

Entries in the OED where Shakespeare is the first recorded user

Entries followed by + have been updated for the third edition of the OED (100 – 25 per cent); those followed by = have not yet been updated (as of July 2017). In some cases, two or more sources for the same word or sense are listed in the OED; only the earlier one is shown in the second column, and the others are mentioned after the headword (preceded by also). Glosses in parentheses are there to help identify the relevant sense in the OED entry. Total: 407.

Entries where others use the item at a later date

FRU: First Recorded Use
NRU: Next Recorded Use
a: ante (before)

The fourth column includes dates for entries where the same word occurs earlier, but in a different sense (or word class) from the way it is used in Shakespeare. It is unclear just how much one of these uses might have influenced the Shakespearean one, but in all such cases it is evident that the word was in circulation and is thus unlikely to have been a Shakespearean invention (though it is of course always possible for more than one person to invent a word during the same time period). Dates of the works follow the listing in Shakespeare's Words. Only 32 per cent (554) of the entries have been updated. Total: 1,753.
