MOTYA: A Phoenician Colony in Sicily

By JOSEPH I. S. WHITAKER (of Malfitano, Palermo)

With numerous Illustrations, Maps, and Plans. Demy 8vo. 30s. net.

Motya was one of the latest sites occupied by the Phoenician colonizers of Sicily. Though its exact position was long a matter of doubt, it is now identified by all scholars and archaeologists with the small island of San Pantaleo at the N.W. extremity of Sicily. Recent excavation undertaken by its owner, Mr. Joseph I. S. Whitaker, has confirmed this conclusion, and this volume contains a detailed account of his discoveries, and of the many vestiges of the ancient and interesting race who played so large a part in the early civilization of Europe.

"A valuable contribution to Sicilian history and archaeology. . . . Mr. Whitaker presents his results in a scholarly and convenient form."—Geographical Journal.
