LANGUAGE IN SOCIETY

CAMBRIDGE
Journals

EDITOR

William Bright, University of Colorado

Language in Society, founded by Dell Hymes (Editor 1972-1992), is an international journal concerned with all aspects of speech and language as part of social life. It publishes empirical articles of general theoretical, comparative, or methodological interest. Content varies from predominantly linguistic to predominantly social. In addition to original articles, the journal publishes reviews of recent books, brief accounts of works in progress, and notes or comments on points arising from recent publications. Each issue carries numerous reviews of the latest important books in the field.

Recent articles include:

Social network and social class: Toward an integrated sociolinguistic model,
L. Milroy and J. Milroy

Women in charge: Politeness and directives in the speech of Japanese women,
J. S. Smith

Language in Society (ISSN 0047-4045) is published quarterly. Subscription to Vol. 21, 1992 (USA, Canada, and Mexico only): $93.00 for institutions; $46.00 for individuals; single parts $25.00.
