

American Journal of International Law

Cumulative Index 1981-1990

With over 12,000 entries, this ten-year index to the AJIL is thorough and highly specific in its coverage. The Table of Cases pinpoints the location of over 800 cases that have been discussed over the course of a decade in the AJIL. The Subject Index displays headings in bold-faced print, in addition to alphabetically listing the title of articles and the names of authors.

In this age of computerized research, the Cumulative Index is also a useful companion to researchers conducting online searches of some 10,000 pages on either LEXIS® or WESTLAW®.

For all concerned with international law and international relations, the new Cumulative Index is unquestionably an indispensable and authoritative resource.

THE EFFECTIVENESS OF INTERNATIONAL ENVIRONMENTAL AGREEMENTS

A CO-PUBLICATION WITH U.N.C.E.D. — EARTH SUMMIT '92

This is the only work to bring together the final versions of the thirteen major research papers, commissioned for the U.N. Earth Summit, providing a detailed survey and analysis of the effectiveness of 124 existing international agreements and instruments to protect the environment. The material is presented in a clear open style and will prove a fundamental resource to all interested in the environment.

In addition the book contains the report by the Secretary-General of the Conference which sets the entire survey in context and summarizes the findings of the individual research papers. This section also contains the recommendations for future action to be agreed at the Conference.

The book concludes with a reference section containing an annotated list of existing environmental agreements and instruments within each area of research, including current membership, source references and secretariat addresses.

INTERNATIONAL LAW AND THE ANTARCTIC TREATY SYSTEM

Sir Arthur Watts, KCMG, QC

formerly The Legal Adviser, Foreign and Commonwealth Office, London

- An invaluable up-to-date survey of the legal framework for Antarctic activities, written by an author with direct practical experience of the Antarctic Treaty system.
- Essential for practitioners working within the system and for all interested in Antarctica's ever-growing significance in world affairs, especially the environment.

The author demonstrates how the Antarctic Treaty system makes an important contribution to international law generally notwithstanding the unique characteristics that set Antarctica apart. After a general introduction the book deals with the constitutional evolution of the Antarctic Treaty system, dispute settlement, territorial questions, the Antarctic seas, jurisdiction, enforcement and liability, non-militarisation and non-nuclearisation, resources, protection of the environment and the legal status of the Antarctic Treaty system.

A particularly useful feature of the book is the inclusion of the full texts of the five basic treaties of the Antarctic legal system.

INTERNATIONAL WILDLIFE LAW

Simon Lyster

—First major description of the international law protecting wildlife

—Covers the International Conventions on, amongst other matters: Whaling; Wetlands; Protection of cultural and natural heritage; International trade in endangered species; Antarctic marine living resources

—Also contains the texts of twelve of the most important conventions

“... The most remarkable aspect of the book is its sheer scope... the number of international treaties aimed at conserving wildlife has grown steadily. Not until Lyster's book, however, has anyone tried to offer a comprehensive analysis of that body of law. The result is a compelling display of legal scholarship... [that] escapes the trap of appealing only to a narrow audience of similar specialists...”

THE ABOLITION OF THE DEATH PENALTY IN INTERNATIONAL LAW

Professor William A. Schabas

The first step towards the creation of an international human rights norm abolishing the death penalty was taken in 1948 with the recognition of the "right to life" in Article 3 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

This book traces the emergence and progressive evolution of this international legal norm through an examination of the relevant conventions and case law of both regional and universal application as well as the specific humanitarian agreements.

The work explores the different limitations that international law has placed on the imposition of the death penalty and examines the procedural safeguards required by international law when capital punishment is being considered. The eventual emergence of a customary norm completely abolishing the death penalty is also discussed.

A significant work for all involved in international human rights law and the protection of the individual.

HUMAN RIGHTS AND EUROPE

3rd EDITION
Dr Ralph Beppard

An updated and significantly expanded edition of a work which has, for over twenty years, provided a detailed introduction to the mechanisms and case-law operating within the Council of Europe which seek to protect the rights of the individual.

The book considers in some detail the impact which the European Convention on Human Rights has had on the lives of those within the twenty-six Member States of the Council of Europe by selectively analysing those parts of its large and complex case law which give an insight into the development of European human rights.

Since the Convention entered into force in 1953 amazing changes have occurred in Europe. The E.C. has brought new dimensions into legal debate while the more recent break-up of the Soviet Union and democratisation of much of central Europe may both encourage and challenge the "common heritage of like-mindedness" which the Council of Europe has sought to exploit.

This new edition brings the discussion of all these matters up-to-date whilst retaining the author's clear and straightforward style thus providing a valuable and accessible guide for students and practitioners wishing to gain an insight into European human rights law.

THE IRAN-IRAQ WAR (1980-1988) AND THE LAW OF NAVAL WARFARE

Edited by Professor Andrea de Guttry and Professor Natalino Ronzitti

This is the first comprehensive collection of materials, many previously unpublished, on the wider naval aspects of the Iran-Iraq conflict and the dispatch of Western fleets to the Gulf.

