of Sir John Denham

Brendan O Hehir

Famous in his own time as the poet who wrote Coopers Hill, Sir John Denham was also a brilliant wit, a royalist propagandist, an unsuccessful garrison commander, an espionage agent, a royalist conspirator, and subsequently, a notorious cuckold and madman. Chiefly a literary biography in that it explores each of Denham's works and assigns it to the period and circumstances of its composition, this book will be a necessary companion to the explication of Coopers Hill. LC: 68-27162 288 pp $7.50

Lemuel Gulliver's Mirror for Man

W. B. Carnochan

This is the first extended study of Gulliver's Travels to appear in more than forty years. It reviews the philosophical doubts of the Augustans about the nature of man, doubts now recognized as a major force behind Swift's satire; it examines Augustan satiric theory and its Continental background; it treats the Travels as an example of a conventional form, the "satire on man" and it argues that in Book IV what seem to be contradictory truths are in fact simultaneously in force. LC: 68-26524 224 pp $6.50

Conrad's Short Fiction

Lawrence Graver

In this study, Lawrence Graver provides the most complete and authoritative account of Conrad's development as a short-story writer. To illuminate the major stories, he examines "Youth," "Heart of Darkness," "Amy Foster," "The Secret Sharer," and "The Shadow-Line" in the light of ideas expressed by Conrad in a forgotten letter of 1901. By investigating Conrad's method of publishing his stories, he shows how the lesser tales were compromised by Conrad's need to provide high-paying magazines with stories of moderate length and simplicity. Lawrence Graver is Associate Professor of English, Williams College. 300 pp $7.00

Substance and Structure of Language

Lectures Delivered Before the Linguistic Institute of the Linguistic Society of America, University of California, Los Angeles, June 17-August 12, 1966

Edited by Jaan Puhvel

Focusing upon current linguistic issues, this collection of lectures pays particular attention to the theoretical implications of interdisciplinary ("metalinguistic") approaches on the one hand, and to various facets of comparative and historical linguistics on the other. Published under the auspices of the Center for Research in Languages and Linguistics, University of California, Los Angeles, LC: 68-25138 224 pp $7.00

The Dragon in the Gate

Studies in the Poetry of G. M. Hopkins

Elisabeth Schneider

In this study Miss Schneider reassesses Hopkins' poetry and presents a more balanced estimate of its poetic achievement. Miss Schneider discusses the evolution of his unique poetic rhythms, the influences of other poets on his work, the roots of his apparent obscurity, and the role that his deep commitment to Catholicism played in shaping his art. In addition the author provides new readings of such important poems as "The Wreck of the Deutschland" and "The Windhover" that are remarkable for their insight and erudition. Elisabeth Schneider is a Lecturer in the Department of English at the University of California, Santa Barbara. LC: 68-31434 200 pp $4.75

Principles of Phonology

N. S. Trubetzkoy

Translated by Christiane A. N. Baltaxe

Since its original publication in 1938, Trubetzkoy's classic treatise Grundzüge der Phonologie has been regarded as one of the crucial works in twentieth-century linguistics. Its impact is widely felt in America, where Trubetzkoy's chief collaborator, Roman Jakobson, has been a powerful influence on linguistic science for the past two decades. Appendixes include articles on phonology and linguistic geography, on morphophonology, and Trubetzkoy's autobiographical notes as told to Jakobson. LC: 68-16112 384 pp $12.00

The Novels of August Strindberg

A Study in Theme and Structure

Eric O. Johannesson

Although Strindberg is best known for his plays, only in recent years has the literary world outside Sweden come to understand the magnitude of his contributions to the art of the novel. This volume, the first study of its kind in any language, provides a general introduction to all of his major novels and assesses their importance in the context of world literature. Eric O. Johannesson is Associate Professor of Scandinavian and of Comparative Literature, University of California, Berkeley. LC: 68-29156 400 pp $7.95

The Notebooks for "The Possessed"

Fyodor Dostoevsky

Translated by Victor Terras

Edited and with an Introduction by Edward Wasiolek

According to Wasiolek, "The Notebooks are a record of false starts, errors, repetitions, and obscure groupings." What emerges is The Possessed, "... a difficult and magnificent novel . . . that engaged Dostoevsky in a three-year struggle between his heart and his political passion and between what he wanted to say and what he had to say." The novel tells us how well he succeeded and the notebooks tell us how hard he tried. Also available in The Notebooks of Dostoevsky series are the notebooks for The Idiot and Crime and Punishment.

1968 LC:68-26723 $12.50

The Notebooks for "Crime and Punishment"

Fyodor Dostoevsky

Edited and translated by Edward Wasiolek

The Notebooks make available in English for the first time a complete rendering of Dostoevsky's sketches, variants, opinions, and random reflections. Characterizations differ in important points from those given in the novel; information bearing on critical interpretation appears. Nowhere is Dostoevsky's concern with craft, style, and factual accuracy more apparent than in this unique record. Future editions will include The Notebooks for The Brothers Karamazov and A Raw Youth.

1967 LC:66-23702 246 pages, illus., $6.95

The Notebooks for "The Idiot"

Fyodor Dostoevsky

Edited by Edward Wasiolek

Translated by Katharine Strelsky

"These notebooks are extraordinarily interesting. They are also wholly necessary to any study of the complicated development and functioning of Dostoevsky's art."—Ernest J. Simmons, New York Times Book Review. Dostoevsky went through at least eight plans and many variations for The Idiot, which appeared in installments in The Russian Messenger. They show an author "feeling his way in exasperation and bewilderment." Still to be published are The Notebooks for The Brothers Karamazov and A Raw Youth.

1967 LC:67-25513 272 pages, illus., $6.95

Mystical Poems of Rūmī

Translated by Arthur J. Arberry

Jalāl al-Dīn Rūmī, a religious ecstatic who invented the whirling dance of the Mevlevi dervishes, was the greatest mystical poet Persia has ever known. The lyrics presented here are a selection of two hundred poems culled from the vast body of poetry which he uttered as accompaniment to the religious dancing. Virtually none of these lyrics has been previously translated into English. Arthur J. Arberry has been called dean of translators from the Persian and is one of the greatest living authorities in the field.

1968 LC:68-29935 $12.50

The Romantic Reviewers 1802-1824

John O. Hayden

The Romantic Movement created the image of the suffering artist, beleaguered by insensitive critics and a mocking public. How much of this image stems from popular misunderstanding and how much from the reviewers' attitudes is the problem to which Hayden addresses himself. Earlier studies made little attempt to confront the critical works themselves and were often prejudiced in favor of the poets. Hayden attains a greater degree of objectivity by evaluating both the literary works and these critiques.

1968 LC:68-16694 $8.50

Fiery Dust

Byron's Poetic Development

Jerome McCann

Fiery Dust is a study of the development of Byron's poetry: its central focus is the phenomenon of Byronic self-expression. McCann maintains that egoistic imperatives are both a stylistic and a thematic issue in Byron's poetry, and his study examines the operations and significance of those imperatives. Each essay contributes to the overall picture of Byron's development as an artist and, at the same time, presents a reading of the work under discussion.

1968 LC:68-55392 348 pages, $11.50

Matthew Arnold's Essays in Criticism, First Series

Edited by Sister Thomas Marion Hctor

These essays introduced Matthew Arnold as a critic and creator of controversy on the English literary scene. They offer a striking diversity of subject matter and include treatments of Heinrich Heine, Spinoza, and Marcus Aurelius. The complete text of the 1875 edition and Arnold's variant prefaces are included. The editor provides full annotation, textual history, and a fresh assessment of Arnold's stature today and in the nineteenth century.

Selected Poems of Fulke Greville

Edited with an Introduction by Thom Gunn

Fulke Greville was a Renaissance poet whose wide experimentation with the different styles of Elizabethan poetry produced rich love lyrics, ornate Petrarchan poems and religious poems with metaphysical overtones. Modern readers will be especially interested in his treatment of the themes of deprivation and despair, which paints a sixteenth-century picture of existential anxiety anticipating in a sometimes startling way such modern writers as Camus.

1968 LC:68-8587 168 pages, $4.75

Touch

Thom Gunn

"A paraphrase of a poem is always inadequate . . . Gunn succeeds because of his fine certainty of tone and the sober dignity of his language. Misanthropos, which occupies a third of the new book, is an imaginative achievement probably beyond the reach of any other living poet, and almost every poem in this collection shows the agility and subtlety of Gunn's mind and his ability to convey complicated ideas directly, forcefully, and with wit."—Julian Symons, New Statesman, London.

Giraudoux: Three Faces of Destiny

Robert Cohen

This is the first book in English to deal exclusively with Giraudoux's plays. Cohen demonstrates that Giraudoux remains a writer for our time, and presents him as a profound thinker and an engaged, deeply committed writer. Throughout his study, Cohen relates dramaturgical techniques to intellectual and emotional content. His book can serve as a guide to the theater of Giraudoux, and, taken together, the individual play analyses form a criticism of his entire dramatic work.

How do you say “foreign-language dictionary” in French, Spanish, German, Italian, Latin, and Dutch?

“Cassell’s”

Cassell’s bilingual dictionaries are recommended by more than 500 universities and colleges. Each volume is the standard reference work in its field—comprehensive, authoritative, and up-to-date. That’s why these dictionaries are used in so many schools, libraries, offices, and homes. Cassell’s is the foremost name in foreign-language dictionaries.

FRENCH*: “The New Cassell’s is a greatly improved edition... A truly modern reference tool in portable format.”—Rev. J. D. Gauthier, S.J., Boston College

GERMAN*: “A vast improvement in every way... more than ever the one-volume German dictionary.”—Harry Zohn, Brandeis Univ.

SPANISH*: “The translations are exact and correct... especially rich in Latin-American terms.”—Theodore Huebener, Fairleigh Dickinson Univ.

LATIN: “This book should be on the desk of every Latin teacher and seminarian.”—Robert T. Meyer, The Catholic Univ. of America

ITALIAN: “The most thorough, accurate, and up-to-date Italian-English dictionary for its size.”—Mario Pei, Columbia Univ.

DUTCH†: This newest addition to our list of foreign-language dictionaries maintains the same fine tradition of scholarship established by the other volumes in the Cassell’s series.

PROBLEMS OF LITERARY EVALUATION

Edited by Joseph P. Strelka

Well-known representatives of the major trends in literary criticism provide a cross-section of the various concepts and directions in the current evaluation of literature in this stimulating and useful collection of international essays. The contributions have been arranged for convenient comparison; they make it abundantly clear that, in spite of different points of departure and varying terminology, there are wide areas of agreement concerning more than simply the difficulty, necessity, and importance of the problem of literary evaluation. The latest volume in the widely-acclaimed new annual "Yearbook of Comparative Criticism" series. $8.75. Forthcoming

DIALOGUE ON POETRY and LITERARY APHORISMS

by Friedrich Schlegel

Translated, Introduced, and Annotated by Ernst Behler and Roman Struc

The Dialogue on Poetry is one of the most important of Schlegel's critical and philosophical writings. It comprises eulogies on poetry delivered by participants in a fictitious conversation, who represent the historical figures of the German Romantic School. Thus the Dialogue expounds the main critical ideas of German Romanticism and simultaneously provides a panorama of the early Romantic Movement. This first English edition of the Dialogue, which also contains a carefully chosen selection of Schlegel's poetic aphorisms, affords scholars and students in the field of Philosophy and in Comparative, General, and German Literature a new avenue of approach to European Romanticism. $5.75

LA NOUVELLE HELOISE: Julie, or the New Eloise

By Jean-Jacques Rousseau

Translated and Abridged by Judith H. McDowell

This landmark of the Romantic movement not only greatly influenced the taste and morality of the eighteenth-century reading public, but was also one of the most seminal literary works of its day. It is of inestimable value to the study of the Romantic period, the literature of the eighteenth century, and the history of ideas. $8.95

BAUDELAIRE AS A LOVE POET And Other Essays

Edited and Introduced by Lois B. Hyslop

Thoughtful essays prepared by eminent Baudelaire scholars to commemorate the one hundredth anniversary of the death of the poet. Each deals with a very different aspect of his genius and influence: his love poetry, his aesthetic ideas, and his relation to Manet and to Rimbaud. Contributors: Henri Peyre, René Galand, Marcel Ruff, and Francis and Lois Boe Hyslop. $5.00. Forthcoming

PERSPECTIVES IN LITERARY SYMBOLISM

Edited by Joseph P. Strelka

This provocative collection of international essays deals chiefly with mythical, archetypal, and esoteric symbolism in world literature: the mythical heritage in poetry, the relations between archetype and metaphor, poetic symbolism which derives from alchemistic, gnostic, or hermetic tradition, and the relations between mythos and logos. Through analysis of specific examples of literature, new perspectives are disclosed, concepts which bring new insight into the structure and meaning of the works under consideration. The first volume of the "Yearbook of Comparative Criticism" series. $8.75

DICTIONNAIRE DES CRITIQUES LITTERAIRES: GUIDE DE LA CRITIQUE FRANÇAISE DU XX^e SIECLE

By Laurent LeSage and André Yon

This work, written in French, provides an account of the lives and works of more than 100 of the most important French critics, a listing of their published criticism, and commentary on the work of each. Preceding the alphabetical presentation of critics, the history of French literary criticism is briefly traced from Saint-Beuve to the "New Critics" of today. $6.50. Forthcoming

BLACK MASKS: Negro Characters in Modern Southern Fiction

By Nancy M. Tischler

A major exploration of an important topic of Southern literature—the Negro—during the most artistically productive period the American South has known. Going beyond the older study by Sterling Brown on Negro stereotypes, Professor Tischler examines the changes apparent in the New South with its new, talented group of writers. She concludes that the modern realist, naturalist, or symbolist is interested in exploiting Negro characters more fully than were older, more romantic authors. In addition, as reflections of changing attitudes and social patterns, this material provides an interesting link between sociology and literature. $6.50. Forthcoming

DICKENS' USE OF WOMEN IN HIS NOVELS

BY DR. SYLVIA L. JARMUTH. Dr. Jarmuth presents a comprehensive study of Dickens' growth and change through the use of women in his novels. Through the perspective of Dickens' female characters, we are given a perceptive insight of the man Dickens, whose life and works have a spiritual unity that makes them inseparable. In analyzing the various novels, Dr. Jarmuth makes a searching examination of Dickens' style, his creative process, and innovations. As a distinctive feature, she emphasizes Dickens' recurrent themes, treating their development and interrelations throughout his career.

