

ical science, Purdue University; formerly of New York University.

Mark Nelson, senior associate on European integration, Carnegie Endowment.

T. J. Pempel, professor, University of Wisconsin-Madison, effective August, 1993; formerly University of Colorado at Boulder.

Rudolph G. Penner, senior manager and director of economic studies, Policy Economics Group of KPMG Peat Marwick.

Wayne Sandholtz, assistant professor, department of politics and society, University of California, Irvine; formerly Scripps College, Claremont, California.

Alec Stone, assistant professor, department of politics and society, University of California, Irvine; formerly of Middlebury College, Middlebury, Vermont.

Ernest J. Wilson III, department of government and politics, University of Maryland.

Promotions

Margery M. Ambrosius, associate professor with tenure, political science, Kansas State University.

Lynn W. Bachelor, associate professor, department of political science and public administration, The University of Toledo.

John B. Goodman, associate professor, Harvard Business School.

Mark C. Petracca, associate professor, department of politics and society, University of California, Irvine.

Visiting and Temporary Appointments

John Bokina, University of Texas-Pan American, held a residency at the Rockefeller Foundation's Study and Conference Center, Bellagio, Italy.

Lowell W. Culver, professor of public administration, Governors State University (IL), has been awarded a Fulbright grant to teach at the University of Oldenburg, in Germany,

Michael Mezey Chosen Book Review Editor of Journal of Politics

The incoming editors of the Journal of Politics selected Michael Mezey of DePaul University to serve as Book Review Editor for the journal. Mezey began processing books for review on January 15, 1993. Books for review should be sent to:

Michael Mezey, Book Review Editor,
The Journal of Politics,
Department of Political Science,
DePaul University,
2323 North Seminary,
Chicago, IL 60614.

from April to July 1993. He will lecture on "Administrative and Political Problems of the American Presidency 1993-1997" and "The Politics of Urban Development in the United States and Germany."

Susan O. White, visiting scientist and director of the law and social sciences program, National Science Foundation.

Award Recipients

1992 Hubert H. Humphrey Award to Evron M. Kirkpatrick

Evron M. Kirkpatrick is the winner of the 1992 Hubert H. Humphrey Award of the Policy Studies Organization, presented to an outstanding public policy practitioner.

Kirkpatrick is a political scientist whose distinguished record of contributions to the field of public policy enhances the list of previous winners of the award, which includes Ralph Huitt, John Bunzel, Donna Shalala and Jeane Kirkpatrick. Kirkpatrick's winning this award would have brought great pleasure to his friend and protégé, United States Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

Kirkpatrick has made contributions in three significant areas of public policy: scholarship, development and execution of educational programs, and formulation and carrying out of policies and programs.

As a scholar, Kirkpatrick has had a vital part in the dialogue on the analysis of the role of political parties in the United States, as evidenced by a recently published review of the literature spanning the period 1950 through 1980. This review highlighted Kirkpatrick's work on the APSA Committee on Political Parties and his article entitled "Toward

Lowell W. Culver

Mitchell A. Seligson has been awarded a Residential Fellowship at the Kellogg Institute for International Studies at Notre Dame for the fall 1992. He will be working on a study of political culture in Central America.

Joseph Snipp, instructor of political science, Creighton University.

John J. Weltman, is currently distinguished adjunct professor in residence, School of International Service, The American University.

Darrell M. West, Brown University, is a visiting scholar at Nuffield College of Oxford University for the spring 1993 semester.

a More Responsible Two Party System: Political Science, Policy Science or Pseudo Science?"

As Executive Director of the American Political Science Association, Kirkpatrick developed and executed a range of education programs designed to assist scholars and practitioners to know and understand public policy issues and processes, such as the Congressional Fellowship Program, the Public Affairs Reporting Awards, the State Legislative Service Program for freshman state legislators, and the Seminars for Freshman Congressmen of the United States.

Finally, as an active participant in the formulation and carrying out of public policy, Kirkpatrick served on Presidential Commissions on Registration and Voting and on Career Advancement in Federal Service. He was a charter member of the Board of Directors of the United States Institute of Peace, has served as the long-time president of the American Peace Society; and was president of the Helen Dwight Reid Educational Foundation where he developed Heldref Publications, with journals contributing to public policy through such titles as Asian Affairs, Journal of Arts Management and Law, Environment, Change, Hospital Topics, and World Affairs.

