

Robert Smirke. Falstaff rebuked. Oil on canvas, ca. 1795.

Robert Smirke's Falstaff Rebuked depicts the final scene in The Second Part of King Henry IV, in which the newly crowned Henry V rejects his old friend Falstaff, asserting he cannot associate with his lowly, misbehaved friend now that he is king.

From an original in the Folger Shakespeare Library
Licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike 4.0 International License (CC BY-SA 4.0)