GEORGE ELIOT—NINETEENTH CENTURY NOVELIST

BY DR. SYLVIA L. JARMUTH. Dr. Jarmuth makes a penetrating study of George Eliot's life, tracing the development of her philosophy and expression of her thought. Presenting the problem of non-conformity in George Eliot's personal life, Dr. Jarmuth views the issues from a mature point of view. Using modern critical approaches, the author makes a study in depth of each novel, giving a succinct analysis of character development, theme, and style. Footnotes and extensive bibliography furnish guides for further study.

“O’Casey was a believer. . . . That was his strength as a writer. The fire was in his hatred. The strength was in his love.”

—From the introduction by Brooks Atkinson

The Sean O’Casey Reader

Plays, Autobiographies, Opinions

Edited and Introduced by BROOKS ATKINSON

“In his warmly admiring and perceptive introduction, Brooks Atkinson says of O’Casey: ‘He wrote the most glorious English of his era.’ . . . Anyone reading this vast collection of O’Caseyana must agree, without drawing comparisons, that Sean O’Casey as writer and man was as magnificently alive as any man who ever blessed a sunrise or cursed a blackguard. . . . Readers unacquainted with his autobiographical works will be well-introduced to them in the generous excerpts. . . . The magnificence of O’Casey’s prose is an eye-opener. His great and lesser plays are here as well. . . . Stories, little-known one-act plays, and essays round out a book that’s a colossus of Irish wit, humor, rage and yea-saying joy. Bibliography.”

Writing Prose:

TECHNIQUES AND PURPOSES THIRD EDITION

Edited by THOMAS S. KANE and LEONARD J. PETERS, both at the University of Connecticut, Waterbury Branch. This popular textbook, based on the premise that improvement in writing develops from the reading and analysis of good prose, presents selections from the works of a large variety of writers to illustrate the basic patterns, works forms, and structures of English composition. For their Third Edition, the editors have chosen a number of new examples and have added two new sections, Judgment and Style. Exercises are included.

Approaches to Literature

By LEE T. LEMON, University of Nebraska. For literature courses at the Freshman and Sophomore level, this book examines the relation of criticism to literature and provides an introduction to the methods and the writing of literary criticism. Through the study of five works—Keats' Ode on a Grecian Urn, Pope's The Rape of the Lock, Sophocles' Oedipus Rex, Shakespeare's Henry IV, Part I, and Joseph Conrad's Heart of Darkness, the author elucidates major approaches to literature: analysis of the work in context, analysis of the work in isolation, and analysis of the work according to various theories of literature. Then critical techniques used in one or another of these approaches are examined and applied. At the end of the section devoted to each work, a list of further possibilities for critical investigation has been included. Bibliography.

Elements of Fiction

By ROBERT SCHOLES, University of Iowa. For use in introductory courses, this short book presents basic concepts for the analysis and interpretation of fiction. Beginning with several chapters on the nature of fiction, the author then considers various elements: Modes and Patterns; Plot; Character; Point of View; and Language. Three stories are included: Guy de Maupassant's Moonlight; James Joyce's Clay; and J. L. Borges' The Theme of the Traitor and the Hero each with a commentary by Professor Scholes which provides practical application of the concepts set forth.

The period covered extends from Bennett's arrival in London to his acclamation for The Old Wives Tale, Clayhanger, and Milestones. Bennett's energy and wit are demonstrated in these 328 letters, 270 of which are published for the first time. $10.10

The Author's Empty Purse

AND THE RISE OF THE LITERARY AGENT

By JAMES HEPBURN. The calamity of authorship from Elizabethan times onward, and the limited and late success of literary agency in relieving that calamity, are Mr. Hepburn's subject. The focus is on the rise of literary agency itself, with sketches of the first agents, and accounts of the quarrelling among publishers, agents, and the Society of Authors that persisted until 1940. The book concludes with a report on the situation of the author today. $3.50

Milton

A BIOGRAPHY

By WILLIAM RILEY PARKER, Indiana University. Much has been learned about John Milton, his family, and his friends since Mason's monumental Life (1859-80), and this is the first attempt in eighty-five years to tell the complete story of the poet's life and work. The new biography reflects the recent scholarship, including the author's own research, and changed attitudes toward Milton and his poetry. The separate volume of documentation is very full, and a complex index is augmented by a finding-list.

Paradise Lost and the Genesis Tradition

By J. M. EVANS, Stanford University. This study first traces the development of the rich and complex tradition, out of which Paradise Lost emerged, from its source in the Book of Genesis. It then proceeds through the early Jewish and Christian writings on the Fall and the subsequent Latin and Old English poems on the subject, to the literary treatment of the Middle Ages and the Renaissance. In the last section this wealth of traditional material is applied to a close critical reading of Paradise Lost, emphasizing not only Milton's indebtedness to that tradition, but also his profound originality. $6.75

A HISTORY OF AMERICAN MAGAZINES
Vol. V, Sketches of 21 Magazines, 1905-1930

Earlier volumes of Mott's History won both Pulitzer and Bancroft Prizes. The author was at work on Volume V of his projected six-volume work when he died in 1964. He had, at that time, written the sketches of the 21 magazines that appear in this last volume. Mott's daughter, Mildred Mott Wedel, has prepared this volume for publication and provided notes on changes since her father's death. Included is a delightful autobiographical essay by the author, and a detailed cumulative index to the entire set of this monumental work. A Belknap Press Book. $15.00

MARION KINGSTON

THE JOURNALS OF CLAIRE CLAIRMONT

Last of the major documents of the Shelley-Byron circle to be published, these diaries present fascinating pictures of life with the Shelley family and an account of Claire's life in Russia during the Decembrist uprising. The editor provides all that is needed to place the journals in their historical setting. Illus. $10.00

G. P. V. AKRIGG

SHAKESPEARE AND THE EARL OF SOUTHAMPTON

This book may prove to be the definitive work on the relationship between Shakespeare and his patron. Mr. Akrigg begins with a biography and character analysis of Southampton, and goes on to show how "in a sense extending far beyond financial aid . . . Southampton contributed to the process by which Shakespeare became Shakespeare." $6.00

WILLIAM COWPER

VERSE AND LETTERS

The poetry and letters of this 18th-century poet receive a full presentation in the most recent volume in The Reynard Library. Cowper's letters, some previously unpublished, are among the most entertaining in the English language, and provide new insights into his personality. The Reynard Library. $9.50

PROVERBS, SENTENCES AND PROVERBIAL
PHRASES FROM ENGLISH WRITINGS
BEFORE 1500

In collecting the materials for this compilation over a period of 45 years, B. J. Whiting combed the surviving texts of Old and Middle English. Certain books written later than 1500 are also included, and John Heywood, the first great assembler of English proverbs, is represented by the sayings he compiled. A Belknap Press Book. $25.00

QUEST FOR THE NECESSARY
W. H. Auden and the Dilemma of Divided Consciousness

In this full-length treatment of Auden's entire body of poetry, Mr. Greenberg systematically demonstrates the essential continuity and intellectual coherence of Auden's development. His analysis both corrects some misconceptions concerning Auden's beliefs and opens his work to a new level of study and understanding. $5.95

HEROIC LOVE
Studies in Sidney and Spenser

In this book Mr. Rose analyzes the treatment of love in Sidney's Arcadia and Spenser's The Faerie Queen. The author begins with an examination of Elizabethan attitudes toward love and marriage and, in the sections that follow, provides original and lucid discussions of a central theme in these epics. $4.75

NEIDHART VON REUENTAL
Geschichte der Forschung und Bibliographie

This detailed study of the first German poet to use rustic life as a literary subject presents a summary, in German, of scholarly research on Neidhart (ca. 1190-1237), and includes an annotated bibliography covering research done on all aspects of Neidhart from 1749 to 1965. Harvard Germanic Studies, 4. $10.00

Reading for Rhetoric: Applications to Writing
Second Edition

By Caroline Shrodes, Clifford Josephson, and James R. Wilson,
all of San Francisco State College

Concentrating on the discipline of writing, the second edition of this book contains twenty-four new readings, most by twentieth-century authors. The selections are organized in eight sections, each emphasizing one major rhetorical concept. In this edition, a brief introductory passage defining the concept and relating it to the readings that follow, precedes each section. Each of the selections is followed by exercises which require the student to examine the purpose, structure, diction and tone of the selection.
1967, 594 pages, paper, $3.50

The Search for Self:
A Freshman Reader

By Jacqueline Major,
San Diego Mesa College

These essays deal with the paramount issue confronting today's freshman student: his struggle for self-discovery and identity. Each essay dramatizes a particular aspect of this struggle, such as the student rebellion, the use of drugs, the "God is Dead" philosophy, and status-seeking. More than half the essays have not previously been anthologized. Each essay is accompanied by a short overview: discussion questions; questions on rhetoric and vocabulary; theme topics, term paper suggestions; and a bibliography for further research.
1968, 452 pages, paper, $3.95

Modern Essays:
A Rhetorical Approach
Second Edition

By James G. Hepburn and
Robert A. Greenberg,
Queens College of
The City University of New York

In this new Second Edition the student gains a clear view of the skills at work in good expository prose. Each section of the text, representing one of five rhetorical types, contains an introductory discussion and, following each essay, a series of questions that illuminate the techniques employed. Writers appearing in the book for the first time include Auden, Baldwin, Gerald Durrell, Eiseley, Jarrell, Lang, McCarthy, Mailer, Maugham, and Priestley.
1968, 443 pages, paper, $3.75

Reading for Understanding: Fiction, Drama, Poetry

By Caroline Shrodes, Justine
Van Gundy, and Joel Dorius,
all, San Francisco State College

This is a one-volume introduction to literature, containing a selective sampling of the principal types of creative writing. Most selections, including all poems, are from English and American literature; translations from classical Greek, Russian, German, Norwegian, and French appear in the Fiction and Drama sections. The Poetry section permits intensive study of the sonnet (forty-five examples), and allows detailed examination of the work of W. B. Yeats (nineteen poems). The Instructor's Manual contains questions, topics for writing analyses, and interpretive notes and comments.

MISE EN TRAIN Première année de français

par
Michel Benamou
dialogues originaux de
Eugène Ionesco

This really new textbook for beginning college students of French combines the imaginative talent of Eugène Ionesco with a systematic approach to the structure of contemporary French language. At the heart of each of the 20 chapters is a piece, usually in dialogue form, specially written for the book by Eugène Ionesco.

Each Ionesco piece is a small work of art, yet it is written in order to illustrate specific structures and vocabulary for English-speaking students. On this motivational foundation Michel Benamou has built a series of lessons that combine high interest level and a light touch with the latest techniques of linguistic analysis. The Textbook is designed for oral work and reading. It is liberally illustrated with photographs and drawings by Justin Grégoire.

A separate Workbook contains grammatical explanations in English, written exercise material, and vocabulary. The Tapes include recordings of the Ionesco pieces made in Paris by actors who have worked with him for years in the theater.

A NEW ANTHOLOGY

in two units and in three:

AMERICAN LITERATURE

Tradition and Innovation

By Harrison Meserole, Pennsylvania State University

Walter Sutton, Syracuse University

Brom Weber, University of California, Davis

The first anthology to provide both depth and breadth of representation to major American writing with all important "teaching documents" and the fresh pieces that show the full dimensions of the great writers.

The first comprehensive anthology available for two or three-term surveys as well as for period courses.

The first two-volume anthology to allow the teaching of Whitman according to preference, either in the first term or the second.

The first to include a balanced representation of quality writing by previously neglected black authors.

The first American survey anthology with every literary text the most authoritative available, thoroughly and conscientiously edited and presented complete whenever possible. For evidence of this, see our gift edition of Crane's Maggie.

A GIFT BOOK

Free to American literature teachers at this meeting:

MAGGIE A girl of the Streets

the first (1893) edition of the novel

by

Stephen Crane

A handsomely bound copy of this famous novel, with complete text now for the first time carefully edited in its original “unexpurgated” edition, will be distributed free at the Heath booth to this convention’s teachers of American literature courses. This fine example of editing and bookmaking, an excerpt from the anthology, AMERICAN LITERATURE: Tradition and Innovation, is offered to demonstrate the kind of conscientious editorial quality that teachers should expect in a modern text.

This first edition of the novel, which Crane issued privately in 1893 under the pseudonym “Johnston Smith,” was deemed too full of the raw language of Maggie’s Brooklyn slums to be fit for genteel reading. Today most readers find its language more faithful to the intent of Crane’s realism than the purifications in the conventional edition published under Crane’s name in 1896. In the spirit of modern textual scholarship, the editors of the American Literature anthology have included this fresh text with gloss notes and textual notes, here presented to you at the Heath booth in a deluxe gift edition.