The Policy Studies Organization 1992 Hubert H. Humphrey Award Committee was composed of Walter E. Beach, Chairman, James D. Carroll, and Frances Humphrey Howard, sister of Hubert Humphrey.

The Social Science Research Council Program on International Peace and Security 1992 Visiting Scholar Fellowship Awards

Visiting Scholar awards are intended to permit junior researchers from parts of the world where the study of peace and security is underdeveloped to spend short periods of time at major research centers outside of their home region. This year's Visiting Scholar program focused on Africa, Eastern Europe, and Central Europe. This focus will continue through 1993. For the 1992 competition, the Committee made seven awards:

Siyka K. Kovacheva (Bulgaria), Political Sociology, Plovdiv University. "A Comparative Study of Student Attitudes toward Peace in a Continent of Turmoil and Change."

Tzvetanka I. Lozanova-Ovtcharova (Bulgaria), International Public Law, Institute of State and Law, Sofia. "Implementation of International Norms in the Field of Human Rights in Bulgaria."

Derek A. Matyszak (U.K.-Zimbabwe), Law, University of Zimbabwe. "A Preliminary Inquiry into the Legality of the Law and Order Maintenance Act of Zimbabwe."

Slavomír Michálek (Czechoslovakia), History, The Historical Institute of the Slovak Academy of Sciences. "American Foreign Policy toward Czechoslovakia after World War II: Economic and Political Relations, 1945-48."

Nahzeem O. Mimiko (Nigeria), International Relations, Ondo State University. "The Relative Impact of Internal and External Constraints on the Democratic Process in Africa: The Case of Nigeria."

Kayode A. Omojuwa (Nigeria), Political Science, Ahmadu Bello University. "Prospects for Peaceful Reconciliation in South Africa: Lessons from Nigeria's Post-Civil War Experience for a Post-Apartheid State."

Marek Pietras (Poland), Political Science, Maria Curie-Skłodowska University, Lublin. "The Ecological Dimension of European Security."

Patricia A. T. Williams (Nigeria), Political Science, Ogun State University, Ago-Iwoye. "Religious Pluralism and Security in the West African Sub-Region."

National Endowment for the Humanities 1992 Interpretive Research Awards

The following is a list of awards to political scientists made by the Interpretive Research Program of the National Endowment for the Humanities in 1992.

Collaborative Projects

Eric A. Johnson, Central Michigan University, "Protest, Popular Opinion and Denunciation in Nazi Germany."

David P. Rock, University of California, Santa Barbara. "Government, Politics and Society in the Rio de la Plata Republics: Argentina and Uruguay 1870-1914."

Michael E. Urban, University of California, Santa Cruz, "The Rebirth of Politics in Russia."

Jeffrey Wasserstrom, Indiana University, Bloomington, "Keywords of the Chinese Revolution: The Language of Politics and the Politics of Language in 20th-Century China."

Humanities, Science, and Technology

Michael R. Grey, University of Connecticut Health Center, "Historical Monograph on Rural Health Programs of the Farm Security Administration during the New Deal Era."

Patricia S. Ward, Individual, "Hugh Cabot (1872-1945) and American Health Care Reform."

Conferences

Keith M. Baker, Stanford University, "The Terror in the French Revolution," December 10-13, 1992.

Timothy C. Cheek, Colorado College, "Construction of the Party-State and State Socialism in China, 1936-65," May 31-June 5, 1993.

Policy Studies Organization 1992 Awards

The following awards were presented at the Policy Studies Organization's Awards Luncheon which was held last September.

Harold D. Lasswell Award: For outstanding scholarship in contribution to our understanding of the substance or process of public policy. Graham Allison, Harvard University, and Robert Haveman, University of Wisconsin.

Donald Campbell Award: For being an outstanding methodological innovator in public studies. Larry Mohr, University of Michigan.

Hubert H. Humphrey Award: For being an outstanding public policy practitioner. Evron Kirkpatrick, former APSA Executive Director.

Theodore Lowi Award: For the best article in the Policy Studies Journal in 1991. Gary Mucciaroni, New York University.

Jeffrey Pressman Award: For the best article in the Policy Studies Review in 1991. Edward Greenberg, University of Colorado at Boulder.