A valuable central feature of the work is formed by eight detailed commentaries written by leading scholars from the countries whose State practice is considered. The commentaries describe the legal position adopted by Iran and Iraq, that of the Western States whose navies were present in the Gulf and the role played by the various international organizations.

The work contains an Introduction by the editors presenting an overview which serves to place the materials in context. An analytical index is also provided.

IRAQ AND KUWAIT: THE HOSTILITIES AND THEIR AFTERMATH

This volume covers the period from the initiation of hostilities for the liberation of Kuwait to the armed actions in January 1993 undertaken to enforce the aerial exclusion zone in southern Iraq.

The book reproduces detailed reports on the outbreak and conduct of hostilities including the Security Council resolutions and extensive extracts from the debates.

Materials covering the response of the UN Commission on Human Rights, the General Assembly, UNHCR, the ICRC and other international bodies to the subsequent humanitarian and environmental emergency in the region are also reproduced. Particular emphasis is placed on the treatment of the Kurds and the Shiites.

The implementation of the cease-fire terms is also covered comprehensively. The latest documents on the work of the boundary demarcation commission, the UN Iraq-Kuwait observer mission, the repatriation of prisoners of war and civilians, the control of Iraqi weaponry and the work of the compensation commission are also included.

Additional information about the positions may be obtained at the same address.

The Institute reserves the right to appoint by invitation a person who has not submitted an application.

International Law is undergoing considerable expansion

Keep in touch with legal developments through publications from the United Nations. Under the U.N. Charter, the United Nations has a mandate in legal affairs 'to promote the judicial settlement of disputes between states and encourage the development and codification of International Law.'

Since its establishment in 1945, the United Nations has and continues to play a leading role in the area of International Law, being involved in the creation and implementation of hundreds of multilateral agreements.

To this end, many permanent organs and Ad Hoc committees have been created to deal with international legal matters. Much of the work, published on a regular basis, covers the areas of:

INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS LAW

- East-West Joint Venture Contracts
- European Agreement concerning the International Carriage of Dangerous Goods
- Legal Guide on Drawing up International Contracts for the Construction of Industrial works

THE ENVIRONMENT & NATURAL RESOURCES

Christopher D. Stone

"Christopher Stone has the rare ability to blend idealism and realism. Like such classics as Silent Spring and A Sand County Almanac, his book has the power to revolutionize the way we think about protecting the global environment."

—Durwood Zaelke, President, Center for International Environmental Law

"This book is great fun to read. But readers beware: underneath the refreshingly direct and sometimes deliberately provocative style, there is solid legal reasoning, and conclusions difficult to refute."

THE INTERNATIONAL LAW OF OCCUPATION

Eyal Benvenisti

The traditional international law of occupation has been challenged by advocates of human rights and self-determination and tested by the numerous occupations of the last two decades. In this pioneering work Eyal Benvenisti formulates a contemporary theory of the law of occupation and establishes guidelines for the lawful management of occupation.

"Benvenisti brings together a rich descriptive analysis of the modern experience with belligerent occupation and, more importantly, offers a powerful critique of how the law should be updated particularly to conform with the modern law of human rights and self-determination. This is an extremely important book."

International Bank Secrecy

Dennis Campbell

This country by country survey of bank secrecy laws discusses government policy in thirty one jurisdictions; covering not only countries with stringent secrecy laws but also countries providing a lesser degree of confidentiality.

It is a comparative survey covering a wide spectrum of jurisdictions and looks at both law and policy. It is a well-timed publication considering the coming into effect of the European single market which will encourage movement of funds around Europe.

Recent legal developments covered include the Iran-Contra scandal in the United States and the collapse of BCCI in Europe.

Cases and Materials on International Law, 4th Edition

D.J. Harris

Harris brings together in one book an exhaustive selection of materials. Documents such as Security Council Resolutions, General Assembly Resolutions, decisions from international courts, and Treaties: The Antarctic Treaty, the Hague Conventions and The European Convention on Human Rights are just a few examples of the range of materials selected. Many new developments are fully reflected in the fourth edition. The chapter on Human Rights has been completely rewritten to take account of recent Human Rights Treaties. The author has given full consideration to the impact of the Nicaragua case on the law on the use of force. The legal aspects of the conflict in the Gulf are incorporated as are the developments in the law of the sea since the 1982 UN Law of the Sea Convention. Harris relies heavily on state practice to show how customary law has evolved.

THE INTERLAW INSTITUTES

A multinational network for the collection, translation and bilingual publication of the full body of laws and regulations of the new democracies of Eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union. All national law-publishing programs produce works in accordance with a common standard form and structure.

THE CENTER FOR THE INTERLAW INSTITUTES

The Center for the InterLaw Institutes is an administrative hub for the related activities of the full family of InterLaw Institutes abroad, and especially for the coordination of those projects of a non-commercial nature, such as student text development, law librarian exchanges, academic registries and international standards development.