AN APPROACH TO LITERATURE, Fourth Edition

Edited by CLEANTH BROOKS, Yale University; JOHN THIBAUT PURSER, Southeastern Louisiana College; and ROBERT PENN WARREN, Yale University. Stressing both content and form, the selections in this volume have been carefully chosen to show similarities and differences in themes and structures within each genre. 917 pp., $7.75

AN APPROACH TO LITERATURE, Alternate Fourth Edition

Edited by CLEANTH BROOKS, JOHN THIBAUT PURSER, and ROBERT PENN WARREN. A full-scale alternate to B, P, and W's current Fourth, this volume provides, in place of the section on discursive prose, additional plays of contemporary dramatists (Beckett, Ionesco, Anouilh, Camus) as well as analyses of Endgame, The Chairs, and The Zoo Story. An appendix on "Criticism and the Writing of Papers." 888 pp., $7.50

LITERATURE IN CRITICAL PERSPECTIVES: An Anthology

Edited by WALTER K. GORDON, Rutgers, Camden, New Jersey. A revolutionary anthology for the first course in English, this unique new volume embodies the following important features: 1) Literary works are no longer grouped primarily under generic labels—poetry, drama, fiction—but organized by major critical perspectives: social, formalist, psychological, archetypal. 2) Each perspective is introduced by the editor, its tenets discussed by a distinguished critic or innovator, its limits made real for the student by his own experience with plays, stories, poems. 3) Questions, in the temper of one of the critical perspectives, follow each selection. 4) All selections are whole units rather than excerpts. 5) Bibliographies are given of the key books and articles that formulate and illustrate each perspective. 6) A novella (paginated for casebook use) shows the range of various critical evaluations it has inspired. 7) An appendix on "what to say about literature" instructs the less-experienced student in questions propaedeutic to any critical school. 8) A separate instructor's manual includes, for each selection, a précis of several major critical articles or books from all critical perspectives, as well as additional questions for class discussion. (59 poems, 16 stories, 4 plays, a novella, and 19 critical essays) 795 pp., clothbound, $7.75

THE POEM: An Anthology

Edited by STANLEY B. GREENFIELD and A. KINGSLEY WEATHERHEAD, both of the University of Oregon. Over 250 poems, selected on the basis of teachability and arranged chronologically from Old and Middle English to contemporary British and American English. Full apparatus includes introductory essay demonstrating the critical process in action on three poems; an appendix of critical views on three other poems; and alternate tables of contents. Suggestions for Instructors available. 420 pp., paper, $3.95

UNDERSTANDING FICTION, Second Edition

Edited by CLEANTH BROOKS and ROBERT PENN WARREN, both of Yale University. The first of its kind to use analytical methods for studying the short story, this book has firmly established itself as a means of guiding students toward an understanding and critical appreciation of fiction. 688 pp., $5.95

THE SCOPE OF FICTION

Edited by CLEANTH BROOKS and ROBERT PENN WARREN. An abridgement of Understanding Fiction, Second Edition, this text is designed specifically for a course in fiction that occupies a relatively short part of the year. 336 pp., $3.25

DRAMA & DISCUSSION

Edited by STANLEY A. CLAYES, Loyola University (Chicago). Fourteen plays, arranged chronologically and thematically from the Greeks to the absurdists, with discussions of the plays by important critics. Suggestions for Instructors available. 651 pp., paper, $4.95

DRAMA: Principles & Plays

Edited by THEODORE W. HATLEN, University of California, Santa Barbara. An introduction to the nature of drama, its origins, forms, and characteristics, this text presents twelve plays, each of which is an important landmark in dramatic literature. 522 pp., illus., paper, $4.25

EXPOSITION AND THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE: Introductory Studies

Edited by JAMES L. SANDERSON and WALTER K. GORDON, both of Rutgers, Camden, New Jersey. Designed to teach writing skills through the form as well as the content of its selections. Forty-four essays by authorities in linguistics function both as patterns of exposition and sources of information on aspects of the English language. 459 pp., paper, $3.95

CURRENT THINKING AND WRITING, Fifth Series

Edited by JOSEPH M. BACHELOR; RALPH L. HENRY, Carleton College; and RACHEL SALISBURY, formerly of Wisconsin State College, Milwaukee. For freshman English courses where a variety of good contemporary writing and maximum editorial apparatus are desired, this eminently successful text includes selections, both fiction and nonfiction, from significant periodicals and books. 416 pp., perforated, paper, $3.45

WORDS IN CONTEXT: A Vocabulary Builder, Second Edition

A. A. DE VITIS and J. R. WARNER, both of Purdue University. Highly successful in its first edition, this book presents college-level vocabulary in the context of modern essays rather than word lists. Additional essays and several new diagnostic tests are contained in the second edition. 333 pp., paper, $2.95

TOWARD BETTER READING SKILL, Third Edition

Edited by RUSSELL COSPER and E. GLENN GRIFFIN, both of Purdue University. Widely and steadily accepted for more than a decade, this book is designed for college and adult readers whose reading ability is average or above average. Ten brief but pointed discussions on the reading process help formulate effective habits, and progress tests measure student improvement during the term. 297 pp., paper, $2.95

BACKGROUNDS OF AMERICAN LITERARY THOUGHT, Second Edition

ROD W. HORTON, Temple Buell College; and HERBERT W. EDWARDS, New York University. This celebrated text analyzes the impact upon American writers of the theological, philosophical, sociological, and economic ideas that have exerted the greatest influence on the growth and development of the United States from colonial days to the present. 538 pp., paper, $2.45

CREATIVE WRITING & REWRITING: Contemporary American Novelists at Work

Edited by JOHN KUEHL, New York University. Treating systematically a wide range of writing problems from the simple to the complex, this anthology is devoted to a comparison of earlier drafts of manuscripts with their published versions. 308 pp., illus., paper, $3.95

THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE: A Historical Reader

Edited by A. G. RIGG, University of Toronto. In two parts, the first showing how 20 passages (biblical, classical, and early medieval) have been translated in 1000, 1400, 1600, and 1950; the second, in 12 passages, illustrating modern "free" translation. Extensive introduction and linguistic notes as aids to analysis. 224 pp., paper, $3.95

A LITERARY HISTORY OF ENGLAND, Second Edition

Edited by ALBERT C. BAUGH, University of Pennsylvania; with RICHARD D. ALTICK, The Ohio State University; DONALD F. BOND, The University of Chicago; TUCKER BROOKE; SAMUEL C. CHEW; KEMP MALONE, The Johns Hopkins University; MATTHIAS A. SHABER, University of Pennsylvania; and GEORGE SHERBURN. The standard reference work in English literary history, this text incorporates the major findings of contemporary scholarship and contains a totally new bibliographical supplement through 1965. It offers a definitive portrayal of the entire intellectual, social, and political sweep of English life as reflected in the literature from Anglo-Saxon times to the present. Four-volume paperback edition: THE MIDDLE AGES, 340 pp., $3.25; THE RENAISSANCE, 426 pp., $3.50; THE RESTORATION AND EIGHTEENTH CENTURY, 455 pp., $3.75; THE NINETEENTH CENTURY AND AFTER, 566 pp., $4.25. Coming: A Shorter Edition of The Experience of Literature

THE EXPERIENCE OF LITERATURE Briefer Edition

Edited by LIONEL TRILLING, Columbia University

For one-semester courses in introduction to literature, this abridged version of The Experience of Literature contains four plays, eleven short stories, and approximately 150 poems. Professor Trilling's critical commentaries accompany two of the plays, three of the short stories, and eleven of the poems. The commentaries explain such elements as imagery, versification, and diction, the overt or implicit meanings of the work, or its moral, social, or religious ideas. Additional commentaries appear in the Instructor's Manual.

MODERN ESSAYS ON WRITING AND STYLE, Second Edition

Edited by PAUL WERMUTH, Northeastern University

This expanded and reorganized collection of modern essays gives practical advice on writing and style. The selections, now including several by linguists and humorists, define style, cover individual elements of style, discuss period styles, offer samples of how to write about style, and particular styles. There are forty short passages for analysis in the Appendix. All questions and exercises now appear in the Instructor's Manual.

Introducing The Transatlantic Series in Linguistics

The Transatlantic Series in Linguistics, under the general editorial direction of Samuel R. Levin of Hunter College, makes available important topics at a level easily accessible to the undergraduate as well as the graduate student of linguistics. Designed in a convenient paperbound format, each book has been written or edited by a leading specialist who concentrates on a specific area of study.

Some books in the series offer statements on major contemporary schools of thought in American and European linguistics or report on work in such fields as psycholinguistics, ethnolinguistics, sociolinguistics, and stylistics. Others are either translations of scholarly works not available in English or reprints of trend-setting works now out-of-print. In addition, these paperbacks also present critiques of past theories and statements or special descriptive studies, both current and historical, of parts of English structure.

THE STUDY OF SYNTAX: The Generative-Transformational Approach to the Structure of American English

By D. TERENCE LANGENDOEN, The Ohio State University

This book is an introduction to the generative-transformational approach to the study of the syntax of American English. It explains English grammar from two distinctly theoretical vantage points: that of Chomsky's Aspects of the Theory of Syntax, and what may be called a neo-Chomskyan perspective.

ANALYTIC SYNTAX

By OTTO JESPERSEN

First published in 1937 and long out-of-print, this classic study devises a system of succinct and, in part, self-interpreting syntactic formulas. By means of letters, chiefly initials of ordinary grammatical terms, numerals, and some arbitrary signs, it denotes the most important interrelations of words and parts of words in connected speech.

In the Continuing Tradition of Excellence

offers an outstanding list of textbooks for courses in English and in the Modern Languages, designed to meet the diverse needs of instructors in colleges and universities throughout the country.

The Harcourt English List includes a wide range of textbooks for courses in composition, language, and literature; the college instructor will find there a textbook to meet his particular requirements, whether it be for a handbook or an anthology, a rhetoric or a reader, a workbook or a sourcebook, a supplemental guide or a complete course. In the spring of 1969, Harcourt, Brace & World will publish fourteen new books for English courses, including an important new survey of eighteenth-century English literature and newly revised editions of two highly successful introductory text-anthologies, Laurence Perrine's Sound and Sense and Alvin B. Kernan's Character and Conflict: An Introduction to Drama.

For instructors in the Modern Languages the Harcourt, Brace & World college list offers an impressive selection of textbooks, including the Modern Language Association's own book, Modern Spanish. Whether your course emphasizes grammar, literature, or civilization, whether the level is beginning, intermediate, or advanced, we are confident you will find among these offerings a textbook to meet the special needs of your students. Among the modern language books to be published during the coming year are a new Student Edition of an Inspector Maigret detective novel, two new Spanish period anthologies, and a textbook incorporating a fresh, stimulating approach for German composition courses.

Several of our forthcoming publications are described on the following pages. For further information on these and other textbooks on our current and forthcoming lists, we invite you to visit the Harcourt, Brace & World exhibit booths at the MLA Convention. Our representatives will be happy to assist you.

EIGHTEENTH-CENTURY ENGLISH LITERATURE

*Edited by GEOFFREY TILLOTSON, Birkbeck College, University of London
PAUL FUSSELL, JR., Rutgers University
MARSHALL WAINGROW, Claremont Graduate School
with the assistance of BREWSTER ROGERSON, Kansas State University*

Comprehensive, authoritative, carefully edited, this important new anthology is a thorough survey of the prose and poetry of eighteenth-century England. The editors provide a balanced representation of major authors and lesser but important writers, as well as examples of all literary genres and styles of the period; a number of long works are given in their entirety. Professors of eighteenth-century literature will especially welcome the new texts that have been prepared for this volume; all texts are based on first editions, incorporating changes made during the author's lifetime and retaining the original spelling, punctuation, and styles for capitalization and italics; as a result, many works appear here in authoritative form for the first time. Extensive editorial aids include numerous detailed footnotes, a biographical headnote and bibliography for each author, a headnote for each selection, a general introduction, and a comprehensive bibliography. 1600 pages, $10.95 (probable). Publication: February 1969.

THE INTERESTS OF CRITICISM

HAZARD ADAMS, University of California at Irvine

Carefully organized and lucidly written, this new textbook comprises a basic primer of literary theory. Professor Adams introduces the student to the fundamental interests and problems of criticism, focusing especially on their relation to philosophy. He shows how each major problem has been stated by the major schools of criticism and how each school has attempted to solve the problem. Among the important topics covered are "Imitation and Creation," "Delight, Didacticism, and Therapy," and "Meaning and Being."

Paperbound. 224 pages, $3.50 (probable). Publication: January 1969.

CLASSICS OF THE RENAISSANCE THEATER

Seven English Plays

Edited by J. DENNIS HUSTON and ALVIN B. KERNAN, Yale University

This new anthology of Elizabethan drama contains seven of the most important and most frequently taught non-Shakespearean plays of the period: Tamburlaine, Part I; The Spanish Tragedy; Volpone; The Revenger's Tragedy; The Duchess of Malfi; The Changeling; and 'Tis Pity She's Whore. Newly edited for this volume, the texts of the plays have been prepared from original printings rather than from nineteenth-century editions and have been heavily annotated for student use. Professor Kernan provides a lengthy introduction to Elizabethan drama that gives the student a context for understanding the plays both singly and as a group.

Paperbound. 700 pages, $5.50 (probable). Publication: Spring 1969.