PSO Book Award: For the best policy studies book in 1991. Michael Reich, Harvard University.

Thomas R. Dye Award: For outstanding service to the Policy Studies Organization. The late Miriam Mills, formerly of New Jersey Institute of Technology.

PSO Presidents Award: For service as a PSO president. Yehezkel Dror, Hebrew University.

Miriam K. Mills Award: An outstanding individual in the policy studies field under age 35. John Hird, University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

New York State Political Science Association Best Paper Awards

Below is a listing of the best paper awards for the 1992 New York State Political Science Association meeting.

Best Faculty Paper: Alan Milchman and Alan Rosenberg, Queens College/CUNY.

Best Graduate Student Paper: Andrew Valls, University of Pittsburgh.

Best Student Paper: Alisa A. Lukasiewicz, Canisius College.

David McCullough's Acclaimed Biography of Truman Wins Lionel Gelber Prize

The winner of the 1992 Lionel Gelber Prize was announced at the kickoff of the International Festival of Authors in Toronto. David McCullough's full-scale biography, Truman, published by Simon &

Andrew Valls

Schuster, has won him the $50,000 prize, which is given annually for the best book published in English on the subject of international relations.

In choosing the winner, the jury cited the book as "a scholarly, well written, highly readable, indeed fascinating biography of a man who had a great impact on world affairs at a crucial time. . . . [His achievements are] covered magnificently in what one of the jurors described as a 'blockbuster book.' "

The Lionel Gelber Prize, established in 1989 by the late Lionel Gelber, was presented by the writer's brother Arthur Gelber and Dr. James Gibson, chairman of the prize committee.

Other Awards and Honors

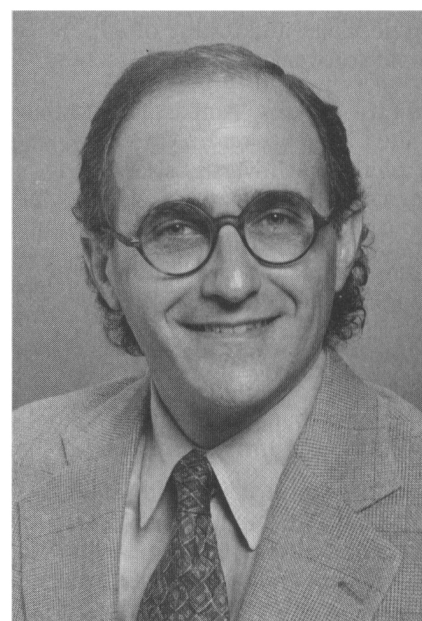

David Brady, Stanford University, received the Dinkelspiel Award for excellence in undergraduate teaching.

Steven J. Brams, New York University, was elected a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science for his "innovative and imaginative applications of game theory to the social sciences, especially international relations, and for research on voting systems, especially approval voting."

John J. Gargan, professor of political science at Kent State University, won the Kent State University Distinguished Teaching Award in 1992.

Jerry Goldman of Northwestern University's Political Science Department has been named one of the first Charles Deering McCormick Professors of Teaching Excellence at Northwestern University. The professorships were established with a $10 million gift from McCormick to recognize tenured faculty "who have consistently demonstrated outstanding performance in the classroom or who have developed significant innovations that also have influenced the methods and teaching effectiveness of other members of the faculty."

Jerry Goldman

Oskar Gruenwald, founder/editor of the Journal of Interdisciplinary Studies: An International Journal of Interdisciplinary and Interfaith Dialogue, received the John Templeton Foundation's "Theology of Humility" Award for best published paper, 1990-92, for his essay, "Christianity and Science: Toward a New Episteme of Charity," JIS II (1990: 1-21).

Linda C. Gugin, professor of political science, Indiana University Southeast, was the co-recipient of a Clio Grant from the Indiana Historical Society to write a political biography of former U.S. Senator and Associate Supreme Court Justice Sherman Minton.

Thomas R. Hensley, professor of political science at Kent State University, was named the 1991 Ohio Professor of the Year by the Council for the Advancement and Support of Higher Education. In addition, he has also recently won the Kent State University Distinguished Teaching Award in 1990, the Kent State University Honors College first annual Distinguished Faculty Award in 1991, and the New Student Orientation Outstanding Instructor Award in 1991.

Edward A. Kolodziej, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, has received an Apple Grant Strategic Development Program Award for development and testing of educational software.

