The Oxford Companion to Spanish Literature

Philip Ward

Here is a comprehensive reference guide to the whole field of literature written in the language of Spain from Roman times to the present day. Central and South American literatures are given treatment on a par with the literatures of peninsular Spain (including Basque, Catalan, and Galician as well as Castilian), and there is full coverage of living writers. £12.50 forthcoming

British Policy Towards the Amerindians in British Guiana, 1803-1873

M. N. Menezes

'Her balanced, well-documented study provides ample material for analysing this aspect of the colonial legacy which the Guyanese are now overcoming.' The Times Literary Supplement. 'A work of meticulous and comprehensive detail, well produced with supporting appendices and maps.' British Book News £8.50

Business Imperialism 1840-1930 An Inquiry Based on British Experience in Latin America

Edited by D. C. M. Platt

This book examines British business connections with Latin America before 1930 in banking, insurance, public utilities, shipping, import and export trade, coffee, nitrates, guano, and railways. In revealing where real power and influence lay in such connections, their findings have relevance not only to historical debate but also to our understanding of the broadly comparable circumstances which exist in many countries today. £12.50

Welcome of Tears The Tapirapé Indians of Central Brazil

Charles Wagley

In this book Professor Wagley describes a tribe of central Brazilian Indians with whom he lived in 1939, and whom he has revisited several times. The society is without parallel in its social institutions, the most remarkable being its self-imposed population control which helps to keep the tribe in perfect balance with its environment. New From Stanford

Pernambuco in the Brazilian Federation, 1889–1937

Robert M. Levine. The second volume in a series on Brazilian regionalism, this work focuses on the most important state in Brazil's impoverished northeastern sector. It provides a stark case study of a once-important state in political, social, and economic decline—a result of competition from foreign sugar growers, a shift of economic activity southward, and the resistance of the elite to political and economic reforms. $17.50

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

Journal of Latin American Studies is published twice a year under the academic sponsorship of the Centres or Institutes of Latin American Studies at the Universities of Cambridge, Glasgow, Liverpool, London and Oxford.

The scope of the journal is the study of Latin America from the standpoint of the social sciences, including anthropology, archaeology, economics, geography, history, international relations, politics, sociology, etc., though it is not concerned with linguistic or literary studies.

Editorial policy avoids commitment to any political viewpoint or ideology, but welcomes free discussion of such issues in the Latin American context, on the understanding that all responsibility for opinions expressed rests exclusively with the author concerned and not with either the journal or its editors.

Contributions are invited from all parts of the world. Articles should generally not be more than 8,000 words long, and two copies, typed with double-spacing, should be submitted. Diagrams and maps may be included by arrangement with the editors. The journal is published in English, but articles written in other languages may be considered, and arrangements made as required for translation into English. Contributors should keep one copy of the typescript for use in correcting proofs.

All contributions and editorial correspondence should be addressed to Journal of Latin American Studies, Institute of Latin American Studies, 31 Tavistock Square, London, WC1H 9HA.

Each contributor will receive, free of charge, 25 offprints of their article and a copy of the issue of the journal in which it appears.
