

types of grants will be as early as November first. Preliminary inquiries should be addressed to 230 Park Avenue, New York 17, New York at least three weeks in advance of the deadline.

Predoctoral and postdoctoral research training fellowships will again be offered without restriction as to disciplinary specialty within the field of the social sciences. These fellowships may be held only after fulfillment of all requirements except the thesis for the doctorate; under certain conditions they may be held while engaged in writing doctoral dissertations.

Grants-in-aid of research and faculty research fellowships will be offered to mature research scholars of all ages; they are not available to candidates for academic degrees. The terms of faculty research fellowships have been radically changed; awards will be made directly to individuals, for periods not exceeding two years; part-time appointments for three year periods will not be offered.

Several categories of specialized awards will also be offered. As a rule applicants eligible to apply for one of these may not be considered as candidates for support for the same purpose under the unspecialized programs mentioned above. With the exception of the first item, all of the following awards are restricted to mature research scholars of postdoctoral status. The special categories include: predoctoral and postdoctoral fellowships in political theory and legal philosophy; senior research awards in American governmental affairs; grants for research on American governmental and legal processes; grants for research on national security policy; grants for research on the Near and Middle East; travel grants for participants in certain international conferences; grants for research on Latin America and on Slavic and East European areas (administered by Social Science Research Council with co-sponsorship of American Council of Learned Societies); and grants for research on East and South Asia (administered by American Council of Learned Societies, 345 East 46th Street, New York 17, New York, with co-sponsorship of Social Science Research Council).

APPOINTMENT AND STAFF CHANGES

Samir N. Anabtawi, of Yale University, has been appointed an instructor at Dartmouth College.

James E. Anderson, formerly of The University of Texas, has accepted a position as instructor in political science at Wake Forest College.

Paul Ashby has been appointed chairman of the department of government at San Francisco State College effective September 1, 1959.

Douglas E. Ashford, formerly visiting lecturer at Princeton has accepted an appointment as assistant professor, department of government, Indiana University.

Stephen K. Bailey has resigned his chair in public affairs at Princeton University to accept a post as professor of political science in the Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs at Syracuse University.

Richard Bald of the University of Michigan has been appointed instructor in political science at Ohio University.

Arthur C. Banks, Jr., visiting professor and acting chairman of the department of political science at Atlanta University will become professor of political science and co-ordinator of the social sciences at Morehouse College next year. Samuel DuBois Cook, on leave to do writing and research under a Rockefeller Foundation Grant, will resume his duties at Atlanta University next year.

David Elliott Bell, who has had a distinguished career in government service, in economic development programs abroad, and in academic administration and teaching, has been appointed to succeed Arthur Maass as secretary of the graduate school of public administration at Harvard on July 1.

In his government service, Mr. Bell spent four years with the U. S. Bureau of the Budget, and then five years in the White House as Special Assistant and Administrative Assistant to the President.

Hugh A. Bone, professor of political science at the University of Washington has been named head of the department succeeding Dell G. Hitchner.

Joseph B. Board, lecturer in government at Indiana University, has been appointed as-assistant professor in the political science department at Elmira College, Elmira, New York.

Richard M. Bray has been promoted to professor in the school of government and public administration at The American University.

Cecil Brett, instructor in government at Indiana University, has been promoted to assistant professor of government. He has also been appointed visiting professor with the Indiana University-Thammasat Public Administration Project in Bangkok, Thailand.

J. Cudd Brown, formerly on the staff of the Hoover Institution at Stanford and the San Francisco State College, has been appointed associate professor on the Chevalier Program in Diplomacy and World Affairs at Occidental College.

R. Jean Brownlee, University of Pennsylvania, has been promoted to an assistant professor in political science.

Eugene L. Burdick has been promoted to the rank of associate professor at the University of California, Berkeley.

Frederick S. Burin of the Department of State has been appointed professorial lecturer in the school of government and public administration at The American University.

Cecil J. Burnett, University of Pennsylvania has been promoted to an associate professor in political science.

Byrum E. Carter, associate professor of government at Indiana University, has been appointed assistant dean of faculties.

Fedor Cicak, graduate student in the department of government at Indiana University has been appointed resident lecturer in government at the Calumet Center of the University.

Robert E. Clute, formerly of Tulane, has been appointed assistant professor of history and political science at the University of Nevada.

James G. Coke, University of Pennsylvania, has been promoted to an associate professor in political science.

John Crampton is an acting instructor in political science at the University of California at Santa Barbara for the 1958-59 academic year.