Edward Perkins, Ambassador to the United Nations, received George Washington University's 1992 Distinguished Statesman Award.

Margaret K. McMillion, political counselor for the U.S. Embassy in Bangkok, and Jonathan Zimmer, executive director of ACTION-Housing, Inc., were honored as 1992 distinguished alumni of the University of Pittsburgh's Graduate School of Public and International Affairs.

Stuart S. Nagel, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, has been elected a fellow to the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Richard Rose, University of Strathclyde, was awarded the $25,000 first prize in the 1992 AMX Bank Review essay competition for his essay "Eastern Europe's Need for a Civil Economy." The competition is run by American Express Bank, Ltd., to promote new writing and analysis on current international economics and financial issues.

Gertrude Steuernagel, professor of political science at Kent State University, won the Kent State University Distinguished Teaching Award in 1990 and the Golden Key National Honor Society Award for Excellence in Teaching in 1991.

Sidney Tarrow received the American Sociological Association Section on Collective Behavior and Social Movement's 1992 Book Award for Democracy and Disorder: Protest and Politics in Italy, 1965-1975 (Clarendon Books).

Edward Tufte, professor of political science and statistics and senior critic in graphic design, Yale University, has received the Joseph Rigo Award for contributions to software documentation from the Association for Computing Machinery. The Rigo Award is the highest honor given by the ACM Special Interest Group on Documentation.

Betty Miller Unterberger, of Texas A&M University, and Diane B. Kunz, of Yale University, are the co-winners of the 1991 Myrna F. Bernath Book Prize. Unterberger's book, The United States, Revolutionary Russia, and the Rise of Czechoslovakia, was published in 1989 by the University of North Carolina Press in Chapel Hill. Kunz's book, The Economic Diplomacy of the Suez Crisis, was published in 1991 by the University of North Carolina Press in Chapel Hill.

Nelson Wikstrom, associate professor of political science at Virginia Commonwealth University, received the 1992 Outstanding Alumni Award in Education from Northeastern University.

In Memoriam

Karl W. Deutsch

When Karl Wolfgang Deutsch died of cancer in November 1992 the worldwide social scientific community lost a friend at once innovative, productive, and, as those who worked with him will attest, tireless.

Deutsch's interest in politics came from the womb of his native Prague. His parents had met before World War I as social democratic activists; his mother was the Czechoslovak parliament's first woman member; and by the time the boy, born in 1912, became a man, his homeland was a seething cauldron of nationalistic strife. Nazi intrusions in 1938 led the young law graduate, known at Charles University for his outspoken antinazism, his wife Ruth, and his parents to flee Czechoslovakia—in the nick of time.

Deutsch came to the United States in 1938 to attend Eleanor Roosevelt's World Youth Congress. A year later he enrolled at Harvard University for graduate studies in political science. He perspicaciously saw that his scientific background—he had trained four years in Prague and London to become a master optician—opened new insights for understanding such phenomena as ultra-nationalism. He joined intellectually the small band of political scientists who applied quantitative methods and assembled data to study international processes. After a hiatus including teaching at Choate School and M.I.T. and working with the wartime Office of Strategic Services, in 1951 he completed his award-winning dissertation, Nationalism and Social Communication (1953).

Subsequent years saw Deutsch undertaking several data-related projects to further the scientific analysis of world politics:

- Insightful articles inventing the field of political cybernetics, brought together and expanded in The Nerves of Government (1963);
- After being invited to coordinate and summarize a project begun at Princeton University, both Political Community at the International Level (1954) and Deutsch et al., Political Community and the North Atlantic Area (1957);
- Yale Political Data Program: Bruce M. Russett et al., World Handbook of Political and Social Indicators (1964) and subsequent World Handbooks in 1972 and 1983;
- Yale Arms Control Projects, persuading U.S. foreign policymakers to pay attention to data and empirical findings, reported in Deutsch et al., France, Germany and the Western Alliance; and
- Global Modeling, Science Center Berlin: Stuart A. Bremer et al., The GLOBUS Model (1987).

These projects are having major impacts on the profession. In addition, he has published textbooks such as The Analysis of International Politics (1968) and Politics and Government (1970) and monographs such as Germany Rejoins the Powers (1959, with Lewis J. Edinger).

Deutsch's professional career was