SOUND AND SENSE: An Introduction to Poetry

THIRD EDITION

LAURENCE PERRINE, Southern Methodist University

The most widely used text-anthology in its field, Sound and Sense combines a thorough, systematic analysis of the elements of poetry with an outstanding selection of poems. This new Third Edition retains the highly successful organization of the previous editions. The major revision is in the selection of poetry: 90 of the 275 poems are new to this edition, as are many of the poets represented—among them, James Dickey, Robert Lowell, Ezra Pound, W. D. Snodgrass, May Swenson, and John Updike. An Instructor's Manual will accompany this edition. Paperbound. 334 pages, $3.95 (probable). Publication: February 1969.

Charles M. Coffin's
THE MAJOR POETS: English and American

SECOND EDITION

Revised and edited by GERRIT HUBBARD ROELOFS, Kenyon College

An important new revision of an outstanding anthology, this textbook offers a rich, representative selection of the work of 36 English and American poets, from Chaucer to Robert Lowell. Approximately one-third of the material for this edition is new, and the revision reflects both changes in taste and the results of significant scholarship over the past fourteen years. Professor Roelofs provides more ample representation of the modern period: poets Wallace Stevens and Robert Lowell have been added, many other new selections are included, and, in some cases, there are new modern texts for certain poets. Footnotes have been thoroughly revised and expanded to enable the student to read the poetry with greater understanding and appreciation.

Paperbound. 608 pages, $3.95 (probable). Publication: January 1969.

CHARACTER AND CONFLICT: An Introduction to Drama

SECOND EDITION

ALVIN B. KERNAN, Yale University

This new edition of a highly successful text-anthology presents eleven major plays, chosen and arranged to provide a gradual introduction to the principal components of the drama. Professor Kernan discusses character, plot, and the world of the play, using two quite different plays to illustrate each of these components. A new concluding section for Part I, "The Nature of the Drama," is a consideration of the unique possibilities of the play as a literary form and as a comment on life. Part II contains four plays without commentary. Three of the plays in the collection are new to this edition: Riders to the Sea, The Skin of Our Teeth, and Tiger at the Gates.

Paperbound. 757 pages, $5.25 (probable). Publication: March 1969.

MODERN AMERICAN STORIES

Edited by BARBARA McKENZIE, University of Georgia

Designed to provide a study in depth of contemporary American writers and to aid the beginning student in writing his own critical essays, this new anthology brings together two stories each by ten outstanding authors: Mary McCarthy, John Updike, Herbert Gold, Philip Roth, Paul Goodman, James Purdy, Eudora Welty, Bernard Malamud, James Baldwin, and Flannery O'Connor. Each section follows a parallel organization. The first story is preceded by the writer's own statement on his art and is then followed by a critical essay—eight of them written especially for this book—as well as questions. The second story is followed by suggestions for writing assignments, enabling the student to apply what he has learned from the analysis of the preceding story. Each section concludes with an annotated bibliography of primary and secondary sources. With an extensive introduction.

Paperbound. 576 pages, $3.95 (probable). Publication: February 1969.

LECTURES LIBRES

REBECCA M. VALETTE

Designed to enable the student to read French with greater comprehension and enjoyment and to write with fewer guidelines and restrictions, this language reader is a skillful combination of outstanding prose selections and extensive editorial apparatus. A reading selection, with facing-page glosses and comprehensive questions, forms the core of each lesson. The selection is followed by two sections that help the student achieve freer expression: the first, "Vers la lecture libre," is a linguistic and stylistic guide to the passage the student has just read; the second section, "Vers la composition libre," contains instructions for varied writing exercises based on both the content and the style of the selection. Among the authors represented: Albert Camus, André Maurois, Joseph Kessel, and Sacha Guitry.

Paperbound. 240 pages. $2.95 (probable). Publication: January 1969.

GALERIE DE PORTRAITS CONTEMPORAINS

LUCETTE ROLLET KENAN

A stimulating reader with a fresh new approach, this book presents a series of twelve original profiles of well known, contemporary figures, ranging from Gabrielle Chanel and Jeanne Moreau to Le Corbusier and Charles de Gaulle. Written in a light, witty, highly readable style, the sketches contain numerous quotations and personal anecdotes, with emphasis throughout on what makes these people both interesting and prominent. Each profile is provided with side glosses and is of suitable length for one assignment; vocabulary-building exercises and an end vocabulary are included at the back of the book.

Paperbound. 224 pages, $3.50 (probable). Publication: February 1969.

Georges Simenon's MAIGRET ET LES BRAVES GENS

STUDENT EDITION

Edited by RENÉ DAUDON

This textbook edition of one of Georges Simenon's highly popular detective novels has been prepared as an effective new reader for the intermediate level. Professor Daudon has arranged the complete original text into manageable lesson units and has provided extensive editorial apparatus; linguistic footnotes; "Remarques" in which he explains customs and institutions mentioned in the text, or comments on Simenon's grammar and usage; "Gallicisms," or explanations of idioms; vocabulary-building exercises drilling these idioms; questions in French; and an end vocabulary.

Paperbound. 224 pages, $2.95 (probable). Publication: January 1969.

CINCO MAESTROS

Cuentos Modernos de Hispanoamerica

Edited by ALEXANDER COLEMAN, New York University

Under the General Editorship of ROBERT G. MEAD, JR.

This exciting new text-anthology presents 21 short stories by five great contemporary Latin American writers: Jorge Luis Borges, Julio Cortázar, Juan Rulfo, José Donoso, and Gabriel García Márquez. Each author is represented by enough material to permit students to examine his themes and style in depth. Professor Coleman provides a brief introduction for each author, critical questions and a suggested theme topic for each story, numerous footnotes throughout, and a comprehensive end vocabulary. An Instructor's Manual will be available.

Paperbound. 320 pages, $3.95 (probable). Publication: January 1969.

EN TORNO AL POEMA De Bécquer a Miguel Hernández

ADRIAN GARCÍA, Montoro, University of Bridgeport

SERGIO A. RIGOL, Mount Holyoke College

Under the General Editorship of ROBERT G. MEAD, JR., University of Connecticut

This new textbook offers a wide selection of modern poetry, with extensive guides to its analysis and understanding. The period studied is the 70-year span from 1871 to 1941, Spain's second Golden Age. In a concise introduction the authors discuss modern Spanish versification and analyze the characteristics and evolution of three modern poetic generations (the generations of 1898, 1916, and 1927). They then present representative poems by 16 important poets, with a chapter devoted to each. Through extensive editorial aids, including questions and critical commentaries, students are led, step by step, to an analysis and appreciation of poetry.

Paperbound. 256 pages, $3.95 (probable). Publication: Spring 1969.

REPASO DE GRAMATICA

OSVALDO N. SOTO, Iowa State University

A concise but thorough review of Spanish grammar, Repaso de Gramática is suitable for use either as a textbook for intermediate classes or as a later reference. Professor Soto provides complete coverage of the grammatical structures of Spanish, with special emphasis on idioms and irregular verbs. Each of the 15 units includes two dialogs, numerous oral and written drills, and an essay by the noted Latin American essayist, Germán Arciniegas. A tape program will be available.

320 pages, $4.95 (probable). Publication: January 1969.

BRIEFE AUS DEUTSCHLAND

JOHN E. GREAN, JR., University of Wisconsin

PETER MOLLENHAUER, Southern Methodist University

Designed to help the student develop flexibility and fluency in language skills, Briefe aus Deutschland offers a fresh, lively approach to the teaching of German composition and conversation. Written entirely in German, the book is organized in twelve units, with a letter from a German student to an American serving as the core of each unit. The German letter is followed by a wide variety of questions, drills, and topics for discussion. The final exercise in each unit is the student's reply to the German boy's letter; initially, the reply is carefully guided, but the student is given progressively greater freedom in writing throughout the second half of the book, in accordance with his growing ability to speak and write German. An organic grammar review, also entirely in German, provides an outline basis for—and is fully integrated with—the letters and exercises.

Paperbound. 256 pages, $3.95 (probable). Publication: January 1969.

A DISTINCTIVE NEW WORK —

English and Its History-- The Evolution of a Language

ROBERT D. STEVICK, UNIVERSITY OF WASHINGTON

- Emphasizing the systemic nature of language, the book contains ordered analyses and integrations of data rather than lists of facts.
- The language is presented in terms of component systems, and change in the language is presented as modification of persisting systems.
- Individual feature changes and systemic changes are carefully distinguished and correlated.
- A text on the evolution of a language, the book omits capsule histories of England and of the alphabet, literary commentary, and the pre-history of English.

JUST PUBLISHED!

Readings for the History of the English Language

CHARLES T. SCOTT & JON L. ERICKSON,
BOTH OF THE UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN

- A coherent linguistic survey of the history of the language, the thirty-one articles provide the student with an introduction to contemporary scientific views of language and to the principles and procedures of structural linguistics.
- The articles are ordered to present a systematic introduction to descriptive linguistics and to the details of linguistic change in English for students who may have had no previous experience in linguistic science.
- The text covers the principles of structuralism which are applied to problems of regional variation in English, and the effects of language contact on the history of English.

PATTERNS IN POETRY An Introductory Anthology

Edited by HARRY BROWN
 Midwestern University

JOHN MILSTEAD, Oklahoma State University

Designed to help the student who knows little about poetry develop usable techniques for analyzing poems. The editors demonstrate how to determine a poem's structural pattern and establish its first-level meaning. The text is then followed by review analyses and exercises and by an anthology of poems. 1968, 384 pages, softbound, $3.50

THE ACHIEVEMENT OF JOHN CIARDI

Edited by MILLER WILLIAMS
 Loyola University, New Orleans

The introspective, iconoclastic, humanistic, and world-affirming characteristics of both poet and poetry are explored as the editor writes, "Father, Italy, Rome—all died. So Ciardi was left to himself, and in that wood, he took the only path available—into himself and out to the world." Fifty-six poems follow. Modern Poets Series. General Editor: William J. Martz, Ripon College. Ready Spring 1969, 94 pages, softbound, $1.60

THE DISCOVERY OF DRAMA

By THOMAS E. SANDERS
 Miami-Dade Junior College

"When life becomes a bad script and doubt attends performance, the reality of great plays and professional roles is temporarily comforting....Of course, after the concrete, man must return to the abstraction he calls 'daily life,' but it seems somehow saner, somehow sharper in outline before the magic of organized drama wears off...."—from the Preface. Discovery of Literature Series. 1968, 637 pages, softbound, $4.75

STRATEGIES OF RHETORIC

By A. M. TIBBETTS, University of Illinois
With the assistance of FRANK MOAKE
University of Illinois

This brief, prescriptive rhetoric and composition text provides thorough practical coverage of the important elements of the writing process and of the thinking process which precedes it. The text stresses pre-writing, contains a full treatment of logic and argument, and emphasizes the six most common rhetorical patterns. It includes a separate chapter on sentence rhetoric and features chapters on classical rhetoric and the research paper. Ready Spring 1969, approx. 320 pages, softbound, prob. $2.95

LITERATURE AND RHETORIC An Anthology for Composition

Edited by JOHN SOMER
Northern Illinois University
JAMES COULOS, Northern Illinois University
JAMES WILCOX, Boston University

Fiction, drama, and poetry as well as essays and readings on rhetoric are contained in this anthology, with each of the three parts dealing with a key principle common to both literature and composition (unity, coherence, emphasis). Ready Spring 1969, approx. 480 pages, softbound, prob. $4.00

MODERN ESSAYS Fourth Edition

Edited by RUSSEL NYE
Michigan State University
ARRA GARAB, Northern Illinois University

This collection of 60 modern essays ranges in time from the beginning of the century to the present. New essays by Burgess, Wolfe, Updike, Bellos, and Camus are included in the Fourth Edition while the best essays from previous editions have been retained. A teacher's manual will be available. A Key Edition. Ready Spring 1969, approx. 544 pages, softbound, prob. $4.00

SEVEN ESSAYISTS

Edited by CHRISTOPHER REASKE
University of Michigan

Designed to introduce the student to the varieties of the essay form—classic to contemporary—and to provide topics and models for composition, this anthology of 90 selections covers a wide range of themes, styles, and techniques and represents the finest achievements in the form by seven of its major practitioners (Bacon, Addison, Johnson, Thoreau, Arnold, White, Baldwin). Headnotes to each essayist emphasize purpose, ideas, structure, and style while a general introduction traces the development of the essay from Bacon to Baldwin and discusses terminology and technique. Ready Spring 1969, approx. 512 pages, softbound, prob. $4.95

CONTEMPORARY ESSAYS ON STYLE Rhetoric, Linguistics, and Criticism

Edited by GLEN A. LOVE, University of Oregon
MICHAEL PAYNE, University of Oregon

This collection of current essays on prose style introduces the student to the study of style and through it to the disciplines of rhetoric, linguistics, and criticism. Most of the selections are from the 1960's and include the writings of Beardsley, Milic, Christiansen, Frye, Joos, and Hill. The text also features stylistic analyses of the prose of Jonathan Swift and John F. Kennedy (with original texts). Ready for MLA, approx. 320 pages, softbound, prob. $3.75

AT LENGTH

Twenty Long Essays for Composition

Edited by CHARLES SANDERS
University of Illinois
ROBIN R. RICE, University of Illinois

Introducing the student to the problems of composition as they appear in the long essay form and providing him with models of the various rhetorical modes and techniques, the essays in this collection cover the time from Plato to the present and deal with a variety of subjects. An instructor's manual is available. 1968, 448 pages, softbound, $3.75