Joseph F. Cunningham, assistant to the director of Statistical Services, Department of the Air Force, has been promoted to professorial lecturer in the school of government and public administration at The American University.

Charles D. Curran is now executive secretary for the U. S. Study Commission, Texas—a new agency for Neches, Trinity, Colorado, San Jacinto, Brazos, San Antonio, Guadalupe and Nueces Rivers and intervening areas.

Michael Curtis has accepted an appointment to an assistant professorship at Oberlin College for the year 1959-1960.

Harry R. Davis has been promoted to professor of government and appointed chairman of the department at Beloit College. Professor Davis was elected to the Beloit, Wisconsin city council in April.

Jack D. Dowell, who received the Ph.D. degree from Stanford University in October, 1958, has accepted an instructorship at the United States Army Intelligence Military Police and Special Weapons School, Oberammergau, Germany.

Charles A. Drekmeier has been appointed assistant professor of political science and sociology at Stanford University.

Daniel J. Elazar, University of Chicago, has been appointed research assistant professor in the institute of government and public affairs of the University of Illinois, effective September, 1959.

Alona E. Evans, professor of political science, has been elected chairman of the department at Wellesley College.

Daniel E. Farlow, formerly of The University of Texas, has accepted a position as instructor in government at Southwest Texas State College at San Marcos.

John Fenton of Michigan State University has accepted an appointment as professor of government at the University of Massachusetts.

J. Eldon Fields has been promoted to full professor at the University of Kansas.

Ossip K. Flechtheim, formerly of Colby

College and the Deutsche Hochschule fuer Politik, Berlin, has been appointed professor of theory and history of political parties and interest groups at the Free University of West Berlin. His is the first chair of this type established in Germany.

Floyd Flom has resigned his position as assistant professor of political science at the University of Minnesota to accept the position of Community Relations Representative for the General Electric Company in Philadelphia.

Herbert Garfinkel has resigned his position as assistant professor at Dartmouth to accept an associate professorship at Michigan State University. During the year 1958-1959 Professor Garfinkel has been at the center for advanced study in the behavioral sciences.

Frank K. Gibson, assistant professor of political science, has rejoined the faculty of the University of Georgia as associate professor.

Jack Gourman has been promoted to assistant professor of political science at Immaculate Heart College, Los Angeles, California.

Ernst B. Haas has been promoted to the rank of associate professor at the University of California, Berkeley.

Myron Q. Hale, formerly of Monmouth College, has been appointed visiting lecturer in the department of political science at the Ohio State University.

Royce Hanson has been promoted to assistant professor in the school of government and public administration at The American University.

J. Eugene Harley, professor of political science at the University of Southern California, and a member of the department since 1921, retired from the faculty in June 1959 after a distinguished career of forty years of service in the profession. Professor Harley has been appointed emeritus professor.

Christina Harris, formerly professor in the Hoover Institution, Stanford University, has been appointed professor of political science at Stanford.

Frederick H. Harris, Jr., has been promoted to the rank of associate professor of political science at Georgia State College in Atlanta.

John J. Hebal of the department of government and politics at the University of Maryland has been appointed to the University's European overseas program.

Victor Heyman, a graduate of Washington University, currently located at Selfridge Air Base, Michigan has been employed as assistant professor at Marshall College.

Charles R. Hicks, professor and former chairman of the department of history and political science at the University of Nevada retired in June after thirty-five years of service.

Fred J. Horrigan, lecturer in government at Indiana University, has been appointed assistant professor of political science at the Louisiana State University at New Orleans.

Thomas E. Hovet has been promoted to associate professor of government at New York University.

Terry Hoy has been appointed to the Atlantic overseas program at the University of Maryland.

Chün-tu Hsüeh, formerly visiting professor at the University of Hartford and lecturer at Rutgers University, has been appointed as research associate in the department of political science at Stanford University.

Paul S. Jacobsen, chairman of the department of political science at Colgate University has been appointed to the European overseas program of the University of Maryland.

Harry V. Jaffa has been promoted to professor of political science at the Ohio State University.

Malcolm E. Jewell has been promoted from instructor to assistant professor in the department of political science at the University of Kentucky.

Larry Johnston has been appointed instructor in the department of political science at Wellesley College.

Charles Joiner has received a joint appointment as instructor in the political science department and the institute of community development at Michigan State.

Charles Jones has been appointed instructor in the department of political science at Wellesley College.

Kazuo Kawai has been promoted to professor of political science at the Ohio State University.

David S. Keen, Princeton, has been appointed assistant professor of government at Union College.

