Reading the Odyssey

Selected Interpretive Essays
Edited and introduced by
Seth L. Schein

This wide-ranging collection makes available important critical work on the Odyssey produced during the last half century. The ten essays include previously published work by Jean-Pierre Vernant, Pierre Vidal-Naquet, Pietro Pucci, and Charles P. Segal. There also are a new essay by Laura M. Slatkin, two revised and expanded ones by Nancy Felson-Rubin and Michael N. Nagler, and three appearing in English for the first time by Uvo Hölscher, Karl Reinhardt, and Vernant.

Controlling Laughter

Political Humor in the Late Roman Republic
Anthony Corbeill

Although numerous scholars have studied Late Republican humor, this is the first book to examine its social and political context. Anthony Corbeill maintains that political abuse exercised real powers of persuasion over Roman audiences and he demonstrates how public humor both creates and enforces a society's norms.

The Sorrows of the Ancient Romans

The Gladiator and the Monster
Carlin A. Barton

"The main achievement of the author is a wealth of documentation of some rather odd-looking aspects of Roman culture. . . . [Barton] is especially stimulating on the subject of the gaze in the Roman context, on the dynamics of watching."

—Journal of Roman Studies

"This provocative volume deserves a wide audience."

Egypt in Late Antiquity

Roger S. Bagnall

"[This book] represents the most expansive study of Egyptian society in transition yet produced. . . . A tremendous contribution to our understanding of social, economic, and administrative activity in early Byzantine Egypt—and therefore to our knowledge of the late Roman Empire as a whole.

NEW FROM BRILL

A New Companion to Homer

B.B. Powell and I. Morris

This is the first English-language survey of Homeric studies to appear for more than a generation, and the first such work to attempt to cover all fields comprehensively. Thirty leading scholars from Europe and America provide short, authoritative overviews of the state of knowledge and current controversies in the many specialist divisions in Homeric studies. The chapters pay equal attention to literary, mythological, linguistic, historical, and archaeological topics, ranging from such long-established problems as the "Homeric Question" to newer issues like the relevance of narratology and computer-assisted quantification. The collection, the third publication in E.J. Brill's handbook series, The Classical Tradition, will be valuable at every level of study - from the general student of literature to the Homeric specialist seeking a general understanding of the latest developments across the whole range of Homeric scholarship.

Pindar's Paeans

A Reading of the Fragments
with a Survey of the Genre

IAN RUTHERFORD

This is the first full scholarly edition of the paeans, or sacred hymns to Apollo, written by the famous classical poet Pindar. They are the most celebrated examples of a genre which once held a central place in the song-dance culture of classical Greece—a unique and haunting legacy of both early classical poetry and ancient religion. Some fragments of these poems were first published within just the last five years.

Greek Tragedy and the Ancient Historian

Edited by CHRISTOPHER
BRENDAN REGINALD PELLING

Tragedy was central to the experience of being an Athenian citizen and should be the richest of all sources for illuminating fifth-century society and thought, yet it is particularly difficult for an historian to use. This collection of eleven essays investigates the methods and pitfalls of using tragedy to illuminate history.

Tragedy and the Tragic Greek Theatre and Beyond

Edited by M. S. SILK

This important book of thirty new essays focuses on the crucial question: what makes tragedy, especially Greek tragedy, tragic? The contributors include many of the world's foremost names in the field of Greek drama. The book is accessible to readers with no Greek and will be essential reading for anyone interested in tragedy, especially students and specialists in classics, drama, and English literature.

The Songs of Aristophanes

L. P. E. PARKER

Aristophanes' comedies were musical as much as dramatic performances. The nearest we can get to the scores is to study the rhythms and styles of his lyric verse. This book provides a long needed clear, systematic and fully accessible introduction to Aristophanes' lyric poetry and to Greek metre in general—showing how metre forms an integral part of Aristophanes' dramatic art and satire.

Repetition in Latin Poetry Figures of Allusion

JEFFREY WILLS

The first comprehensive treatment of a crucial feature in the study of Latin poetry, word repetition. The book includes over 10,000 quotations across the whole gamut of Latin poetry from Ennius. Embracing a number of hot topics such as intertextual reference, allusion, and genre, this will be a major contribution to Latin literary scholarship.

Athenian Religion: A History

ROBERT PARKER

Tantalizingly little documented, ancient Greek religion is all too often reduced to the dry analysis of archaeological remains. This major new work is a revolutionary attempt to bring ancient religion to life, setting it firmly in the thick of contemporary events and politics. How did people actually worship the gods? Was Socrates' trial a crisis for religion or the state, or both? These are among the key issues addressed in what promises to be the definitive work on the subject for many years to come.