TEACHING LITERATURE TO ADOLESCENTS: PLAYS

By ALAN HOWES, University of Michigan

A text for the teacher or future teacher dealing with drama on the stage, in movies, and on television. Among the problems considered are helping the student visualize staging, dealing with Shakespearean language, including the appropriate amount of historical material, understanding the special nature of tragedy, and discussing form and dramatic issues in the classroom. Two television plays are reproduced in full, and appendices include interviews with Rod Serling and Arthur Miller. 1968, 192 pages, softbound, $1.95

TEACHING LITERATURE TO ADOLESCENTS: SHORT STORIES

By STEPHEN DUNNING, University of Michigan

This practical approach to teaching literature includes the short stories "The Princess and the Tin Box," "After You, My Dear Alphonse," "The Chaser," "Appointment with Love," and "Game." Essays by Roald Dahl and John Schaefer provide specific suggestions for the teacher, with the authors' stories "The Landlady," "Taste," "Shane," and "Jacob" used for illustrative purposes. 1968, 176 pages, softbound, $1.95

By PORTER G. PERRIN

KARL W. DYKEMA, Youngstown University

WILMA R. EBBITT, The University of Chicago

The Diamond Printing is an innovation designed to keep the WRITER'S GUIDE AND INDEX TO ENGLISH current and correct. Corrections of errors and inconsistencies in style, new titles for references, revisions in usage, and revision of the General Index are included. 1968, 927 pages, $6.95

PATTERNS FOR PROSE WRITING

From Notes to Theme

By NELLE FRANCIS

Louisiana Polytechnic Institute

J. WARREN SMITH, Texas Christian University

This brief composition text teaches the student to use the four basic patterns of prose—description, exposition, argumentation, and narration—through the analysis and imitation of representative models. Models are generally chosen from the work of writers familiar to the student, including George Plimpton, Truman Capote, John Kenneth Galbraith, John F. Kennedy, and Dan Jacobson. Ready Spring 1969, approx. 320 pages, softbound, prob. $3.50

FIRST FRENCH

le français non sans peine

Revised Edition

By PAUL BARRETTE, University of Illinois

THEODORE BRAUN

University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee

The 30 lessons in this revision effectively integrate the audio-lingual and grammar-centered approaches to language study and are especially valuable when supplemented by the available tape program, workbook, and instructor's manual. The revised text contains review lessons, more exercises (oral and written), simplified explanations and definitions of grammatical concepts, and dialogues which are gradually replaced in later chapters by increasingly difficult narratives. Ready late Spring 1969, approx. 512 pages, illus., prob. $6.50

JETZT LESEN WIR!

Um besser zu hören, um besser zu sprechen,
um besser zu schreiben

Revised Edition

By JOHN J. MULLIGAN, Villanova University

Ten contemporary stories by authors from Mann to Lenz are featured in this intermediate text. Exercises follow each story, and copious German-English and German-German annotations on every page facilitate immediate reading comprehension. Also included is a grammatical survey consisting of ten chapters, each of which is directly related in vocabulary, idioms, examples, and exercises to one or two of the stories. Supplementary tapes will be available. Ready late Spring 1969, approx. 288 pages, softbound, prob. $4.50

Announcing two new Series

Modes of Literature Series

Edited by Ashley Brown and John L. Kimmey, both of the University of South Carolina

Five volumes have just been published, in tragedy, comedy, tragicomedy, satire, and romance. The Series stresses synthesis as well as analysis, organizing stories, poems, and plays in an organic and meaningful way so that they provide a cohesive approach to a variety of works from American, English, and Continental literature.

The Charles E. Merrill Literary Casebook Series

Edited by Edward P. J. Corbett, The Ohio State University.

Casebooks which deal with a literary work brief enough to be read at a single sitting. Each casebook includes an introduction, an accurate text of the literary piece, a collection of critical articles on the piece, a list of suggested topics for short and for longer papers, a selected bibliography of additional readings, and directions for documenting a research paper. Published or in production:

Epithalamion, Robert Beum, Nebraska Wesleyan University • Young Goodman Brown, Thomas E. Connolly, SUNY at Buffalo • The Rape of the Lock, Robert McHenry, Jr. and David Lougee, both University of Michigan • The Windhover, John Pick, Marquette University • Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard, Herbert Wilmarth Starr

New in the Viking Critical Library

Malcolm Cowley, General Editor

DUBLINERS by James Joyce

Text, Criticism, and Notes edited by Robert Scholes, University of Iowa
and A. Walton Litz, Princeton University

In addition to the definitive 1967 text prepared by Robert Scholes in consultation with Richard Ellmann (with the same pagination as the Viking Compass edition of Dubliners), this new critical edition offers a wealth of material valuable to the student and the instructor. As background there is a section on the composition and revision of the stories, together with an early version of "The Sisters," a note on Joyce's concept of the "epiphany," and Joyce's revealing correspondence on the writing of the stories and the nine-year struggle to get them published. The critical section contains an editors' introduction and eleven essays, both on the collection as a whole and on individual stories, by Richard Ellmann, Allen Tate, Florence L. Walzl, Kenneth Burke, Brewster Ghiselin, and others. The volume also features comprehensive explanatory notes keyed to the stories by line number, a Joyce chronology, a bibliography, "Topics for Discussion and Papers," maps of Dublin and environs, and manuscript facsimile pages in Joyce's handwriting.

OLD ENGLISH LITERATURE: Twenty-two Analytical Essays

Edited by Martin Stevens and Jerome Mandel

The beginning student, who must devote much of his time to mastering the fundamentals of the Old English language, often is forced to neglect literary considerations. This book, in presenting interpretations of prose selections and poems which are frequently reprinted in standard readers, compensates for such necessary linguistic concentration by calling to attention the more important textual and literary problems confronting the serious student.

Ancient Greek:

A New Approach
by Carl Ruck

Intended for the beginning student, Ancient Greek presents selections from classic writers grouped according to theme. Several similar readings are handled at one time, allowing the student to recognize the various modes of expression used by the selected authors (Euripides, Sophocles, Aeschylus, Homer, Plato, etc.) and the relative successes or failures of one mode over another. This recognition comes prior to rule-learning and results in a more thorough understanding of which particular syntax will create a certain effect. Rather than the familiar vocabulary tests, Carl Ruck follows these theme groupings with basic reading comprehension tests, allowing the student to keep the Greek in terms of Greek.

Abstract Syntax and Latin Complementation

by Robin T. Lakoff

This monograph, developed from the point of view of modern transformational theory, examines Latin complement types and demonstrates that for part of the grammar of Latin the syntactic rules for postulating deep structures are similar to those of English, that, contrary to the view of traditional philologists expressed over the past two centuries, Latin and English do not differ greatly in their complement systems regardless of their superficial structural differences. The book also investigates the relation of Latin to the Romance languages (which it influenced) and to Greek (from which it borrowed).

Rabelais and His World

by Mikhail Bakhtin
translated from the Russian
by Hélène Iswolsky

François Rabelais essentially determined the fate of French literature, the French literary tongue, and, no less than Cervantes, the fate of world literature; yet, asserts Bakhtin, he has been the least understood, most enigmatic and isolated of the great Renaissance writers. This careful translation brings the critical work of a powerful and original mind to the English-speaking world. Bakhtin's analysis of Rabelais' Gargantua and Pentagruel as the consummate expression of a thousand years of folk culture and humor is as extraordinary as his grasp of Rabelais' difficult images and language is complete.

The Rise of Modern Prose Style

by Robert Adolph

Starting with the consensus that today's standard literary prose style evolved during the Restoration in the seventeenth century (McLuhan's 'linear' product of the 'print culture'), Robert Adolph tackles a central and provocative question: why did prose generally shift from the Elizabethans' expressive artifice to the objective plain style of the Restoration? Why did prose become prosaic, the useful vehicle of public communication? Adolph proposes a new theory to answer these questions in a fully explorative and well-annotated text.

English in a Decade of Change

By Michael F. Shugrue, Assistant Secretary for English of the Modern Language Association

Will English as it will be taught in the 1970's be different from that of the 1960's? What changes will take place? English in a Decade of Change is the first book to review and assess the innovations in the teaching and learning of English since 1958—a period of phenomenal growth in American education. It surveys trends in the preparation of teachers of English, describes changes in the English curriculum at all levels, and outlines new patterns of school and college organization which affect the teaching of English from kindergarten through graduate school. Every educator—teacher, curriculum coordinator, school administrator—will find this book a stimulating and instructive synthesis of the new trends in, and controversies about, the teaching of English.

Edwin Arlington Robinson

The Life of Poetry

By Louis O. Coxe, Bowdoin College

In a new critical biography of Robinson, his most important work and the qualities of life, mind and art that animated it are examined by one of our most competent critics. Eschewing fashions in literary criticism, this study explains how Robinson obeys, yet transcends, the exigencies of his heredity and personal experience, and of his belonging to an era and a region. It assesses Robinson's faults and values and attempts to explain why, although winner of three Pulitzer Prizes and the recipient of wide critical acclaim, Robinson has since his death in 1935 not won the reading and respect he deserves. It is the first of a new series concentrating on major American writers of fiction, poetry and drama — PEGASUS AMERICAN AUTHORS, under the general editorship of Richard M. Ludwig, Princeton. Bibliography, index and notes.

Satirical Stories of Nikolai Leskov

Translated and edited by William Edgerton, Indiana University

An introduction in English to the comic genius of Nikolai Leskov, the celebrated 19th century novelist and master of the short story—the most Russian of Russian writers. Included is a brilliant new translation of "The Steel Flea," and thirteen stories translated from the Russian for the first time. Each is aimed squarely at the weaknesses of the tsarist society; together they illustrate the range and subtlety of Leskov's technique. A general introduction provides a concise biography of Leskov, his literary development and the nature of his satire.

Existentialism

By Patricia F. Sanborn, University of New Mexico

Neither partisan nor abstruse, this is a clear, concise study of Existentialism as represented by the writings of Soren Kierkegaard, Martin Heidegger, Karl Jaspers, Gabriel Marcel and Jean-Paul Sartre. The author has organized her book around five major philosophical fields: metaphysics, the theory of knowledge, ethics, social philosophy and the philosophy of religion. Her discussion of each topic focuses on the ways in which Existentialists have reformulated fundamental philosophical questions, giving particular attention to the relationship of Existentialism to the history of philosophy—both in terms of its inheritance from the classical philosophers and in terms of the innovations it makes. This is the first of fourteen brief volumes in the new Pegasus series, THE TRADITIONS OF PHILOSOPHY, under the general editorship of Nicholas Capaldi, Queens College.

CONTINENTAL LITERATURE

AN ANTHOLOGY

Edited by DOROTHY VAN GHENT and JOSEPH S. BROWN

Engaging their perceptive talents in a consistent and successful search for the best and most recent translations, the distinguished editors of this new anthology have assembled a collection that represents the zenith of European literary achievement.

Selections range from classics of the Ancient World to major works of the twentieth century, from Genesis to Albert Camus. Translators include Vladimir Nabokov, Eugene Onegin; Robert Lowell, Phaedra; Marianne Moore, Fables—to mention only a few. The inclusion of several critical pieces, a feature designed to demonstrate the kind of essay resulting from the encounter between a masterpiece and a disciplined, creative mind, shows what criticism can achieve: Mann on Goethe's Faust, Santayana on The Divine Comedy, Jaeger on the Symposium.

Throughout, the editors have prepared excellent notes which clarify ambiguities and lead the student beyond generalities concerning the meaning and significance of each selection.

SEVENTEENTH CENTURY ENGLISH POETRY

Edited by JOHN T. SHAWCROSS and RONALD D. EMMA

Sixteen poets are represented by selections covering all periods and styles of their careers. Annotation is exceptionally full, emphasizing the literary rather than biographical or historical qualities of the material. Introductions and bibliographies have been included and most poems, including longer ones, are complete.

Theatre in America

The Impact of Economic Forces, 1870-1967

By JACK POGGI. In this lively narrative, the author traces two closely related economic trends that have affected the quality of American drama: centralization of production in New York City and the decline in theatrical activity since the 1920's. In telling the story, Mr. Poggi presents, for the first time, a detailed history of the Off-Broadway and Off Off-Broadway theater, along with a description of the development, decline, and resurgence of the resident theater movement.

The Dialectical Temper

The Rhetorical Art of Robert Browning

By W. DAVID SHAW. This fresh approach to Browning criticism shows how the poet uses the dialectical weapons of a comic philosopher to simultaneously educate and entertain his readers. The authority and brilliance, often the sheer excitement, of Browning's thinking become apparent as we watch him overcome the rhetorical, dramatic, and dialectical limitations of his earlier verse to assume the role of a poet intent on modifying his audience's aesthetic, moral, and religious ideas and attitudes.

Notes for Myself

By MARIE NOËL. With a foreword by FRANÇOIS MAURIAC. Translated from the French by HOWARD SUTTON. This is the first English translation of the deeply moving journal of the gifted French poetess. "She is one of those poets, now almost nonexistent among us, who avoid the exclusivism of the avant-garde... Even her readers who do not share her faith or her hope profit by the love that has borne her, that has sustained her, that has inspired in her the songs with which she has assuaged her sufferings and ours."—FRANÇOIS MAURIAC, from the Foreword.