Martin Kriesberg of the Agricultural Marketing Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture, has been promoted to adjunct professor in the school of government and public administration at The American University.

Don Larson, formerly of the University of Miami, and presently consultant to the Fairfax County (Va.) Board of Supervisors has been appointed professorial lecturer in the school of government and public administration, American University.

Carl Leiden, associate professor at Marshall College has resigned to accept a position at The American University, Cairo, Egypt.

Shao Chuan Leng has been promoted to the rank of associate professor in the department of foreign affairs at the University of Virginia.

Charles O. Lerche has resigned at Emory University and accepted a position in The American University, Washington, D. C.

Duane Lockard has been promoted to associate professor of government at Connecticut College.

Clarence C. Ludwig, who has been at the University of Minnesota since 1935 as professor of political science, director of the Municipal Reference Bureau, and executive secretary of the League of Minnesota Municipalities, is retiring at the end of the 1959 summer session. He plans to make his home in San Jose, California.

Arthur Maass, who concludes a five year appointment as secretary of the graduate school of public administration at Harvard has been promoted recently to professor of government. He plans in the future to devote half of his teaching and a good part of his research to programs associated with the graduate school of public administration.

Gerald S. Maryanov, teaching associate in the department of government at Indiana University, has been appointed visiting assistant professor at the University of Illinois.

John W. Masland, professor of government, has been appointed provost of Dartmouth College, succeeding the late Donald H. Morrison, also professor of government as well as provost.

Charles B. McLane, professor of Russian civilization at Dartmouth has been appointed concurrently as professor of government.

Peter Merkl has joined the faculty of the University of California at Santa Barbara as instructor in political science.

Charles A. Micaud has been promoted to the rank of professor in the department of foreign affairs at the University of Virginia.

Ernest G. Miller has resigned his position as instructor at Dartmouth to accept an assistant professorship at University of California, Davis campus.

Stephen R. Mitchell has become an instructor in political science at the State College of Washington.

James William Morley, who has been promoted to associate professor of government at Columbia, will be on leave during 1959-60. He has received a Guggenheim Fellowship to study in Japan.

Herbert J. Muller, professor of English and government at Indiana University, has been named distinguished service professor.

Martin C. Needler, of Harvard University, has been appointed instructor at Dartmouth.

James Karge Olsen was promoted to a full professorship in political science at Kent State University.

John R. Owens of the University of Michigan has accepted a position as assistant professor of political science at the University of California (Davis).

Harvey S. Perloff, Resources for the Future, has been appointed professorial lecturer in the school of government and public administration of The American University.

Charles A. Phillips, director, Data Systems Research Staff, Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) has been promoted to adjunct professor in the school of government and public administration at The American University.

Robert J. Pitchell, resident director of the Indiana Commission on State Tax and Financing Policy, has been appointed associate professor of government and associate director of the bureau of government research at Indiana University.

Laurence I. Radway has been appointed chairman of the department at Dartmouth, succeeding John W. Masland in this position.

Merton L. Reichler, formerly of Wellesley College has been appointed instructor in political science at the University of Southern California.

James S. Roberts has been promoted to associate professor at the University of Nevada.

William H. Roberts, The Catholic University of America, has been appointed coordinator of a new inter-departmental research and training program in international law and relations.

Lindsay Rogers, Burgess Professor of Public Law at Columbia, retired in June, 1959.

Arnold A. Rogow has been appointed associate professor of political science at Stanford University.

George F. Rohrlich, formerly Chief, Division of Actuarial and Financial Services and, temporarily, Chief, Division of Program and Legislation, Bureau of Employment Security, U.S. Department of Labor, has been appointed as a Principal Member of the Social Security Division, International Labor Office, Geneva, Switzerland.

Carl Rosberg, Jr., after a year's appointment as visiting assistant professor, has been appointed assistant professor of political science at the University of California, Berkeley.

Alvin Z. Rubinstein, University of Pennsylvania, has been promoted to assistant professor in political science.

Dankwart A. Rustow has been appointed as associate professor of international social forces in the school of international affairs at Columbia.

Paul Seabury has been promoted to the rank of associate professor at the University of California, Berkeley.

Archibald Singham who is completing his Ph.D. at Michigan has been appointed instructor in the department at Michigan State.

H. Gordon Skilling of Dartmouth has resigned as professor to accept appointment as professor of political economy at The University of Toronto. He will give work in Soviet and East European studies and will participate in the development of a graduate program in Slavic Studies.

