WAGES IN PRACTICE AND THEORY

McCormick and International Harvester,
1860-1960

By Robert Ozanne

In a unique investigation of one company's payroll records and correspondence, Professor Ozanne carefully traces the multiple causes of wage movements in a single plant from 1860 to 1960. The findings from this plant are then compared with wage movements in U.S. manufacturing over the 100-year period. Invaluable for the research economist, this book is also of special interest to those concerned with wage policy in government, business, and trade unions.

RETRAINING THE UNEMPLOYED

Edited by Gerald G. Somers

The case studies in this volume evaluate the effectiveness of recent and current retraining programs for unemployed workers under federal, state, municipal and union-management auspices, judging them by their success in placing workers in useful employment in distressed economic areas. Through analyses of specific programs in a wide variety of environmental circumstances, the authors have drawn significant conclusions about the costs and benefits of retraining in general.

AN ECONOMIC HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES

Second Edition

GILBERT C. FITE and JIM E. REESE
both of University of Oklahoma

The second edition of this popular text places special emphasis on economic development. The opening chapter establishes a conceptual framework which illuminates the historical material throughout the book. Material on the early and late 19th century brings into focus the theme of economic development consistent with the framework outlined in Chapter 1. Interpretive analyses of controversial questions and the use of recent statistics are included in the revision.

728 pages, 1965, $9.25.

READINGS IN UNITED STATES ECONOMIC AND BUSINESS HISTORY

Edited by ROSS M. ROBERTSON, Indiana University, and JAMES L. PATE, Monmouth College, Illinois

This well balanced collection of 45 outstanding articles and 36 significant historical documents presents to the beginning student the realities of our developing economy in the context of controversy and change. Both sides of arguments are given wherever possible, and the substantial section of articles on methodology comprising Part I effectively reveals the changes in American economic history in the past fifty years.

Big Business in Japanese Politics

by Chitoshi Yanaga

Focusing on the crucial decade 1951-1960, the author makes the first systematic effort to show how the power of organized big business, unmatched by that of any other interest group in Japan, operates directly and indirectly in the political process. He clearly shows that the Japanese governing process is a joint effort of big business, party government, and administrative bureaucracy. $8.75

Economic and Political Change in the Leeward and Windward Islands

by Carleen O'Loughlin

In the British Leeward and Windward Islands, fragmented colonial administrations and population pressures have combined to complicate the problems of economic development. Based upon her examination of the major constraints to economic growth in terms of each island and of the regional needs and resources, Miss O'Loughlin proposes thoughtful and realistic guidelines for change. $8.75

American Business Abroad Six Lectures on Direct Investment

by Charles P. Kindleberger

Most if not all of other countries' fears about American political and military penetration by economic means are mistaken, Mr. Kindleberger argues in this concise and vigorous defense of the multinational and international corporation. He makes a strong recommendation for the development of international policies and institutions to regulate or supervise the growth of international business in order to ensure its most effective use. cloth $6.75; paper $1.95

Instability and Economic Growth

by Erik Lundberg

A Swedish economist presents here a broad survey of instability experiences during the interwar and postwar periods and then studies intensively the situations of the United Kingdom, Holland, Sweden, Japan, the United States, and Canada, which have exhibited the main interesting types of instability. Studies in Comparative Economics, 8. cloth $7.50; paper $2.25

THE ECONOMIC HISTORY ASSOCIATION

The Economic History Association was organized in 1940. Its purpose is to encourage research and teaching in the history of economic activity and of economic thought. It seeks to cooperate with societies devoted to the study of agricultural, industrial, and business history. It aims to bring together economists, historians, statisticians, geographers, and others who find that the story of economic change throws light on their field of interest or is enriched by their contribution. Membership is open to all who are interested in the history of economic life in all its phases in the United States and other countries.

The JOURNAL OF ECONOMIC HISTORY is published for The Economic History Association by the Graduate School of Business Administration of New York University. Correspondence concerning contributions to the Journal should be addressed to the editorial office: Hugh G. J. Aitken, Editor, Department of Economics, Amherst College, Amherst, Massachusetts 01002. Applications for membership should be addressed to Herman E. Krooss, Treasurer, in care of New York University, 100 Trinity Place, New York, New York 10006.