The Negative Imagination

Form and Perspective in the Novels of Henry James

By SALLIE SEARS. "Miss Sears's book seems to be absolutely first-rate: its critical insights are at once penetrating and reasonable, its argument beautifully sustained and lucid, its view of the major-phase novels an advance on anything done by other critics: at last someone has come to terms—in a way that wholly convinces—with the puzzle of The Golden Bowl, the most difficult and least satisfactorily explained of all of James's late novels. . . . As an assessment of the Major Phase, it seems to me an admirable book."—ARTHUR M. MIZENER

Matter and Stance in Milton's Poetry

By JON S. LAWRY. "For many, many readers—students in courses on Milton as well as their teachers—this reading of Milton's poems will be highly rewarding for it shows how any one of Milton's poems can be illuminated by a knowledge of all his other poems, and how, considered together, the poems reflect the integrity of Milton's vision."—SCOTT ELLEDGE

LANGUAGE AND THE NEWSSTAND: A Critical Reader

Edited by Thomas F. Van Laan and Robert B. Lyons. To aid students in developing the critical and analytical abilities essential for skilled writing, this critical reader for freshman composition courses offers students examples of familiar uses of language from such forms as advertisements, public speeches, newspaper items, and articles in popular magazines. With the aid of prefaces, theme topics, and detailed questions for each section, the student is asked to analyze four presidential addresses, eight-to-twelve articles each on the Genovese murder, the 1965 Watts riot, the firing of a baseball manager, the suicide of Marilyn Monroe, students and the draft, and four articles on male and female roles. 1968. 293 pages. Paper. $2.95

HEMINGWAY'S AFRICAN STORIES: The Stories, Their Sources, Their Critics

Edited by John M. Howell. This new research anthology for literature and composition courses contains the complete texts of "The Short Happy Life of Francis Macomber" and "The Snows of Kilimanjaro." Hemingway's significant statements of literary theory, the relevance of his personal experience to the stories, and the actual and literary contexts in which the stories occur are provided through selections from A Moveable Feast, Death in the Afternoon, Green Hills of Africa, Men at War, and "The Tanganyika Letters." Sixteen critical essays by eminent scholars provide additional source materials for literary analysis and research. With a guide to research and suggested topics for controlled and library research. 1969. About 256 pages. Paper. About $2.75

TRAGEDY: Texts and Commentary

Edited by Morris Freedman. A complete introduction to and survey of tragedy, including both texts and critical commentary. The unabridged, authoritative texts of the sixteen plays included are: Agamemnon by Aeschylus, translated by Louis MacNeice; Medea—Euripides, translated by Frederic Prokosch; Oedipus Rex—Sophocles, translated by Dudley Fitts and Robert Fitzgerald; Everyman, version by John Gassner; Doctor Faustus—Marlowe; Othello—Shakespeare; Phaedra—Racine, translated by Robert Lowell; Samson Agonistes—Milton; All for Love—Dryden; Ghosts—Ibsen, translated by William Archer; The Father—Strindberg, translated by Elizabeth Sprigge; Three Sisters—Chekhov, translated by Stark Young; Henry IV—Pirandello, translated by Edward Storer; Desire Under the Elms—O'Neill; Yerma—Garcia Lorca, translated by James Graham-Lujan and Richard L. RENAISSANCE DRAMA, New Series I

Essays Principally on Masques and Entertainments

edited by S. Schoenbaum

This volume initiates a new series of Renaissance Drama. While past numbers have been collections of miscellaneous essays, each volume of the new series will be devoted to a specified subject, allowing however, for a few timely and significant papers on unrelated topics. The current volume features essays by Sydney Anglo, Ann Haaker, David M. Bergeron, Scott McMillin, and others. 340 pp. $7.50

SAMUEL JOHNSON AND MORAL DISCIPLINE

by Paul Kent Alkon

The author defines the major philosophical, ethical, and psychological assumptions that inform Johnson's moral essays, and illuminates the nature of his special and profoundly original contributions to English moral philosophy. The study concludes with a consideration of Johnson's best work in relation to eighteenth-century views on the formal requirements of the periodical essay and the sermon. 220 pp. $6.95

BIBLICAL DRAMA IN ENGLAND

by Murray Roston

The twofold aim of this history of biblical drama is to provide a critical evaluation of the plays—from the mystery cycles, through Milton and Byron, to the work of Yeats, Lawrence, Fry, and MacLeish—in the context of their own times and to suggest the insights they afford into the religious history of the English people. 327 pp. $10.00

THE PENAL PRESS

by Russell N. Baird

Within American prisons, convict editors have for more than a century and a half produced some remarkable newspapers and magazines. To tell the story of the penal press—its history, goals, problems, and successes—the author has gathered data from hundreds of prisons and reformatories and has made an intensive survey of prison publications. The book includes a variety of examples of inmate writings, as well as a complete directory of penal publications. 210 pp. $6.95

THE MORTE DARTHUR

edited by D. S. Brewer

The present edition offers an integral portion of Sir Thomas Malory's great work, that is, the last two parts—"The Book of Lancelot and Guenevere" and "The Morte Arthur"—where the whole work, and Malory's own art rise to their climax. The text is taken principally from the Winchester Manuscript, and is modernized in spelling. York Medieval Texts. 166 pages paper, $2.50 cloth, $5.00

Judaism Despite Christianity

EUGEN ROSENSTOCK-HUESSY, et al.

This volume contains the famous battlefield correspondence (1916) of Eugen Rosenstock-Huessy and Franz Rosenzweig on Jews and Christians and their need for each other in the modern world. The English translation includes material omitted from the German edition of the letters (1936). Essays by Professors Dorothy Erimet (University of Manchester), Alexander Altmann (Brandeis), and Harold Stahmer (Bernard College) point to the relevance of the correspondence to current "death of God" theologies, the ecumenical movement, dialogical thinking, and the thought of Buckminster Fuller, Marshall McLuhan, and Dietrich Bonhoeffer, among others. January $7.00

A Phonological Analysis of Present-Day Standard English

BOHUMIL TRNKA

New Edition, Completely Revised and Updated

The original edition of this book, published in 1935—fully four years before the appearance of Trubetzkoy's Grundzug der phonologie—has long been admired as a pioneering study, but relatively few American linguists have read it, probably because it has been out of print for years. Of special value to scholars who are engaged in the study of universals of consonant clusters, conical shapes of words, etc., and in exact formulation of the constraints upon English words and morphemes. *Alabama Linguistic & Philological Series No. 17. Poetry: An Introductory Anthology

Hazard Adams, University of California, Irvine

This new anthology offers a variety of poetry, from Chaucer to the present, especially selected for Introductory Courses. While the emphasis is upon the variety of poems, most of the major poets are represented in depth. Of special interest is the selection of recent poetry which serves to illustrate the range of contemporary writing. A helpful Introduction by Professor Adams as well as meaningful glosses and notes are provided.

Eight Feet on a Book Shelf

We can't think of any better way to fill those eight feet—for any library—than with our brand new "American Short Story Series."

We're probably prejudiced, of course.

But it took Professor Clarence Ghodes, one of the finest scholars in the field, nearly a year to research this project; nearly a year to review, reject, and select—to finally come up with the most exciting, comprehensive, and important collection of American short stories ever put together.

Here you'll find most of the magic names that made the 19th Century and the American short story great—87 volumes by 61 different authors from Alcott and Aldrich to Bunner and Bryant... from Crane and Davis to Freeman and French... from Hale, Harte, and Hearn to London and Tarkington, Wister and White.

A truly rich harvest of Americana, this series...more than 27,000 pages filled with the best ghost stories, and war stories, and love stories, and surprise endings, and local color turned out over a hundred years spanning the start of the 19th Century and the first decade of this one.

If you're as concerned as we are about preserving America's past—and improving its future—we think you'll want this series on your shelves.

It comes beautifully bound of course, is printed on our special long-lasting acid-free paper, qualifies for Federal subsidy under ESEA Title II and NDEA Title III—and naturally meets BMI specifications in every respect.

And, one more thing: Anything Garrett sells you can return within 30 days for a full refund, or credit. Just something we ask that you keep in mind as you read this coupon.

Yes, your American Short Story Series does sound interesting. Please mail your pamphlet with full particulars.

I'd like to have the pamphlet, too, but please accept my order now, for:

Richard Harris Barham

by WILLIAM G. LANE

This is the first biography of Barham, early nineteenth century British writer and clubman known as Thomas Ingoldsby, author of the Ingoldsby Legends, since the inadequate one written by his son and published in 1870. New material is combined from many sources in this country and abroad—manuscripts, letters, notebooks, and diaries—including papers still in possession of the heirs. Among other subjects, the new material recounts Barham's relationship to Dickens and Barham's services to Richard Bentley, the publisher, and particularly Barham's role as mediator in the famous Dickens-Bentley dispute. Dr. Lane is professor of English at the University of Colorado and general editor since 1963 of English Language Notes. Bibliography, index. $7.00

Gonzalo de Berceo

Art and Meaning in Berceo's "Vida de Santa Oria"

by T. Anthony Perry

Gonzalo de Berceo, the first Spanish poet known by name, was the author of an impressive corpus of verse singing the heroic deeds of Christians. In his description and critical evaluation of Vida de Santa Oria, Mr. Perry analyzes Berceo as a unique literary craftsman, preacher, and allegorist. $6.50

Hippodrama

Enter Foot and Horse: A History of Hippodrama in England and France

by A. H. Saxon

This lively survey traces the development of one of the oddest and most colorful forms of entertainment in theatre history — the spectacular mounting of plays in which animals, especially horses, were given definite parts, sometimes leading actions. Detailed descriptions of many of the lavish productions are supplemented by delightful illustrations, most never before published. $6.75

Samuel Johnson

Johnson on Shakespeare

edited by Arthur Sherbo

Introduction by Bertrand H. Bronson

This first accurate and fully annotated edition of an important segment of the Johnson canon includes Johnson's Miscellaneous Observations on the Tragedy of Macbeth, his Proposals (1745 and 1756) for a new edition, his dedication for Mrs. Lennox to her Shakespeare Illustrated, the famous Preface, and essentially all his notes to the first and revised editions.

THE STRATEGY OF COMPOSITION

A Rhetoric with Readings

Clarence A. Brown,

Wisconsin State University, Eau Claire; and

Robert Zoellner, Colorado State University

This text treats the writing process as a careful progression of clearly defined skills. Part I develops the basic skills of the composing process. Part II develops the rhetorical theory of the larger patterns of discourse: exposition, description, argument, and narration. More than a third of the book consists of the authors' own presentation of the principles of rhetoric. Contains ninety reading selections—each selection accompanied by questions. Includes analyses of selected readings, summaries, and “Writing Situations”—projects in composition for which specific background information is supplied. 1968. 690 pages, $7.00

FORM AND THOUGHT IN PROSE

Edited by Wilfred Stone, Stanford University;

and Robert Hoopes, Oakland University

For freshman English courses, this anthology provides both an informal rhetoric and a volume of directed readings that will stimulate the student and aid him in developing his craft as a writer. Part I is mainly concerned with issues for discussion, beginning on familiar ground and moving progressively into more complex areas. Utilizing the knowledge gained from the first half of the book, Part II illustrates specific rhetorical modes of organizing and directing thought. The Third Edition includes many new readings on issues of increasing currency.

EXPERIENCE IN THE NOVEL: Selected Papers from the English Institute

Edited with a Foreword by Roy Harvey Pearce

The essays in this volume are concerned with the connection between novelistic creation and novelistic experience. In the words of the editor, they "try to account for the special ways we are (or should be) directly involved in the novels we read, and the particular conditions of the involvement." The book contains essays by George P. Elliott, J. Hillis Miller, Northrop Frye, K. J. Fielding, Francis Russell Hart, and Alan Trachtenberg. $5.50

New Literary History

New Literary History is designed to encourage a new rigor and sophistication in the study of literary history. The editors are not concerned with studies dealing solely with explication or self-contained history of ideas, but rather with theoretical or practical articles relating interpretation to cultural and historical contexts. They are interested, for example, in exploring such topics as the definitions of periods and their use in interpretation; the evolution of styles and conventions and the reason for their changes; the development of genres and their relationship to each other and to the periods in which they flourish; the literary history of forms sometimes considered to be extraliterary; and the interconnections between national literary histories. Although the focus is upon English and American literary history, contributions from scholars in related disciplines and from European scholars are welcome.

The Mothers in Faust

The Myth of Time and Creativity

By HAROLD JANTZ One of the most elusive mysteries in Goethe's Faust is the meaning of the Realm of the Mothers. The varying interpretations of the scene do not result from its ambiguity, Dr. Jantz maintains, but from the alien critical approaches to it. The author's study is the first to view the scene from an artistic-poetic perspective, which allows the meaning to unfold naturally from the text.

Melville's Thematics of Form

The Great Art of Telling the Truth

By EDGAR A. DRYDEN For Herman Melville, the absurd truth of living was safely encountered only in a fictional framework that does not mirror reality but protects the reader from it. Testing this theory of fiction against Melville's major works, Professor Dryden probes Melville's developing nihilism and studies its impact on his craftsmanship as a novelist.

*Comprehensive selections

Edited, with foreword, by STEPHEN BERG and
ROBERT MEZEY

"Here is a book of 19 American poets whose poems don't rhyme (usually) and don't move on feet of more or less equal duration (usually). That nondescription gropes toward the only technical principle they all have in common . . . we had in mind, among other things, to show a wide gamut of rhythmic styles and so we wanted the work of a few poets who have . . . in fact broken down the distinctions between 'strict' and 'free' verse. . . . We decided to cut across the schools, ignoring all feuds and other ugliness of literary life, and simply pick the best poets writing . . . and present them in rich and varied selections . . . we invited each poet to write an essay or statement or letter to accompany his poems, and most of them responded, talking about their notion of poetry, about open forms, and what they were doing, how they felt, what they considered themselves to be, etc. . . ."