Franklin Smallwood, formerly with The Atomic Energy Commission, has been appointed lecturer at Dartmouth.

Julius Smultstys, teaching associate in the Department of Government at Indiana University, has been appointed resident lecturer at the Fort Wayne Center of the University.

Reed Smith has been promoted to assistant professor at Baldwin-Wallace College. He has been granted a senior fellowship at the Fels institute of local and state government at the University of Pennsylvania.

Richard F. Staar, chairman of the political science department of Arkansas State College, has been appointed an associate professor in the department at Emory University.

Richard W. Sterling has been advanced to the rank of associate professor at Dartmouth. He has been granted a leave of absence for the year 1959-1960 to accept an appointment as research associate at the Washington Center of Foreign Policy Research.

Ralph A. Straetz has been promoted to full professor at New York University. He remains chairman of the department at the University College of Arts and Science.

E. Harold Swayze, who received his Ph.D. from Harvard University and who spent the academic year 1958-59 at Moscow University, has been appointed instructor in political science at the University of Michigan.

Victor C. Swearinger of the staff of the Interstate Commerce Commission has been appointed professorial lecturer in the school of government and public administration of The American University.

George G. Thielman has been promoted to the rank of associate professor of political science at Georgia State College in Atlanta.

John T. Thompson, who is completing a doctoral degree at the University of Texas, has been appointed research associate in the institute of public affairs at that institution.

E. G. Trimble has been made head of the department at University of Kentucky succeeding Amry Vandenbosch who has become director of the Patterson School of Diplomacy and International Commerce, established by the University of Kentucky to open in September, 1959.

Tang Tsou, research associate in the center for the study of American foreign and military policy at the University of Chicago, has been appointed as assistant professor in the department of political science at the University of Chicago.

Toshio G. Tsukahira of the Department of State has been appointed professorial lecturer in the school of government and public administration at The American University.

Donald Urquidi has been appointed a member of the department of political science at Michigan State.

S. Walter Washington, acting professor in the department of foreign affairs of the University of Virginia has joined the Henry Clay Foundation in New York. For the next year and a half he will continue his research on Latin American problems which will involve several trips to Latin America.

David Welborn, formerly of The University of Texas, has accepted a position as instructor in government at Indiana University.

Alan F. Westin, formerly assistant professor of Government at Cornell University, has been appointed associate professor of public law and government at Columbia University. During the academic year 1959-60 he will be on leave under grants from the Rockefeller Foundation and the Meyer Research Institute of Law, to complete a biography of the first Justice John Marshall Harlan.

Lewis J. Williams, formerly with the Department of Defense, has been appointed a Research Associate with the Ohio State Research Foundation. Mr. Williams is located at the Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Air Materiel Command, Dayton, Ohio. The Foundation, in cooperation with the Air University, is developing the new School of Logistics.

James Q. Wilson, who recently completed his Ph.D. degree at the University of Chicago, has been appointed an instructor in the department of political science at the University of Chicago.

Robert W. Wilson has been appointed instructor in the school of government and public administration at The American University to serve as academic director for Unit I of the Washington Semester Program.

Sheldon S. Wolin has been promoted to the rank of associate professor at the University of California, Berkeley.

Ronald Yalem, formerly of the University of Missouri, has accepted an appointment as associate professor of government at the College of William and Mary in Norfolk.

IN MEMORIAM

Donald Harvard Morrison died suddenly on March 17, 1959, peacefully in his sleep while he was a visitor at the home of his close friend and old teacher, John F. Sly, in Princeton, New Jersey. Although he had suffered a series of severe illnesses dating back to childhood days, he had been in good health in recent years and in his position as Provost of Dartmouth College he was an indefatigable worker.

He was born in Morgantown, West Virginia, on October 10, 1914, graduated from West Virginia University in 1936, and received his Ph.D. from Princeton University in 1940. He joined the Department of Government at Dartmouth College in 1945 after brief periods of service as a member of the faculty of Louisiana State University and as an administrative analyst in the U. S. Bureau of the Budget. Two years later, at the extraordinarily early age of 32, he was named Dean of the Faculty at Dartmouth. In 1955 he was appointed to the newly-created post of Provost.

Donald Morrison always took great pride in being a political scientist. He was co-author of a Budget Bureau publication, The United States at War, and also of a widely used text on American Government. From time to time he contributed articles and book reviews to political science journals. In the end, however, his great contribution to higher education was made as an administrator. His fellow political scientists may justly applaud this contribution. Most college professors believe that the academic profession should be a very im-