NEW!

INTERNATIONAL LAW AND THE CANADIAN COURTS Sovereign Immunity, Criminal Jurisdiction, Alien's Rights and Taxation Powers

by Edward M. Morgan

This work provides a new approach to understanding extra-territorial and other international law matters as they are worked out in Canadian courts. The author points out the contradictory nature of the case law and develops a theoretical framework which exposes the underlying principles by which Canadian courts are guided.

Covers four areas where Canadian courts confront questions of international law: sovereign immunity, criminal jurisdiction, alien's rights and taxation powers. The case law and statutory provisions are analyzed in each area.

In this provocative study, Franck employs a broad range of historical, legal, sociological, anthropological, political, and philosophical modes of analysis to unravel the mystery of what makes states and people perceive rules as legitimate.

MIXED INTERNATIONAL ARBITRATION

STUDIES IN ARBITRATION BETWEEN STATES AND PRIVATE PERSONS

Stephen J. Toope

Part One is an exploration of some central difficulties, both theoretical and practical, that arise in mixed international arbitration.

Part Two contains extensive studies of the three most important regimes of mixed international arbitration currently in operation: – the International Chamber of Commerce, the World Bank Centre for the Settlement of Investment Disputes and the Iran-US Claims Tribunal.

The book will be of special interest to practitioners of all forms of international commercial arbitration and also to international lawyers interested in questions of dispute resolution. As a general survey of the subject, the work will be invaluable to students.

WAR, AGGRESSION AND SELF-DEFENCE

Yoram Dinstein

This book re-examines the topics of war, aggression and self-defence, as well as related issues, such as collective security and the use of force short of war.

The first part deals with such questions as: What is war? When does it commence and terminate? What is the difference between peace treaties, armistice agreements and cease-fires? Where can war be waged and what is the meaning of neutrality?

The focus of the discussion in the second part is the contemporary prohibition of the use of force and its standing as jus cogens. The meaning of aggression is explored. The concept of crimes against peace, which evolved in the Nuremberg trial, is examined. Some controversial implications of the illegality and criminality of war are analyzed.

The third part explores the concept of self-defence. The scope of armed attack, prior to the exercise of the right of self-defence, is investigated, distinguishing between attacks launched by a foreign State and those that are carried out from its territory by armed bands. An inquiry is made into the respective roles of the Security Council, the General Assembly and the International Court of Justice. Special attention is given to such disputed points as the legality of armed reprisals and the protection of nationals abroad.