Short Stories: An Anthology

Edited, with preface and introductions, by NORMAN NATHAN

Florida Atlantic University

The 32 stories collected here are predominantly American, from Poe and Hawthorne to moderns such as Welty, McCullers, and Bellow, plus some excellent new writers such as Virginia Moriconi, James W. Groshong, and Lee Yu-Hwa. Without attempting a chronological development, Nathan has arranged the stories so that one would lead to an understanding of the next. This is achieved not by beginning with simpler stories, but by bringing out a few simple concepts in the first story and then using these and additional concepts in the next story, building up to a full understanding of the major elements of the short story—Character, Plot, Theme. Finally, one inferior story is included so that the student's literary judgment can be tested, not dictated. The teaching apparatus is unobtrusive: 10 or 12 questions follow each story to allow for a variety of reasonable, thought out answers rather than right-or-wrong assertions. An excellent glossary of terms is included, plus biographical sketches of each author.

Faulkner: Myth and Motion

RICHARD P. ADAMS

The author's purpose is to define Faulkner's intentions as a novelist and to analyze the more important technical devices used to carry them out. Professor Adams considers the functional relation of the intentions, structures, and texture of Faulkner's work, and shows how the style, imagery, and symbolism support the strategy of making the motion of life visible by stopping it. $6.50

The Achievement of William Dean Howells

A Reinterpretation

KERMIT VANDERBILT

Exploring the consciousness and creative impulse of William Dean Howells, the author finds that Howells' personality reflected the mixed feelings of the American mind in an ambivalent and transitional society. By this interpretation he introduces a new and imaginative approach to the writer and his work, and Howells emerges as one of the major American literary figures of the late nineteenth century. $6.50

Shakespearean Meanings

SIGURD BURCKHARDT

The author does not discuss the plays as theatre. Instead he states: "This book is concerned with what Shakespeare meant. I believe that Shakespeare's plays, to put it bluntly, have messages and that these messages are discoverable, in fact, statable. . . . Shakespeare not only abides our questions, he tells us what questions to ask; he took infinite pains to be precisely understood." $8.50

Lady Blessington's
Conversations of Lord Byron

Edited, with an Introduction and Notes by ERNEST J. LOVELL, JR.

With Lady Blessington's book on Byron, all the conversations of the poet as recorded by those who knew him will now be available. The present text, based upon the London edition of 1834, uses a copy annotated by Byron's last mistress, Countess Teresa Guiccioli. February. $10.00

The Blind Man Traces the Circle
On the Patterns and Philosophy of Byron's Poetry

LESLIE A. MARCHAND, biographer of Byron, calls this book the "... most penetrating and best balanced of all the critical studies of Byron that I have read." This depth and balance have been achieved by a synthesizing approach which argues that Byron's poems transcend a collection and exist as a body of poetry with a consistent and plausible articulation. January. $7.50

Poems, Second Edition

Wadsworth Handbook and Anthology

by C. F. MAIN and PETER J. SENG

The continuing popularity of this flexible and well-balanced handbook of poetry derives from its many intelligent features—from its emphasis on the study of specific poems rather than on “poetry” in the abstract, and from its ability to show how a poem imparts an experience to the student. This is done through the analysis of words, images, figures, symbols, rhythms, sounds, tone, and, finally, the whole poem. 393 pp. 5 $\frac{5}{8}$ × 8 $\frac{3}{8}$. Paperbound.

Poets and Poems

edited by HERBERT GOLDSTONE and IRVING P. CUMMINGS

This successful anthology introduces the student to the study of poetry through the works of sixteen outstanding British and American poets. Each is represented by enough poems—about 20—to permit an in-depth study. This also gives the student an opportunity to respond to the “voice”—the sensibility and vision—of the poet. 1967. 414 pp. 5 $\frac{5}{8}$ × 8 $\frac{3}{8}$. Clothbound/Paperbound.

Poetry: A Thematic Approach

edited by SAMUEL H. HENDERSON and JAMES W. LEE

The poems of this new anthology are grouped under thematic headings; this approach allows the instructor to integrate the study of poetry with the teaching of novels, stories, and plays, and enables the student to see the broad parallels between poetry and the other genres. Representative explications of most of the thematic groupings are included. 1968. 396 pp. 5 $\frac{5}{8}$ × 8 $\frac{3}{8}$. Paperbound.

The Style of the Short Poem

by JAMES MCMICHAEL

Each chapter of this supplementary volume focuses on one aspect of poetry. To demonstrate that aspect a few short poems are analyzed in depth. The book provides a vocabulary for discussing the style of the short poem, and is meant to be used for about a week in any given course. 1967. 86 pp. 5 $\frac{5}{8}$ × 8 $\frac{3}{8}$. Paperbound.

Great criticism EXCITES,
INCIPIDES, ELATES. And it also
NETTLES, RUFFLES,
EXASPERATES. But it always INFORMS,
CHALLENGES, and ILLUMINATES.

Great criticism is what TCIs are made of.

Each volume in the TWENTIETH CENTURY INTERPRETATIONS series contains selections from the best modern critical commentary on a single major work of American, British, or world literature, and a comprehensive introduction to that work by an outstanding authority. TCIs can help your students learn to work with great criticism instead of relying on plot summaries, canned opinions, and gimmicky "study guides." Each volume: Paper $1.25, Cloth $3.95

Already Published. Twentieth Century Interpretations of: The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn • All For Love • Arrow-

smith • As You Like It • The Book of Job • The Castle • The Duchess of Malfi • Euripides' Alcestis • The Frogs • Gray's Elegy • The Great Gatsby • Gulliver's Travels • Hamlet • Henry IV, Part II • Henry V • The Iceman Cometh • Julius Caesar • Keat's Odes • Oedipus Rex • The Portrait of a Lady • A Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man • Samson Agonistes • The Scarlet Letter • Sir Gawain and the Green Knight • The Sound and the Fury • Tom Jones • Twelfth Night • Utopia • Walden • Wuthering Heights • A Collection of Critical Essays on "The Wasteland".

TWENTIETH CENTURY INTERPRETATIONS

and for another source of great criticism don't forget the TWENTIETH CENTURY VIEWS series

The 83 volumes now available in the TCV series each contain a selection of the most outstanding critical opinion on major writers of the world. While the TCI series features critical essays focusing on a single work of literature, the essays in TCVs cover many works by a single outstanding writer. TCVs offer perspective on writers, their work, and their changing status in an age of high critical intensity. Each volume in the series contains from ten to twenty critical essays chosen by the editor from periodicals, books and original writings; a one-page chronology of important dates; an annotated reading list; and an introduction by the editor drawing together and supplementing the views expressed by the contributors.

Each volume: Paper $1.95, Cloth $4.95
(Faulkner $2.45 in paper)

See the TCI series and the TCV series at the MLA Convention, December 27-29. They will be on display at the Prentice-Hall exhibit, booths 53 and 54 in the New York Hilton.

THE MUSIC OF SURVIVAL

A Biography of a Poem by William Carlos Williams

by Sherman Paul. A perceptive interpretation of Williams' "The Desert Music" — title poem from The Desert Music and Other Poems (1954), and among the most accomplished and remarkable works of Williams' career. With full explications Mr. Paul explores the central metaphor of Williams' art, thus striking at the core of his esthetic theory and providing at once the biography of a poem, of a poet, and of the act of poetic invention. An MLA Scholar's Library selection. 160 pp. $5.95.

THE ART OF WILLIAM CARLOS WILLIAMS

A Discovery and Possession of America

by James Guimond. This full-scale developmental study of the poetry and prose of perhaps the most authentic American poet since Whitman "establishes for the first time the unique significance of William Carlos Williams among the poets of his generation." — Sir Herbert Read. "A fine critical study of the poetry and esthetic theory of William Carlos Williams." — Library Journal. ". . . an exceptionally good critical introduction." — Publishers' Weekly. An MLA Scholar's Library selection. 272 pp. $6.95.

THE FINE HAMMERED STEEL OF HERMAN MELVILLE

by Milton R. Stern. Now available in a handsome paperback edition, this landmark study in Melville scholarship represents the first full-length treatment of the anti-idealism that is so large a part of Melville's metaphysical stance. ". . . a valuable contribution to the discipline of Melville studies." — Modern Language Notes. ". . . a brilliant portrait of Melville as empiricist, rationalist, and anti-Transcendental foe of the absolute." — The Key Reporter. 255 pp. Paper, $2.95.

FRANK PEARCE STURM

His Life, Letters, and Collected Work

edited and with an introductory essay by Richard Taylor. Known mainly through W. B. Yeats' occasional references to him as poet, scholar, and mystic, Sturm's significance for literary history lies not only in his friendship and lively, though sporadic, correspondence with Yeats, but in his early sensitive interpretation of Baudelaire, and in his role as a poet of the Symbolist movement. This biographical and critical study of Sturm assembles for the first time his major published works, and includes the Yeats-Sturm letters. 400 pp. $10.00.

The Creative Experiment

In a reissue of his book, first published in 1949, Sir Maurice Bowra discusses the work of seven innovative poets who might be said to have turned their backs on earlier Symbolist tradition: Cavafy, Mayakovsky, Apollinaire, Pasternak, Eliot, Lorca, and Alberti. The author's brilliant gift for criticism enables him to disclose the kernel of the life and thought of these writers, resulting in a body of criticism unmatched in its day and of lasting value.

William Faulkner, Man Working, 1919-1962: A Catalogue of the William Faulkner Collections At the University of Virginia

Compiled by LINTON R. MASSEY, President of the Bibliographical Society of the University of Virginia. Introduction by JOHN COOK WYLLIE, late Director of Libraries, University of Virginia.
250 pp., colored frontis., illus., index. 9½ × 10. L. C. 68-19477. $25.00

While not a bibliography, this catalogue is the most comprehensive and complete record available today of William Faulkner's published work and relevant papers. Included are first editions of Faulkner's novels, essays, poems, and stories published in English as well as in many foreign languages. The catalogue also lists letters, manuscripts, and other Faulkner materials as well as numerous books and articles about Faulkner and his work. The illustrations include many facsimiles of title pages and pictures of Faulkner. This catalogue of the largest gathering of Faulkner materials in the world will be invaluable to Faulkner scholars and enthusiasts.

The Verse of Royall Tyler

Edited by MARIUS B. PÉLADEAU, press secretary to United States Congressman Joseph P. Vigorito.
xlv, 269 pp., frontis., facs., indexes. 6 × 9. L. C. 68-14026. $8.50

Marius Péladeau has collected for the first time the poems of colonial America's foremost playwright. Carefully annotated and edited, most of these 138 poems are reprinted from Tyler's unpublished manuscripts. Others appeared previously in newspapers and journals between 1790 and 1820. The editor also provides valuable critical analysis and a comprehensive biography.

Collector's Quest:

The Correspondence of Henry Miller and J. Rives Childs, 1947-1965

Edited, with an Introduction, by RICHARD CLEMENT WOOD, Associate Professor of English, Randolph-Macon College, Ashland, Va.
xv, 216 pp., frontis., plate, index. 5¼ × 8½. L. C. 67-28795. $5.75

J. Rives Childs, the author of important works on Casanova and Restif de la Bretonne and former ambassador to Saudi Arabia and to Ethiopia, first wrote to Henry Miller in 1947. There followed the beginning of a regular correspondence, from which has emerged a nineteen-year record of considerable bibliographical and literary significance. Miller, always at his best in his letters, has confided his attitudes toward his reading and his writing to Childs, to whom he turned for information about life in the Near East. Also included in the volume is a bibliographical listing of the important collection of Henry Miller books and manuscripts in the Walter Hines Page Library at Randolph-Macon.

Poetic Knowledge in the Early Yeats: A Study of THE WIND AMONG THE REEDS

By ALLEN R. GROSSMAN, Associate Professor of English, Brandeis University.
Pages and Price to be announced.

This is a detailed study of W. B. Yeats' The Wind among the Reeds. In addition, it attempts to answer the questions: How did Yeats understand his vocation as a poet? and What image of the poet's mind does Yeats' work afford us at that moment when he was most intimately in touch with the complex implications of inspiration? Since Yeats' life spanned the modern period in literature, this account of Yeats' deliberate reconstitution, at the end of the nineteenth century, of the poet's traditional role may also be read as a major and typical episode in the development of modern literature.

GREAT WORLD THEATER: AN INTRODUCTION TO DRAMA

Alan S. Downer. From a review by C. J. Gianakaris, Western Michigan University, in which he compares twelve paperback anthologies of drama published in the last five years. "A third anthology with fourteen plays stands out as the best of all surveyed. Alan Downer's edition Great World Theater: An Introduction to Drama (1964) is especially impressive as the most balanced text in terms of representative coverage by nation, era, and genre—without lessening the quality of the individual pieces. . . . Professor Downer's strongest suit is his play selections. . . . Nor should Downer's superbly perceptive and suggestive commentaries be passed by, since they are models of their type. . . . The fourteen plays included are so happily chosen, indeed, and the critical sections so effective that the teacher easily can build a respectable course around the single book, a feat probably impossible with any of the other collections."—College English. READING POETRY, SECOND EDITION

Fred B. Millett, Arthur W. Hoffman, and David R. Clark. Like its successful predecessor, this new edition purports to train young people in the intensive reading of literature. The approach is non-historical; the focus never swerves from the poem itself. Though the original organization of the book is basically unchanged, there are extensive additions, including a new anthology of some 200 English and American poems of all periods, with emphasis on the period from 1940-1965. 511 pages; $4.95 paper

COLLEGE WRITING: THE RHETORICAL IMPERATIVE

Harry H. Crosby and George F. Estey. This rhetoric-handbook reflecting the twin developments of the "New Rhetoric"—the classical concept of "invention" and the idea of a generative rhetoric—attempts to replace prescriptive and descriptive teaching with the belief that good writing grows from an analysis of the central idea, the writing situation, the nature of the writer, and some assumptions about his audience. In comparing King Alfred's ninth century translation of Boethius' Consolation with the original, the author persuasively argues that the Saxon king remolded Boethian views on freedom and order into his own remarkably coherent philosophical structure.