Greek Bastardy in the Classical and Hellenistic Periods

DANIEL OGDEN

Sperm and machismo in Sparta, the belief that it is possible to have two biological fathers, and 'womb strife' between half-siblings—these are among the fascinating insights about Greek attitudes towards sex and society revealed in this full length study of illegitimacy in the Greek world.

Women and Law in Late Antiquity and the Early Middle Ages

ANTTI ARJAVA

The book explores women's history from classical antiquity to the early middle ages in the west. Arjava argues that from the viewpoint of most women, late antiquity was not a period of radical change—and that the influence of Christianity on the social position of women has often been exaggerated.

Miasma

Pollution and Purification in Early Greek Religion

ROBERT PARKER

In historical texts we find cities intervening in the internal affairs of others to 'drive out the pollution', or making war on account of it. Political orators represent their opponents as polluting demons. Miasma is the first work in English to treat this theme in detail.

Greek Forms of Address From Herodotus to Lucian

ELEANOR DICKEY

How did an Athenian citizen address his wife, his children, his dog? How did they address him? The only evidence we have is in the form of written texts. How close are these to spoken ancient Greek? This is an application of modern linguistic theories of address to an ancient language.

NOTES TO CONTRIBUTORS

1. One copy of an article will suffice. It will usually be returned if the contributor so requests on submitting it, but as the editors may wish to annotate it and furthermore cannot take responsibility for any loss, contributors should retain another copy.

2. Articles should be typed in double spacing on A4 paper and on one side of the paper only. Footnotes should be numbered consecutively and typed on separate sheets. Greek quotations need not be typed, but every letter must be clear and legible; especial care should be taken over accents and breathings.

3. Quotations in English, Latin, French, etc., should be put in single inverted commas, e.g.

...the phrase 'dux femina facti' has...

A quotation within a quoted passage has double inverted commas. Single words or self-contained phrases (such as fait accompli) may be underlined to indicate italics. Material inserted within a quotation is placed in square brackets:

'[The translator]... must ever be casting his eyes upwards from the copy to the original.'

4. References should normally be given in the footnotes, in the following form:

BOOKS

R. Syme, The Roman Revolution (Oxford, 1939), pp. 78–9 or op. cit., pp. 78–9.

E. Norden, *Die antike Kunstprosa*⁵ i.164–81
or op. cit. i.164–81.

F. Jacoby, FGrHist 328 F 4.

Authors' initials should be stated, at least at their first mention. Abbreviations should not be assigned to books unless they are generally familiar (e.g. *OCD*² omitting full points).

ARTICLES

R. P. Winnington-Ingram. 'The Danaid Trilogy', JHS 81 (1961), 141–52
or R. P. Winnington-Ingram, JHS 81 (1961), 141–52.

Both year and volume number should be given.

Abbreviations may follow the style of Marouzeau's L'Année philologique.

ANCIENT AUTHORITIES

Aristophanes, Birds 135; Homer, Od. 1.1 (not a 1); Cic. Phil. 2.20 (not 2.8 or 2.8.20); Plin. N.H. 9.176 (not 9.83.176 or 9.83); Quint. 10.1.46; Soph. O.C. 225 (retain full points; do not use l. or ll., but, where necessary, line or lines). B.C. should appear after, A.D. before, the number of the year. The following should not be italicized: op. cit., loc. cit., cf., ibid., s.v.

5. It is a condition of publication in the Journal that contributors assign copyright to Oxford University Press. This ensures that requests from third parties to reproduce articles are handled efficiently and consistently and will also allow the article to be as widely disseminated as possible. In assigning copyright, contributors may use their own material in other publications provided that the Journal is acknowledged as the original place of publication, and Oxford University Press is notified in writing and in advance

The Classical Association

The main aims of the Classical Association are to promote and sustain interest in classical studies, to maintain their rightful position in universities and schools, and to give scholars and teachers opportunities of meeting and discussing their problems. It organizes an annual conference, lasting four or five days, in a university centre, and sponsors twenty-nine branches, most of which hold Greek and Latin Reading Competitions for Scholars. Its activities are fully reported in the annual Proceedings, issued free to all members.

The present membership of the Association is approximately 4,400. Membership is open to both individuals and to institutions at an annual subscription of £5.00 (life composition for individual members, £105.00). Members may obtain Classical Review, Classical Quarterly, and Greece & Rome at greatly reduced prices. Application for membership and subscriptions for the journals should be addressed to the Hon. Treasurer, Richard Wallace, Department of Classics, University of Keele, Keele, Staffs. ST5 5BG.
