The Canadian Journal of Linguistics has recently undergone several stylistic modifications; a new cover and the introduction of abstracts in English and French are probably the most noticeable. The changes have also affected several other aspects of the material published in the journal. In particular, the style for the list of references for both articles and book reviews has been modified in an effort to standardize it with respect to other major journals in the field. However, no two journals have exactly the same style for references. We therefore ask you to carefully follow the new guidelines contained in the style sheet published in this issue. Starting with the current volume, the journal will also include an index, published in the December issue. The first index will cover both volumes 40 and 41.

Information concerning the Canadian Linguistic Association and the Canadian Journal of Linguistics is available on the World Wide Web. Our address is: <http://www.uccs.mun.ca/~cla-acl/cla.htm>. This information includes the names and addresses of the members of the executive committee and other committees of the CLA, as well as the constitution and by-laws of the association, the minutes of the general meeting, and information regarding the submission of abstracts for the CLA annual meeting. It also includes the names and addresses of the members of the editorial committee of the journal, the tables of contents and abstracts of articles of recent issues, and the new style sheet.

We would like to take this opportunity to extend our warmest thanks to Jean-François Prunet and Elizabeth Cowper, who are now retiring after several years of devoted work for the journal, and to welcome Patricia Balcom and Gisèle Chevalier of the Université de Moncton, who will share the position of book review editor, as well as Donna Gerds of Simon Fraser University who joins our committee as an associate editor.