New Think Language Sets by Vis-Ed can help.

Not just cards. Not just records. A whole new audio-visual learning concept keyed to modern methodology in language instruction.

No English. No translation. Helps students learn to think language the way the natives do—by seeing, hearing, and associating.

They see language on 400 vocabulary and structure cards (more than half illustrated with carefully selected contemporary drawings).

They hear language on four 33 $\frac{1}{3}$ LP records (more than an hour of audio reinforcement with both male and female native voices).

Sets include 500 most used words and phrases. Antonyms, synonyms, interrogatives, prepositions. Idiomatic expressions. Problem words and phrases. Pattern drills. All presented with picture cues and sound reinforcement.

Most helpful to the beginning student from the very first week of class.

Save 50%. Fill in the coupon. Attach it to your school letterhead and mail along with your check or money order for $3.00. We'll cover return postage.

New Titles in Literary Criticism and Scholarship

WOLFE THOMAS WOLFE'S ALBATROSS: RACE AND NATIONALITY IN AMERICA by Paschal Reeves. Thomas Wolfe deliberately took on an epic task: to write a fictive history of this country, and much of what Wolfe depicts involves a remarkably full picture of the races and nationalities in the United States. Reeves examines Wolfe's changing attitudes toward the peoples of America—from his early biases to his later freedom from the narrow views of his times. $6.00

DEFOE DANIEL DEFOE AND THE SUPERNATURAL by Rodney M. Baine. Professor Baine deals with an important aspect of Daniel Defoe's thought and art: his belief in an unseen world and his employment of occult materials in his writing. Baine shows how Defoe makes serious use of angelic communion, which we now call extra-sensory perception, and "angelic converse" between the visible and the invisible worlds, as well as angels, the devil, and various apparitions. $7.50

BECKETT SAMUEL BECKETT'S MURPHY: A CRITICAL EXCURSION by Robert Harrison. This essay in criticism demonstrates the value of the diagrammatic approach to the explication of a literary work. A critical strategy is set forth, outlining the literary work as a product of history, art, and idea. Harrison then applies this approach in a detailed examination of the novel Murphy, and in doing so reveals himself as a perceptive and astute critic. Paper, $2.50

LANIER SIDNEY LANIER: THE MAN, THE POET, THE CRITIC by Edd Winfield Parks. The nineteenth-century American poet Sidney Lanier has often been misinterpreted by literary historians and critics. In his reevaluation Parks makes a sensible and thorough-going appraisal of Lanier's work. He shows the effects of Lanier's illness on his career, and judiciously assesses Lanier's contribution as poet and critic. $4.00

RENAISSANCE SOUTHERN FICTION TODAY: RENAISSANCE AND BEYOND edited by George Core. This symposium is a reevaluation of the Southern renaissance by three distinguished critics—Walter Sullivan, C. Hugh Holman, and Louis D. Rubin, Jr. It deals with the forces that generate this literary flowering; the influence on it of James Joyce and Sinclair Lewis; the work of Faulkner, Wolfe, and Styron; and the continuing relevance of Southern literary issues. $4.50

Forthcoming:

KATHERINE ANNE PORTER: A CRITICAL SYMPOSIUM edited by Lodwick Hartley and George Core.

AUGUSTUS BALDWIN LONGSTREET: A STUDY OF THE DEVELOPMENT OF CULTURE IN THE SOUTH by John Donald Wade. Edited with an Introduction by M. Thomas Inge.

Subject: French Teaching In Elementary Schools

We wish to bring to your attention the recently published program, FRÈRE JACQUES, prepared by the B.E.L.C. together with J. Bertrand, J. L. Frerot, M. Garnier, and J. Malzac, and designed to teach the spoken language as well as reading and writing; taking, of course, into consideration the fact that priority should be given first to the spoken language.

1) SOME OF ITS QUALITIES

- a) A flannel board on which self sticking "figures" (or silhouettes) and labels of printed words permit the adaptation of the visual aid to the various needs of the class. This flannel board is used in every phase of the French lesson (introduction to conversation, as well as structural exercises or "enacting" and to bridge the gap between the spoken and the written language). Additional figures are easily added.
- b) The vocabulary used corresponds to the word frequency list of the "Francais Fondamental."
- c) It is economical. (The language method may be used over a period of one year for only $46.50.)

2) CONTENT OF THE METHOD: 4 levels

Level 1—Collective Material:

visual case (1 flannel board—figures—labels of printed words for reading purposes—1 teacher's manual.) Price: $46.50
audio set (5 tapes)

—Individual Material (to be introduced only after the language method has been in use for some time)

Lecons de Lecture $ 0.95
Exercices de Lecture $ 0.50

Level 2—Now available: Content similar to that of first level

Level 3—To be available in 1969

Level 4—To be available in 1970

EMERSON'S "NATURE": Origin, Growth, Meaning

Edited by MERTON M. SEALTS, JR., University of Wisconsin-Madison, and ALFRED R. FERGUSON, University of Massachusetts, Boston

Publication of Emerson's letters and the recent editions of his journals and early lectures make possible a new approach to Emerson and a consequent reinterpretation emphasizing Nature's growth in terms of Emerson's own thinking and writing. A feature of this book is a section which lists or quotes in full his earlier formulations of passages first appearing in his journals and early lectures, plus a section of extracts from his materials. The text used is the first edition (1836) plus a list of revisions in the 1849 edition. Also included are critical comments on Nature, 1836-1961, study questions, a bibliography, illustrations, and accepted casebook apparatus. For advanced undergraduate and graduate courses in American literature.

THE SMALL TOWN IN AMERICAN LITERATURE

Edited by CRAIG G. SWAUGER and DAVID M. COOK, both Indiana University of Pennsylvania

A unique reader for freshman English or American literature courses, it contains 22 primary sources—short stories, plays, poems, and excerpts from novels, all by American authors—and all concerned with aspects of small-town life in America from the mid-nineteenth century to the present. Among the authors represented are Twain, Cather, Cummings, Lindsay, Robinson, Tennessee Williams, Updike, Sinclair Lewis, Masters, and Wilder. The volume contains a general introduction, headnotes, suggested research topics, sample thesis statements, a comprehensive bibliography, and accepted casebook apparatus.

FRENCH

LA FRANCE ET SA CIVILISATION

by JACQUES HARDRÉ, University of North Carolina

A brilliantly readable and mature history of French civilization, except for its literature, from its beginning to the present. The author deals with the geography and history of France, the people, their manners and customs, their political, social, and economic life, and their culture as reflected in the arts, sciences, philosophy, music, and education. Contemporary France is fully treated. Illustrations, charts, and maps

GERMAN

REVIEWING GERMAN

by R. MAX ROGERS, ARTHUR R. WATKINS, and WALTER H. SPEIDEL, all of Brigham Young University

The spectacular success of Rogers and Watkins' GERMAN THROUGH CONVERSATIONAL PATTERNS will be duplicated by this new one-semester review for students who have had one year of college German or two years of high school German. Each of the fifteen lessons consists of five integrated sections with illustrations of cultural and educational interest. A skillful review of hearing, speaking, reading, and writing German is achieved by the use of lively dialogues, reading sections, concise grammatical explanations, and patterned writing exercises, including controlled composition. Each lesson ends with a brief passage from the work of writers in several fields, such as Goethe, Schiller, Freud, Kästner, Brecht, Dürrenmatt, and Kafka.

STREIFLICHTER AUF DEUTSCHLAND

by GERHARD WEISS, University of Minnesota, and CHARLOTTE ANDERSON, Montgomery County Community College (Penna.)

Two native-born authors (Berlin and Vienna respectively) provide a mature, gracefully written, and consistently absorbing survey of life in the German-speaking world today. Contemporary literature is, they feel, better understood by a knowledge of Germany in all its aspects including its multiplicity, geography, city life, sociology, economy, family life, leisure time, education, religion, etc. The authors make frequent comparisons to life in America. Ideal for a course in contemporary German civilization, for the conversation course, or for an intermediate program.

PATHS TO GERMAN POETRY: An Introductory Anthology

Edited by LORE BARBARA FOLTIN and HUBERT HEINEN, both University of Pittsburgh

Fifty-two poems chosen especially to introduce the student to an appreciation of the richness and diversity of German poetry from Klopstock to the present. Questions (in German), visible and end vocabularies, short biographies, and bibliographies are all designed to assist the student to read, discuss, and write about the poems in German. Fourth and fifth semester college, fourth year high school.

Publications of interest to teachers of foreign languages available from the Materials Center, 62 Fifth Avenue, New York 10011

Since 1952 the Modern Language Association has engaged in many activities: studies and surveys of the foreign language situation in America, formulation of policy statements with regard to the importance of foreign languages and the purpose and method of language teaching, the creation of better materials for language teaching, evaluation of teaching materials in eleven foreign languages, and creation of proficiency tests for teachers and advanced students and classroom tests for school and college students.

These are but a few of the projects of the MLA Foreign Language Program. Reports on the results of these and other projects are among the publications listed on the following pages. Support for Foreign Language Program projects has come from many sources, among them the Rockefeller, Ford, and Carnegie Foundations, and the U. S. Office of Education. The Foreign Language Program of the MLA hopes to be of assistance to all foreign language teachers through the publications available from the Materials Center, which it now shares with the American Council on the Teaching of Foreign Languages (ACTFL).

CHILDHOOD IN POETRY

A five-volume bibliography
and index of 10,000 books
and the 100,000 child-oriented poems which first appeared in them

Edited by John MacKay Shaw

A catalog of the
Shaw Childhood in Poetry Collection
Robert Manning Strozier Library
Florida State University
Tallahassee, Florida

3,500 pages— 8½ x 11 — $155.00

CHILDHOOD IN POETRY is believed to be the most comprehensive work ever published in the field of children's verse. In total, it is a gigantic mosaic that reflects the literary and social climates that have motivated children—and adults—throughout the centuries. Each entry provides extensive bibliographic details not only for first printings of books of poetry but also for anthologies, periodicals, annuals and other materials in which poems have appeared that relate to childhood or which have been read to and by children.

Librarians, researchers, teachers, and collectors will readily recognize this major new reference as their primary guide to the content of 10,000 books in which first appeared 100,000 poems on thousands of subjects ranging from Aardvark to Glass to Stains to Zoo.

Volumes 1 through 4 are composed of numbered entries listed alphabetically by author. For each book cited the title page is recorded in full; publication date and edition are specified; and volume size and pagination are indicated. Further details of collation, binding, points of issue identification, and the like are included where important. A typical passage from the poetry in each book is provided for quick appraisal of its style and content. The editor's personal comments on many poems, volumes, and poets, based on his intimate knowledge of the individual books, adds an only-source element of unusual value to the researcher.

The names of as many illustrators as could be identified through credits or research are cited, and one of the set's most interesting features is the 175 illustrations of both title and text pages that are reproduced from publications in the collection. These serve to graphically indicate the changing trends in both art and book design.

Volume 5 is an exhaustive two-part index to the collection. First, there is a Short Title List and Key arranged by author and numbered to correspond to the base volume. Through this, key books cited by number alone in the index are easily identified without referring to the base volumes. Second, there is a Keyword Index citing more than 100,000 poems under thousands of headings.

We invite you to examine CHILDHOOD IN POETRY free for thirty days, after which you may retain the set and pay our invoice or return to us without further obligation.

Dostoevsky: Child and Man in His Works

WILLIAM WOODIN ROWE

Dostoevsky's little children often lead to his biggest ideas, and this new approach to interpretation offers an unusual insight into his works and his creative process. It examines his use of children—both real and symbolic—as suffering victims and awakening adults, as descriptive tools and mental images. A particularly acute chapter discusses the children who exist only in the imaginations of Dostoevsky's characters.

Despite the voluminous literature on the Russian master, no one before has treated this very important aspect. Since Dostoevsky's children are often adultlike and his adults often part children, his creative vision seems almost inescapably to draw frequently upon the child. He himself said he preferred Christ even to Truth, and placed children closest to Christ. This first book by a gifted young scholar seems certain to achieve a place as one of the major insights into this great writer.

The Identity of Oedipus the King

Five Essays on the "Oedipus Tyrannus"

ALISTER CAMERON

In providing this fresh reading of a celebrated classic, Alister Cameron confronts Sophocles' tragedy as a work of art. He rejects interpretations purely Freudian, historical, or anthropological, and helps the reader approach the play directly as a work of enduring and compelling power—the supremely conscious achievement of a great artist. By examining Sophocles' sources and the way they were transformed in the play, Professor Cameron shows the essential aim of Greek tragedy as it sought to capture the nature of man and his relation to the universe. The emphasis in this book is literary, and the author pays the closest attention to a reading of the text. In view of the extraordinary current popularity of the Oedipus theme and variants, students of modern literature should find this work most illuminating.
